What comes first, the success of the organization – or the success of the breeder? Is it the strength of the organization that drives the success of its members? Or is the ultimate success of the organization dependent upon how successful its membership becomes?

This may seem like an odd question at first. It’s a lot like the circular reference of ‘the chicken and the egg’. Yet, you’d be surprised at the number of strong opinions and business approaches that exist on either end of that question.

If you’ll bear with me, I’ll attempt to put this question in the context of the NSR – and our industry in general. I think you’ll understand why the issues surrounding this question have been on my mind lately. Hopefully, it will give you an opportunity to self-examine your current answer, and understand how a little different perspective can be an asset to the industry you’re part of.

There’s definitely a segment of our membership that feels strongly that the organization is there for the sole purpose of initiating (and maintaining) success in their business. Those in this ‘camp’ tend to believe their membership should not be far from a success guarantee – and unfortunately, when things don’t go as planned, it’s the organization or fellow members who should take the blame.

Conversely, there’s another sector who takes a completely independent approach to their affiliation with the organization. Their outlook is aimed at establishing success, whether the organization exists or not, and they understand they can’t rely on any other entity to create that success. However, this group generally only affiliates themselves with the organization when there’s a risk-free benefit to their business.

For the most part, neither segment invests a great deal into the organization – whether that’s in the form of time or money. And like many of you, I’ll be quick to argue that both of these examples have a flawed approach and need a change in perspective.

But the truth is – both are right. While we might enjoy the sentiment expressed in the first example, in the belief that the organization has the capacity to directly affect (or guarantee) the success of its membership – we know that’s a stretch. On the other hand, the latter example exudes a belief that a strong involvement in the organization has no real benefit to them and the success of their operation – and we know that’s a stretch as well.

So, I’ll ask the question again: What comes first, the success of the organization – or of the breeder?

We all know the truth. The most successful relationship between an organization and its membership must be in the form of collaboration. The purebred industry, in itself, is much too complex and involved for any one entity to serve as the cause, while the other realizes the consequence.

Through an effective investment in the success of your industry, and with each segment understanding the strength in the approach of the other, we create a platform where the influence of the purebred organization is larger than the sum of its parts.

Though it’s a slight change in perspective from both examples, it’s a collaborative relationship between the organization and its membership that harbors the ability to develop and reach a common vision. It creates the ability to direct the accomplishments of individuals toward organizational objectives – and essentially provides the fuel for each member to attain goals much bigger than perhaps what is achievable individually.

Let me give you a simple example. You can see in the following information that NSR had a good year in its largest revenue generator, litter recordings, with the first measurable increase in eleven years.

<tr>
<th>Number of Litters Recorded</th>
<th>2010</th>
<th>2011</th>
<th>% Change</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Duroc</td>
<td>8,252</td>
<td>8,887</td>
<td>8%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hampshire</td>
<td>3,860</td>
<td>3,831</td>
<td>-1%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Landrace</td>
<td>3,724</td>
<td>4,574</td>
<td>23%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Yorkshire</td>
<td>11,822</td>
<td>12,610</td>
<td>7%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total</td>
<td>27,658</td>
<td>29,902</td>
<td>8%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Is this due to the fact that membership was more successful in 2011, and farrowed a larger number of purebred litters as a result? Or is it that NSR created additional resources for purebred animals that allowed an increase in herd size, and fostered additional purebred litters in 2011?

I’d like to say that the answer lies somewhere in the middle – and a collaborative relationship between the NSR and its membership initiated the difference. By working together, success can be achieved by both the breeders and the organization simultaneously.

Coach John Smith was a successful college wrestler, 4-time World Champion and 2-time Olympic Games Champion. Currently, he is the head coach of wrestling at Oklahoma State University. Coach Smith grew up in a wrestling family in Del City, Okla., and graduated from high school with a career record of 105-5. He followed with a record of 154-7 in his college career. Since 1992, Coach Smith has coached 18 seasons at OSU, where his teams have won five NCAA wrestling team titles, 23 individual NCAA titles and 85 All-American honors. More than just an exceptional athlete, the two-time reigning Big 12 coach of the year is the epitome of a leader. Coach Smith was the first wrestler to be voted the James E. Sullivan Award winner as America’s outstanding athlete, and the first wrestler ever nominated for the World Trophy, which he received in 1992 before being inducted into the National Wrestling Hall of Fame in 1997.

On Dec. 3, 2011, at the NJSA Regional Youth Leadership Conference in Stillwater, Okla., 55 youth, ages 12-18, and 43 parents listened to Coach Smith talk about “Championship Leadership.” Even with his distinguished resume and outstanding list of victories and awards, Coach Smith didn’t talk about how many medals he has on display at home or the biggest trophy he has ever been awarded. Nor did he tell us the story of his most glorious win or how it made him feel to be a hero and have his hometown high school field house bear his name.

Instead, Coach Smith talked about his journey and the five elements crucial to success in any situation: commitment, drive, adversity, pressure and passion. During his talk, Coach Smith said something that really resonated with me – you must protect your passion. Being passionate about something, unfortunately, isn’t too common these days. The things that we have an excitement, enthusiasm or eager interest in, we must protect. We are constantly faced with adversity, negativity and obstacles. On a daily basis, we come across countless reasons why we should stop pursing our passion, whether it’s because it isn’t possible or something else seems more important or appealing.

In Coach Smith’s case, he was extremely passionate about wrestling. While his friends did other activities and had free time, he was working out and training. He sacrificed a lot to make wrestling a top priority, but Coach Smith was so passionate that, to him, wrestling was all worth it.

Even so, Coach Smith hit his share of road blocks along the way. After coming out of high school with a remarkable record, he didn’t even place at the NCAA tournament his freshman year of college. But he didn’t give up. He plowed through the workouts, schoolwork and competitions, protecting his passion and not letting anything get in the way of his dream.

Success is possible without passion. It’s possible to set goals and successfully achieve them without being passionate. It’s not much fun, but the job gets done. However, without passion, making your way over a small hill can feel like trying to summit Mount Everest. Conversely, with a little dose of passion, even the greatest challenges can seem as easy as coasting downhill on your bicycle.

Whether it’s a sport, a hobby, a competition or a lifestyle, whatever you’re passionate about – protect it. Keep your eyes focused on your dreams and goals and don’t let the outside world bring you down or tell you that you can’t do something. Passion is a precious gift, and with it, the sky is the limit.

Finding Opportunity in the Unexpected

If you would have asked me six months ago where I would be moving after graduation, West Lafayette, Ind., would not have come to mind. And if someone would have told me I would be working with an organization called National Swine Registry, they likely would have received a raised eyebrow in response. At that time, I couldn’t have named our four breeds for a million bucks. But for me, that is one of the many things that makes this opportunity so special – it was completely unexpected.

In my family, I have always been the risk taker. When we were growing up, my brother and I were complete opposites. Travis was meticulous, inquisitive and careful in his actions. He didn’t just walk the line, he drew it first. I, on the other hand, was the kid who rode her tricycle down the stairs – just to see what would happen. I lived by the “ask for forgiveness, not permission” mentality, probably causing my parents to go gray before their time.

This trend continued even as we grew older. While my brother went through his pre-med program in four years, graduated from dental school four years after that and then started his wonderful family – I was a little less direct in my journey. I changed my undergraduate degree four times, took time off of school to travel the world, and in general, took the path less traveled to get anywhere I was headed.

Oddly enough, I have also always been the planner. There is no question I love a good adventure – given I have enough time to make a color coded, alphabetized, thorough plan of action.

“Nearly all of the best things that have happened in my life have been unexpected – completely unplanned by me”

While many people find “winging it” to be exhilarating, the mere mention of spontaneity makes me feel a bit nauseous. But despite my type-A, in-control personality, I have slowly started to realize that nearly all of the best things that have happened in my life have been unexpected – completely unplanned by me.

I guess there are two lessons in this story. First – the road does not have to be straight and narrow to get you where you are going. In fact, it often is just the opposite. Those bumps, curves, twists and turns are what give us character and make us stronger. They also keep life just a little more interesting.

Second – don’t be afraid to embrace the unexpected. I love these words from Brazilian novelist, Paulo Coelho: “You have to take risks. We will only understand the miracle of life fully when we allow the unexpected to happen.” Sometimes, things don’t go the way we plan. Doors close when we wish they wouldn’t. But with a little patience, and sometimes a big leap of faith, we often find ourselves walking through doors to better opportunities than we could have imagined.

When I started as a freshman in pre-med at K-State in 2005, I never expected a trip to the Philippines would lead me to study agriculture instead of medicine – but it did. And growing up as a little 4-Her in Southwest Kansas showing pigs at the county fair, I never imagined that 15 years later I would be working in the purebred swine industry – but I am. I have learned to embrace opportunities, even when they are unexpected. And I could not be more excited to serve our membership in the coming years.

Kemp Retirement

On Dec. 10, 2011, over two hundred enthusiastic customers, family members and friends attended an open house in Cambridge City, Ind., to honor Dick and Sue Kemp for their years of service to the purebred swine industry. For the past 20 years, the Kemps have been mentors and leaders who helped build a family, value-based business for thousands of customers around the country. Their guidance and dedication has been greatly appreciated. NSR, Top Cut Genetics, fellow breeders and colleagues salute their accomplishments and wish them a wonderful retirement! For those who wish to congratulate them on their retirement, cards may be sent to: Dick & Sue Kemp, 5059 Otterbein Ithaca Road, Arcanum, Ohio 45304.

Anderson and Gillespie Join NSR Staff

With the start of the New Year, NSR welcomed Brian Anderson and Jen Gillespie, both of Kansas, to the NSR team. Anderson will be serving as the NSR field representative for the Southwest territory of the U.S. In this role, Anderson will promote the use of purebred Duroc, Hampshire, Landrace and Yorkshire swine, and provide technical assistance to breeders throughout his territory. He will also attend all regional NSR and NJSA events and help members coordinate catalog listings for Buyers Choice Auction Sales.

Anderson obtained an associate’s degree from Fort Scott Community College, as well as a bachelor's degree in animal science production from Kansas State University. Before joining the NSR, Anderson coached junior college livestock judging teams for nearly two decades at Coffeyville and Fort Scott Community College. He has judged shows across the nation, and has been involved with the purebred and showpig industry his whole life. Most recently, Anderson worked for Sunglo as a show-feed specialist. He and his wife, Jennifer, reside in Caney, Kan., with their three children, Andrew, Brenden and Lily.

Gillespie started her work as the Director of Marketing & Communications with NSR the first week of January. She works out of the West Lafayette office, overseeing the communications division of the organization. Gillespie will be leading the production of Seedstock EDGE, as well as pursuing marketing opportunities thorough social media and interactive technology.

Gillespie holds a bachelor's degree in agribusiness from Kansas State University, as well as a master's degree in agricultural communications from Oklahoma State University. During her undergraduate career, the Kansas native had various opportunities to study and work abroad, traveling to countries including Australia, the Philippines, Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Guatemala, and Honduras. Gillespie has held internships with Archer Daniels Midland in Overland Park, Kan., the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, D.C., and the OSU SUNUP television program in Stillwater, Okla. During graduate school, she served as a graduate teaching assistant and the editorial assistant for the Journal of Applied Communications.

NJSA 2012 Scholarship Campaign

Obituary

John “Jack” Robert Bailey Sr. died at age 82 on Monday, Jan. 2, 2012, in Woodland, Calif., after losing his battle with brain cancer. Bailey was born on Jan. 16, 1929, in Turlock, Calif., and lived for the past 52 years in Yolo County – 39 of those years in Zamora. He attended school in Turlock and later went to work for Foster and Kleiser in San Francisco putting up billboards in the early 1950s. Bailey wanted to get back to the country, so he and Bernedette, Patty and John Jr. left San Francisco for Yuba City where he worked on the Richard Wilbur Ranch. That was where son, David, was born. Later the family moved to the Fulton Stephens Ranch in Esparto, where Billy was born, and finally a move to Woodland where he began working for Wilson Pumps in the 1960s until he retired.

Bailey is survived by his beloved wife of 62 years, Bernedette Bailey, whom he married in San Francisco on Sept. 6, 1949; daughter, Patricia Rigby and husband Kim of Woodland; sons, John Bailey and wife June of Turlock, David Bailey of Zamora, Bill Bailey and wife Anna of Ceres; grandchildren, Vickie, Mary, Robert, Jared, Rachelle, Robin, John, Rebecca, Kristin, William, Chet and Matthew; and great-grandchildren, Fiona, Ashley, Mason, Waylon, Katie and Clara. He was preceded in death by his parents, Lillian and Chester; and Clara. He was preceded in death by his parents, Lillian and Chester; and in-law, Robert Barker.

A celebration of life was held on Friday, Jan. 6, at the Woodland Funeral Chapel. Memorials or donations may be made in his name to the Salvation Army.

New 2012 Iowa/Nebraska Showpig Circuit

The Great Plains Livestock Association mission statement reads: To encourage Iowa and Nebraska youth to more eagerly participate in swine events and to promote educational and skill-building opportunities, while enhancing the knowledge of youth about the purebred, showpig, and commercial segments of the swine industry.

Check out www.greatplainslivestock.com for show schedules and more information regarding the circuit, or contact Jarrod and Shari Bakker at 515-291-1956 or 319-269-8014. 2012 National Pork Industry Forum

The 2012 National Pork Industry Forum is to be held March 1-3 in Denver, Colo., at the Hyatt Regency Denver. The theme this year is “America’s Pork Producers: Building A Better Tomorrow” focusing on how producers can work toward a prosperous future in the pork industry. Producer delegates will assess the most recent marketing campaign, focused on improving the image of pork in the minds of U.S. consumers, and discuss progress that has been made in the industry’s ‘We Care’ initiative. There will also be an opportunity for producers to become PQA Plus certified with a training session held on Thursday, March 1, from 2:00-3:00 p.m. to kick off the forum. For a full schedule of events, refer to the National Pork Board General Schedule of Events at www.pork.org.

Run_02.indd   19 2/16/2012   8:32:18 PM
When Pharaoh calls you in and asks, ‘What is your occupation?’ you should answer, ‘Your servants have tended livestock from our boyhood on, just as our fathers did.’ – Genesis 47:3
One day, Kirk Swanson looked at the sow herd on his family farm in Red Oak, Iowa; for the first time, he didn’t like what he saw. Swanson gave them a real hard look and realized that only about eight of them were the type of hogs he wanted to raise – the type he was known for.

Maybe he had lost some of his ambition, or the hard times thrown at him had dulled the passion so many in the industry had admired, but one thing was certain: these were not productive females he prided himself in. And that was going to change.

Not many breeders are humble enough to look at their own operations with such a stark realization. Few could criticize their own hogs to such a degree. Fewer still could pick themselves up by their bootstraps and take those few good females, a knack for genetics, a lot of faith and old lessons learned to reinstate their reputation of raising great ones.

Unlike many family farmers, Swanson’s father didn’t raise pigs. His brother, Kent, got him into the pig business before the pair was even 10-years-old. “Kent, for some reason, seemed like he really liked them,” recalls Swanson with a laugh, “so we dove off into it.”

They did. By the time the duo was in high school, they ran more than 80 sows, and Swanson’s family leaned heavily on the finances generated by their operation. Because his father wasn’t involved in the swine industry, Swanson sought knowledge from industry greats like the Christian brothers, Dr. Harold Hodson, Howard Parrish, Dan Hoge and Russ Snyder. After being dropped off at shows by his father, Swanson would stroll through the barn trying to stand next to them, listen to their conversations or strike up his own.

“I don’t even really know how I got to know all of them,” says Swanson. “But I wanted to learn so bad that I surrounded myself with people like that. I called myself a starving mutt, but really passionate people with a lot of knowledge can sense that same hunger in others.”

So when Swanson stood there looking at his sows that day, he knew just how to get them back on par. The old voices from his past came back to him.

LESSON 1: “Let’s get sows that will breed. Let’s get sows that are durable. Sows that will farrow on their own, raise them on their own and still be fleshy enough to breed back.” – Russ Snyder

Swanson never really had much of a choice but to raise productive pigs. Some would say he never had the luxury to raise pigs solely for the show ring, but Swanson saw it as an opportunity to parallel both show-pig and commercial production.

Swanson met Russ Snyder in the early ‘80s, while Snyder was working for Swine Genetics International in Iowa. “Russ spent a lot of time with me, influenced me a lot and helped me find the traits that make good sows,” Swanson says. “He was a real proponent of making sows that were sound with good structure – good underlines, good feet, good skeleton, good legs.”

And that was just the type Swanson bred; the type that saved him more than once. When the bottom dropped out of the hog market in ‘98, his sows’ ability to lay down and have pigs without a lot of extra care or grain allowed him to keep his operation intact.

“Russ set the groundwork and made the mold for what I try to look for in my sow herd,” says Swanson. Snyder never doubted the Swanson brothers’ ability to raise a good brood sow. “They just had to do things right,” he says. “Kirk always knew what it took to raise a good brood sow, and he’s always kept that in his heart.”

Swanson’s vision for productive females continually separated him from other showpig producers, and still does today.

In the mid-’90s, Swanson genetics saw great success in the show ring at the Texas majors, which was quite a feat for a quiet Midwestern breeder. But even with this success, the first comment any visitor to 4K Farms made wasn’t about his prospect pigs, but rather how structurally correct his sows were.

“To me, that made me feel better than winning Houston,” Swanson says. “Because it didn’t represent just one pig – it represented 100.”

Tommy Hilton, Swanson’s customer and friend of more than 25 years, has watched his own family drive Swanson-bred barrows to success at the Texas majors, but he knows his success starts with Swanson’s sow herd.

“He puts his main emphasis on structure and production,” Hilton says. “When he calls me about a hog, I know it will be structurally correct, and you get what you look at because his show pigs aren’t treated any different than commercial pigs.”

LESSON 2: “You just made the most common mistake people make in genetics … you assumed genes dilute out, but it’s not dilution, it’s probability.” – Lauren Christian

Swanson still recalls Lauren Christian slamming him on the back as he told him about the mistake he made. It came when one of the black, Hampshire-cross gilts he bred to a Duroc had nine red or red-belted pigs, right there in crate number seven. “How could that be?” Swanson had asked Christian.

Always the teacher, Christian told him just how that black sow could throw red pigs – probability. Seven generations back in her pedigree was a red boar, and she had held onto that gene. “When I erred and didn’t stay focused, I let my breeding herd slide,” Swanson says. “As I stood there in the alleyway of the breeding unit looking at those eight really good, old sows …”

I thought about all the boars who had been key to making our success in the '90s. Then I thought, here is where I need to make Lauren's theory apply.

Swanson knew those eight sows had to have a few of those good genes, and with a prayer, he threw the rest of the sows away to focus on breeding his best.

“When I just had those few good sows, I could look at them and think I still had a chance,” Swanson says.

What’s interesting is, all of those sows came from the same genetics, and those sows are the ones whose lineage would produce Hillbilly Bone.

Swanson’s faith in good genetics is what drives him to inject the most elite purebreds into his crossbred sow herd at least every three generations.

“This is one of those I think about depth of pedigrees and using purebreds – you can look at pigs that are a boar’s granddaughters and still see his characteristics,” Swanson says. “I challenge someone to buy from a herd that doesn’t have a consistent breeding program and have that happen. It won’t.”

Swanson’s dedication to a strict breeding program has always impressed Kade Hummel. As an NSR fieldman, Hummel’s first visit to 4K took an entire day, but he left with a new way of thinking.

“Kirk opened my eyes to a different format in breeding hogs – thinking outside of the box,” Hummel says. “That man understands structure about as well as anybody I’ve ever been around.”

LESSON 3: Somewhere, somehow, your dad always found the boars that would make a difference, and I bet if you help him, he’ll find another.

And when that happens, Daniel, seize the moment.” –Dan Hoge

When Dan Hoge pulled Swanson’s 12-year-old son, Daniel, aside at the World Pork Expo, Swanson didn’t expect to hear what he can only call a prophecy. Maybe Hoge didn’t know the truth in his words, or maybe he did. But several years later that truth still rings.

Before Swanson and his son started their search for the next great boar for 4K, they found his name in a history museum on a fifth grade field trip. Moved by the story of the Doolittle Raid, they decided if they ever found one worthy, that’s what they would name him.

A call from Kade Hummel a couple of years later about a boar at John Lane’s intrigued Swanson, but the steep private treaty price led him to pass. When that same boar came to Indiana State Fair, Swanson only had to drive him 15 feet to see he was worth the money, but that previous price didn’t stand there. Less than eight hours and around $50,000 more than Swanson offered later, the boar was owned by Moyers and called Big Shot, not Doolittle Raid.

The next year, at 2009 Indiana State Fair, Swanson had one mission – find the best Big Shot son in the barn. He found him in the eleventh class. The belted boar hit the ring in one of the heaviest classes, but he was nearly the youngest boar there. A slight curve in his front leg landed him third, but not before Swanson decided he wanted to own him. That night, he didn’t even look at the boar because he didn’t want to draw extra attention to him.

When he was driven into the sale ring, Swanson stood behind the entrance gate. He bid $7,500, then $9,000, but when the bid went to $10,000, he couldn’t do it.

“My throat got tight, but the hog market was $42, and I just couldn’t think of coming home and telling my brothers that I bought a $10,000 boar,” Swanson recalls. “I chickened out and waved the ringman over and told him to let the other guy have him.”

Then, to his surprise, the ringman walked over and whispered, “Do you want him for $8,500?” Surprised, Swanson nodded. The gavel fell with a bang, and Doolittle Raid – the big, belted Big Shot son – went home with Swanson after a mix-up taking bids.

“That’s what was humbling about Doolittle Raid – I should have never owned him,” Swanson says. “I think there was divine intervention.”

Swanson owned Doolittle Raid for exactly 364 days. He died suddenly the night before Swanson was to return to the Indiana State Fair, the next year.

Swanson will admit, both he and Daniel shed a few tears as they drug Doolittle Raid out of his stall the next morning. When Daniel asked why they had to lose this boar, with some difficulty, Swanson found an answer.

“I said, ‘Daniel, I can’t tell you, but do you remember what Dan Hoge said – how we would find the boar and then seize the moment? We’re going to do exactly like Dan Hoge said. The good Lord just gave us this boar for 364 days. We should have never owned him, but we’re going to work as hard as we can, and we’re going to make pigs better.’”

That moment Dan Hoge referred to – the next great boar – was just five stalls west of his (now) deceased sire. The chromed-up boar had just been taken off the finishing floor. Now, the whole industry knows him as Hillbilly Bone.

LESSON 4: “When you find your passion, don’t forget to use your intuition.” – Russ Snyder

Swanson says Russ Snyder always had a knack for letting you make your own mistakes, and then teaching you from them. Watching Swanson grow up in the industry, Snyder knew all about his passion for breeding hogs, so while driving home in the dark from Chuck Olsen’s production sale, he took a few moments to lecture him on intuition.

It started when Swanson passed on an ultra-aggressive boar that was too wrung out to look deep bodied and productive. That boar happened to be a littermate of the sale-toppers that became known as Blue Chip and Thunderbolt, yet Swanson doubted his gut instinct too much to pay the floor price for him.

Snyder’s words were well-intended. In many ways, Swanson was, and still is, like a son to him, and Snyder always appreciated his passion to do the right thing.

“He’s seen a lot of hard times, and he’s been on top so he can certainly do it again,” Snyder says. “If it’s got four legs, Kirk can breed it and do a good job at it.”

Like Snyder, close friend and customer Tommy Hilton recognizes the spark in Swanson that has always driven him.

“That’s pretty easy for me – passion is the word,” says Hilton. “Whatever he does he has a passion for it, and he’s had an influence on me because he is real. He’s just been a real close friend.”

Today, Swanson knows better than to ignore his intuition. In fact, he bought a boar at the Fall Classic because of it. But maybe more importantly, like his predecessors, he both recognizes and appreciates passion in young people. Nothing inspires Swanson quite as much as talking to a young person who has the goal not to win a major or sell a $100,000 boar, but to simply make pigs better.

“There aren’t many things in life that I’m too talented at, but breeding hogs is different – I think God blessed me with that ability,” Swanson says. “The more I appreciate the opportunity to do something as miraculous as molding the next generation of livestock, I think the better I do, not only with staying more content with the day-to-day challenges of raising pigs, but with the responsibility of breeding animals.

It isn’t just about putting ribbons on the wall but making each generation better.”

Good Friends for Generations

Swanson has been in the showpig industry for decades. During that time, he has made countless friends in the industry and has even sold showpigs to several generations in the same family. One such family is the Hisey family. Jonathon Hisey (5th from the left) has known Swanson and his family since he was a boy buying showpigs. Today, Hisey still selects pigs from Swanson for his niece and nephew and will soon be finding pigs for his two sons, just like his dad, Danny, did for him.

“They are wonderful people and would do anything for anyone,” Hisey says.

Understanding the power behind the pedigree.
Predictable genetics, hogs with the ability to “breed on” and a powerful pedigree are all terms used to describe a “great one.” Those who have been around the industry long recognize names such as DMF8 Reachin’ Out 2-1 and OAB8 PSSS Buck Cherry 1-1, and know that the offspring of these boars have great potential for success. But why? What gives one prospect pig more inborn potential than another just a few farrowing crates down? The answer lies in ancestry.

The Basics

So what do we know about DNA and heredity? Long before advanced genomic testing, livestock breeders recognized that the more desirable animals in their herds typically produced better offspring. With this understanding, breeding decisions were based almost solely on an animal’s physical characteristics, or phenotype. It was later discovered that those sought-after traits are actually controlled by genes. Today, genetic technology is used in all sectors of the livestock industry to enhance breeding decisions and facilitate herd improvement.

How Heredity Works

Deoxyribonucleic acid, or DNA, is the genetic material that carries information creating the resemblance among relatives. It is passed from parent to offspring through reproduction, and serves as the blueprint for not only how an animal looks, but also how it functions.

Understanding the basics of inheritance is sort of like learning how to read a book. In the English language, we have 26 letters that make up the alphabet. The genetic alphabet, while infinitely more complex, is made up of just four letters: A, C, T and G. These letters, also called bases, are the backbone of nucleotides and the key to inheritance.

When we combine three of these four letters in sequence, they create an amino acid – or what we can consider a word. Amino acids then form chains, or sentences, called proteins. So each chain of nucleotides serves as a sentence that writes our genetic code. Traits such as growth, coat color and fat cover are controlled by specific genes, or chapters, within that code.

As with any book, once all of the sentences are written, they have to be organized into a logical story. Our genetic story is no different. In advanced organisms, such as humans and animals, that genetic organization comes in the form of chromosomes (Figure 1). Chromosomes occur in pairs, and all living organisms have a set number of those pairs in their genetic makeup. Humans, for example, have 23 chromosome pairs, while pigs have 19. Because chromosomes carry our genes and occur in pairs, genes must also occur in pairs. So the transmission of genes from parent to offspring depends entirely on the transmission of chromosomes.

Through a process called meiosis, chromosomes are replicated and then divided, forming gametes, or sex cells, which contain only one chromosome of the original pair found in the parent. During reproduction, whether natural or artificial, those gametes combine... and offspring receive one chromosome from their sire and one from their dam, forming an entirely new chromosome pair. This blending of genes is what causes offspring to resemble their parents, while not being identical to them. Although many of these traits are expressed in physical appearance, others are written in the genetic code that we cannot physically see. Going back to our book reference, reproduction essentially takes different chapters from the genetic story of each parent, and rearranges that information into a new, but similar story in each progeny.

DNA and Parentage Testing

Ten years ago, National Swine Registry (NSR) started requiring all purebred Duroc, Hampshire, Landrace and Yorkshire boars used as sires to have a DNA sample on file with NSR office before recording progeny. The resulting DNA bank serves several purposes, including helping to build an extensive database as a reference for parentage and breed purity. In addition, the DNA may be utilized as a resource for future research in several areas that could impact the industry.

But why is all this important to the NSR, and as a whole, the purebred swine industry? A lot of that comes down to one really important piece of paper: the pedigree. A pedigree is essentially a breeder’s bond of producing a superior product, backed by predictable performance – predictable due to the reliability of genetic inheritance. DNA technology is used to enhance the accuracy and value of the pedigree, protecting that purebred promise.

As described above, during reproduction, each pig receives one chromosome from its sire and one from its dam. Therefore, the order of nucleotides in a particular offspring’s genetic code is limited to the bases present in the code of each parent. Figure 2 illustrates possible allele combinations, as well as combinations that are not possible based on the nucleotide sequence of the sire and dam. Through a process of comparing these base-pair combinations found in progeny, given what is found in the sire, a parentage test can be completed.

So with a DNA database of sires, NSR can determine a show-winning pig’s parentage. This is done through the use of blotter cards, shown in Figure 3. A blotter card is used to collect blood or semen samples from the pig being tested, and DNA is then extracted from those samples. If you have questions about how to use blotter cards, see the “how to” and frequently asked questions on the next page.

When NSR sends a blotter card to one of its testing facilities for genotyping, a piece of the card about the size of a paper punch is all that is needed to complete DNA extraction. Once the genetic material is isolated, scientists can use it for a variety of genotyping, including parentage testing. More information on this process is provided in the Genotyping 101 sidebar on the next page.

The DNA collected on the blotter card is not limited to proving porcine parentage. Many in the industry equate genetic testing to the stress gene, a test NSR started requiring in 2002. There are also many commercial industry applicaations for genotyping, including Seek-Gain testing for litter size, growth and meat quality. But at the end of the day, all of these traits come back to lineage – and understanding the role of heredity in performance, whether in the show ring or in a commercial production setting.

DNA FAQ

Q: How long will the DNA testing process take?

A: Cards must be sent directly to the NSR. Upon receiving the DNA sample, the card is blood banked. Cards are then sent to GeneSeek every Friday for all necessary testing. Stress tests take approximately 7-14 days. If the lab is not able to read the sample the first time, testing may take longer. Once the NSR receives the results, they are forwarded to the breeder and litters can be recorded. Other tests generally will take longer than the Stress test, so please allow enough time for completion. If your test needs to be rushed, please contact the NSR for instructions.

Q: When should I send in the DNA sample for my boar?

A: You are encouraged to send in DNA before using a boar for breeding. It is never too early to complete the necessary requirements. If the sire does not happen to pass the necessary testing, this will allow any problems to be recognized before he is used for breeding and before any offspring are born or sold.

Q: What is the most preferred form of DNA collection?

A: Blood is the most preferred form of DNA for testing. Blood will not separate on the card, making the sample easier for the lab to read. Blood also has the greatest longevity, should further testing be needed in the future.

Q: If I am unable to collect blood from my boar, what are my other options?

A: If you are unable to collect blood for the blotter card, semen and hair samples are also accepted. However, blood and semen are more likely to yield a readable result. If you are not able to provide one of these forms of DNA, a hair sample is accepted. When requesting a DNA card for this method, you must specify a hair card is needed, as it is different from the blotter cards. When using the hair collection method, you must get at least 20 pieces of hair on the NSR card that contains the follicles.

Q: Is extended semen acceptable?

A: No – only raw semen is accepted. Extended semen is more difficult to read at the lab and will not last as long on the blotter card, in the case that future testing is needed.

Q: I collected a DNA sample from my boar a few months ago. Will this sample still be good to send in for testing?

A: As long as the card has not been exposed to direct sunlight and was allowed to dry for 24 hours after collection, the lab will likely be able to read the sample.

Q: What are some suggestions for collecting DNA from my boar to ensure a readable sample?

A: Write the boar’s information on the card before collecting the sample and ensure the information is accurate. Allow the sample to dry completely for 24 hours before sending it to NSR. Do not expose the sample to direct sunlight. When collecting a blood sample, do not apply too much pressure to the punctured area forcing blood to come out.

Q: In March 2010, NSR switched from a blotter card with one circle to a card with four circles. Why was this change made?

A: The new blotter card allows for more DNA to be stored on one card, in case testing for a boar is requested in the future. Some of the newer DNA technology requires a larger portion of the sample on the card, so additional storage allows the DNA resource to be used in future applications and research. The cost of the blotter card to the breeders did not change, and is still $4 per card.

Whether you’re looking for a place to house showpigs, sell seedstock or host events, three breeders share how they each created their own dream barns. Use their experiences and ideas to create your own pig palace.
Showpig Paradise
Shane Brinning, Keota, Iowa

Shane Brinning’s need for a building was two-fold. The Keota, Iowa, native wanted a place where he could show customers prospect pigs without sacrificing the biosecurity of his nursery while providing his family with a place where they could easily work with their livestock projects.

His solution was a new custom-built show barn that combined the best features he has seen in buildings throughout the country.

“It works out well for what I do,” says Brinning. “Obviously, you can’t build that high-dollar, nice shed for just one kid – that’s a little unrealistic. But for me, I can sell pigs out of it in February, March and April, my kids can have it May, June, July and August, and then I can start selling pigs out of it again in September.”

Brinning’s barn is designed not to look like a hog barn from the road. All of the fans are placed opposite of the road, and the front of the building is accented with five large windows with prairie pane accents. For Brinning, part of the appeal of the building is its presentation, both on the outside and how his hogs look on the inside. He never wants his prospects to be in the shadows when a customer comes to look, so besides the five large windows, Brinning added four rows of lights containing a total of 46 separate fixtures.

“It has light,” he laughs. “But if you would want to cut corners a little bit, that part did get a little goofy in terms of price – but I darn sure love it.”

Brinning also loves how easy it is to clean out the barn. He and his family just scrape the used shavings to the center of the 8 feet aisle, and then clear away the used bedding with a skid steer. To make it even easier to maneuver the skid steer into the barn, Brinning installed a garage door with a remote opener on each end. His simple ingenuity insures no one will be opening or closing doors in the cold.

During the Iowa winters, staying out of the frigid temperatures is important, which is why Brinning’s wash rack features heated water. Even if his kids walk their projects in cold weather, they can bathe them in warm water before towel them off and bedding them down in thick shavings. Brinning’s wash rack pulls double-duty, serving also as a place to wash steers too. It features tie racks around the outside for the cattle and portable holding pens for the pigs that can be taken down or moved around to make room.

Perhaps, Brinning’s favorite aspect of the whole barn is his penning. All the gates are hung on one side so they will always remain balanced and easy to swing open and close.

“The reason we did this is because they are perfectly hung and swing with no deviation,” Brinning says. “You could have a 2-year-old toddler open and close our gate with no problem at all.”

The easy-to-open gates also feature a modified gestation stall latch (Figure 1) that ensures another pin will never be lost in the muck. Brinning simply welded a 1-inch, square piece of steel to the drop-pin latch to keep the pin from being able to come all the way out. While they were welding custom touches, Brinning added a series of horizontal steel pieces to the penning so he could hang feeders at different heights as the pigs grow (Figure 2).

Would he do anything differently? Just one thing – raise his self-feeders off the ground with a concrete slab to keep the prospects from filling their feeders with the shavings they kick up. Brinning’s original collection of ideas has sparked many others to create similar versions. In his county alone, four families are now enjoying the convenience of their own little showpig paradises.

Quick Stats:

Owned by: Shane Brinning & family, Keota, Iowa

- Main purpose: Private treaty sale showing area and youth project housing
- Type: New construction
- Unique features: Custom penning, two remote operated garage doors for easy cleaning, five house-quality windows and 46 lights for adequate lighting, tanning pens, bedding storage, office, restroom and heated wash rack with collapsible pens.

March 2012
The Cain Family of Chariton, Iowa, knows what makes a good pig building. And in their experience, it doesn’t always have to be new. Their “newest” show barn was once an open-front cattle shed that they closed in and used salvaged parts from an old commercial building to create the practical pig palace it is today.

According to Dusty Cain, this is the sixth remodel the family has done, and this one is just about perfect. His favorite part of the building is the pen size. The generous 6x14 feet pens offer the Cains flexibility in how they use them, and were the biggest factor in determining how many pens to place in each remodeled building.

“You can put one pig in there or you can even put two if you want to, and they will still get exercise,” Cain says. “Some days you just don’t get to it, and in our case it’s usually because we’re too busy with other things.”

All of the penning came from the old commercial building the family bought to salvage. They just re-welded the pieces to the appropriate size and fitted each one with a custom-welded latch that Cain describes as a larger version of the convenience store bathroom locks (Figure 1).

“My 2-year-old can open a gate if he wants to, yet it is secure enough that the pigs can’t get out,” Cain says. “It’s nice because you aren’t constantly climbing over the gates.”

Along with the penning, the Cains also used an exhaust fan from the old building. By salvaging parts, they saved thousands of dollars on the renovation. In total, the Cains have used various parts from the old building in three or four new ones.

“Looking for deals like that to fall into always helps,” Cain says.

In Cain’s case, a local energy group also helped keep costs down by paying for 70 percent of the cost of the closed-cell insulation (Figure 2) they installed in the building to ensure it was energy efficient. This insulation makes all the difference, according to Cain. Since it dries rock hard, it can’t be torn up by wildlife, such as birds and mice, or chewed through by pigs.

“It’s economical because now it doesn’t cost us an arm and a leg to heat the building for a handful of pigs,” Cain says. “In the summer time, when it is 100 degrees here, we only have one fan going to push air through the garage doors on each end, and that building will stay 78-80 degrees.”

One last money-saving feature is the Rotecnawet-dry feeders the Cains have installed in each one of their 12 pens.

“These feeders are very economical – for a feeder and water system. They don’t cost us very much to have that automatic feeder and water set up in each pen,” Cain says. “With different systems you can have up to $400 tied up in each feeder and waterer.”

Although he wouldn’t change anything about this renovation, Cain admits he has learned from his past mistakes and encourages producers not to cut corners with the insulation. He strongly recommends closed-cell insulation for its effectiveness and longevity.

Quick Stats:

Owned by: Cain Farms, Chariton, Iowa

- Main purpose: Feed pigs for exhibition
- Type: Remodel
- Unique features: Refurbished penning with custom latches, large (6x14) pens that allow for exercise, closed cell insulation and economical wet-dry feeders.

Rick Fogle of Marion, Ohio, decided he shouldn’t rent a venue for the pig sales he auctioneered and hosted when he could build one. So seven years ago, Fogle built a sales facility about a mile down the road from his farm so he wouldn’t threaten the closed-herd status of his operation, Isla Grande Farms.

Fogle’s practical production experience fitted this sale barn to be easy-to-use for both the sellers and buyers alike – something that his 20 years of auctioneering taught him was essential for a successful sale.

Fogle’s barn is outfitted with a separate and fully-stocked kitchen (Figure 4) and restroom area that lead back to the sales and holding pen part of the building, where there is enough room to erect 52 portable, 5x5 feet pens (Figure 3).

The auction block itself is also portable and the sale ring is raised and covered with green carpeting (Figure 1).

To help with acoustics while Fogle calls an auction, the 14-foot-high ceilings are perforated. This also helps to absorb some of the extra noise from the pigs while the auction is going on. Fogle chose a perforated ceiling so the sidewalls could still be power-washed for easy clean-up after events.

In fact, everything in the building can be powerwashed and is at the conclusion of each sale or gathering. Because it is so clean, Fogle’s building has also served as a reception hall for family weddings (including their own). It hosted the North Central Pig Sale Customer Event the last 3 years (Figure 2), and local clubs and churches also use the front area each year for their annual events.

He warns – when you’re building a barn that needs to be washed in that manner, or if it will hold a wash rack, you need to put drains in. Fogle often saw barns that didn’t drain well so he paid special attention to that detail during construction.

The building has one overhead door for easy load out after a sale. Fogle’s only regret is not adding another to help with the loading line. The comfort of his buyers is always his first priority.

“We want buyers to be in their comfort zone coming here for a sale because of the way it is set up and heated,” Fogle says. “The first sale people came to it was cold and nasty outside so they showed up in coveralls and were surprised when it was 65-70 degrees inside.”

To insulate the building and cut heating costs, Fogle blew insulation into the ceiling and the sidewalls are insulated with batting.

1. BALANCE
This is the most important trait when selecting show pigs. Simply put, if all of its parts fit together and are proportional, then the pig balances, and it will separate itself in the ring. You can never take away the pig's ability to balance. It is no different than why certain toys, colors, etc; please your eye – it is because they are balanced to your needs or wants.

2. FEET & LEGS
Without a doubt, if you want to end your project with a sound, flexible animal, then you need to select a show pig with the right foundation to build on. How many houses are built with a smaller foundation then the top floor? We can all identify the "bloomy" pig and immediately think that is the one, but sometimes if you select a "greener" pig that has the right angles to their feet and legs your project will end with a sounder-made animal.

3. MUSCLE DEVELOPMENT
This trait can be hard to evaluate and predict at a young age, but we're raising meat animals so it's important. Always select pigs that are appropriately muscled for their age. Sometimes too much of anything can cause future problems. If your project is too heavy muscled, too young, you may run into leg and joint problems in the future. Remember, a small pig with a round, bunchy muscle pattern may not grow into a balanced pig in the end.

4. MATURITY PATTERN
This may be the hardest single trait to learn how to select. First, you need to decide what weight you want your project to "finish" at. If you are targeting a lighter finish weight, then you may want to select a shorter-made (sided) hog. If your target weight is 285, you will need to select a pig with more scale at a younger age. Ask the producer you buy your pigs from about their maturity pattern, and let them help explain and predict how the pigs will mature.

5. SQUARE BUILD
This trait goes hand-in-hand with balance and the correct set to feet and legs. Hirschfeld says, if you were talking about the perfect pig you would discuss how the feet and legs sit on the corners of your pig's skeleton and the pig's level hip and square top. These terms all describe a square-made animal. If your pig is round, not level out of its hip, broken behind its blade or is wide chested but tracks narrow when coming at you, your pig is not square made. Imagine a box being set over your pig. If the point of its shoulder, front foot, hip and back foot all hit the side of the box, then your animal is square made.

6. BONE SIZE
Bone size is a fun trait to evaluate. We all want to show and raise pigs that excel in bone and foot size – especially right now. Bone size does dictate maturity pattern and sometimes the stouter boned pigs are earlier-maturing. Hirschfeld has noticed, pigs with a lot of early bone development sometimes don’t mature with as much muscle expression. Again, select your pig considering a balance of traits – not just single trait.

7. TOE SIZE, TOE SPREAD & PASTERN SET
These traits help ensure the soundness with your project. As your pig gains weight, it’s critical its toe size and toe spread are even. If they’re not, your pig may start turning its feet in or even bowing its hocks. Pastern set is also critical because if your prospect pig has too much set, this angle can worsen as the pig gets heavier.

8. UNDERLINE QUALITY (BREEDING GILTS)
Sometimes it is easy to overlook this trait in young pigs, but if you’re purchasing a future sow prospect or breeding show gilt, this is a critical trait to look at. Make sure your breeding gilt prospect has an evenly spaced underline consisting of 6-8 teats on both sides - less than 6 teats on either side can lead to being excused from the ring. If you are purchasing a market animal, this trait is not important to consider.

9. STOUTNESS OF FEATURES
Stoutness of skull, bone and blade are all important traits when selecting a balanced animal. But remember, sometimes the extremely stout babies lead to an earlier-maturing pigs. Select for a balance of traits.

10. SPRING AND SHAPE OF RIB
Possibly the most important trait to select for if you want an easy-feeding project. If the pig you're selecting has great spring and shape to its rib, then half of the battle is won. Sometimes we think we can feed rib into flatter-ribbed pigs. In Hirschfeld’s opinion, prospects either have it or they don’t. Natural shape and dimension cannot be fed into a pig, and it’s much cheaper if they’re born with proper shape to their rib.

Hirschfeld owns and operates A Cut Above Boar Stud in Benedict, Neb. Known throughout the nation for his eye for quality, Hirschfeld judges many national shows and offers the top 10 traits he looks for in prospects bound to grab a banner.

The 2012 Winter Type Conference was held in Perry, Ga., in conjunction with the NJSA Southeast Regional – what a tremendous event it turned out to be. Entries were up in both barns and the weather was absolutely beautiful. Anytime you can combine great weather, youth and purebred hogs, it’s a good time.

The Duroc show was judged by Justin Rodibaugh of Rensselaer, Ind. Many of you are familiar with the Rodibaugh name, and you should be. Each and every time I think of this young man’s family, the words “class act” come to mind. Justin was just that as he handled his duties and priorities when sorting the Duroc hogs. My hat’s off to Justin for a tremendous job, and I look forward to watching him sort many more shows in the future.

The Premier Sire went to LLDF0 Road Block 3-4, owned by Range & Theobald, Ill. The Reserve Premier Sire went to RWG9 Powershift 23-1, owned by Shaffer’s Gold Rush, Albany, Ind. Congrats to both of these deserving sires and firms.

Range and Theobald drove in the Champion Duroc Boar to start the sale. When Bill Range tells you that he hasn’t drove one like this since the days of Heavyweight, you probably better take notice. The champion was an absolute changer in terms of width, body and structure. There is not much gray area with this boar, you are either way in or way out on his kind, and those that don’t appreciate the extra good this boar has are probably the ones that need to use him the most. Crossroads Genetics, Ind., bought this breeding piece for $4,000. Thanks Adam Beck – a true Heavyweight purchase!

Range and Theobald drove his littermate in the Reserve Champion slot. Like his champion brother, this boar was pulled apart with lots of muscle, width and power, and maybe even a better show ring look. Ask Mike Watson if this boar had a heads up attitude. Congrats to Selph Farms, Fla., for their $600 steal on this boar.

Bontrager Show Pigs, Ind., drove the youngest class winner. This boar was as sound and good footed as any boar in the show. A young boar with a great attitude and lots of look and shape, Jarrett and Dustin Winner drove the second place boar in the youngest class. This boar had a tremendous amount of muscle and was really stout in his features and opened up throughout. Richard Rentz of S.C., made an excellent boar purchase here, and I’m sure we may hear more of that one next year.

The gilt show was loaded with lots of quality red females, but leave it to Guy Jackson to drive the best one. The Mike Johnson and Guy Jackson gilt that wins the Duroc drive is typical of this firm’s production. Sound, feminine and big bodied would be a great way start to describing this one. You could go on and on talking about the positive qualities this great Duroc female offered. Kole Clark and Caitlin Hatcher, Ga., teamed up to own this potential breed changer for $950.

RAR Genetics drove a really interesting female into the Reserve Champion Duroc Gilt slot. Congrats Rick and Ryan for driving one of the really complete and intriguing females in this sale lineup. Barrow-maker deluxe is what this author would call this one. Square, stout and powerful, she could go all day long. Congratulations to Griffin Meeker, Ill., for an excellent purchase on this top-selling Duroc female for $1,150.

Chelsey Ammann, Ill., drove the other class-winning gilt in our open show. Chelsey had a really nice week driving hogs in the junior show, and shared one of her really nice Duroc gilts with the public. Chelsey’s Premonition daughter was super sound and easy moving. This gilt should be an easy one to mate and make the next generation better for Tony Nye, Ohio, and for $500, she should be an easy one to turn a profit on. Jordan Schippert, Ill., also brought another successful junior show gilt to the open ring and stand second to the eventual champion. This gilt was really big bodied and broody in her look, and had plenty of look and feature to go with it. Darin Cron, Ohio, made a really nice female purchase here for $1,000.

I really like the Riley and Ethan Wendt gilt that stood second in Class 2. If this gilt’s sons and daughters inherit her look, quality and incredible top shape, Ken and Greg Babb will look like geniuses for their $625 investment. The last gilt I will discuss is the second place gilt in the oldest class from Range and Theobald. Out of the premier sire, this female had brood sow written all over her. Extra stoutness, body and durability, like all of the Roadblock sons and daughters we saw that week, made this one pretty special. Kimmel Showpigs, Ind., spent $600 wisely, and made an excellent brood sow investment.

A huge thanks to Col. Kevin Wendt, Irwin, Ohio, for another incredible and professional job. Also, a huge thanks to everyone for putting up with the “rookie” field representative and keeping me on the right track throughout the whole sale. A big thank you to Randal Buck, Eufaula, Okla., for filling in at the last minute to work the junior show and part of our open breeds also. Thanks Randal for an always professional job. A big thanks to the Columbia City Indiana FFA Chapter for helping pen hogs and manning hurdles during the show. Last but not least, my hat’s off to the Junior Activities Staff, Cally Hass and Sarah Schwab, and their very capable NJSA board members Tonya Fender, Matthew Morrison, David Ammann and Greg Krahm for an excellent job all week long, and once again congratulations on an outstanding youth event!

Reserve Champion Hampshire Gilt – 1st Class 1
Shown by Brooks Royal, Ga.
JLM9 TCG AUGUSTA 18-1 x BOLN8 HOME GROWN 99-3
Sold for $1,100 to Nahunta Farms, N.C.
The folks in Georgia always roll out the red carpet to welcome participants. This year, the weatherman even ordered some fabulous weather for our arrival. The temperature ranged from the upper-30s in the evenings to the mid-70s in the afternoons. It just doesn’t get much better than that.

The judge for the 2012 Winter Type Conference Hampshire Show was Justin Rodibaugh of Rensselaer, Ind. Thanks to Justin for doing a great job lining up Hampshire hogs.

The Premier Hampshire Sire was JLM9 TCG Augusta 18-1 owned by Top Cut Genetics of Farmland, Ind. The Reserve Premier Hampshire Sire was EC0 Jumbo 108-1 that was owned by the Brantley Family of Wrightsville, Ga.

With the awards all passed out, the Hampshire sale was turned over to Col. Kevin Wendt of Irwin, Ohio, for another great job by a true professional. This year, the Grand Champion Hampshire Boar was exhibited by Range & Rabbit of Waterloo, Ill. The champion was extremely square in his makeup and very level designed. He was a thick-made meat hog with excellent width underneath, and just like his sire, JLM9 TCG Augusta 18-1, he was heavy structured with good, flat bone. At $13,500, he has a new home in Chrisman, Ill., with Hi Point and Grinstead. A son of DPK0 Gunsmoke 25-4 was the Reserve Champion Boar from Kilmer Swine Farm of Monticello, Ind. This boar had nice muscle shape, and that look and style needed to make show hogs that can go out and bring home banners. He sold for $1,500 to Brandon Smith of Bainbridge, Ga.

A combination of MVLS0 Oh My 3-1 and KTB7 Jumbo 9-1 made the second place Class 2 boar for Earl L. Cain and Family of Chariton, Iowa. He was thick and heavy boned. He was sound with the right kind of muscle. Steven Harkness of Leslie, Mich., took him home. He should make males or females and do it quite well.

Jim and Mike McCoy of Bloomingburg, Ohio, brought a JLM0 Focus 10-4 hog to the show. He balanced well with a good top. He was sound footed and had plenty of muscle to help the next generation. James Lindsey of Tusculum, Ala., made a nice buy on a good boar here.

The widest-chested boar in the show came from George and Mike Watson of Mooresville, Ind. This boar was extreme enough to make changes and take you off dead center. He could be a real breeding boar. Riley Stringer, Thomasville, Ga., took him home.

Leading off the gilt sale was a HIN9 Gold Standard 32-5 gilt from Riley and Ethan Wendt of Irwin, Ohio. She had a big rib and center body cavity. She was sound with very correct feet, legs and joints. This gilt had the look of a sow and should make some really good hogs for Scott Lloyd of Van Wert, Ohio.

The Reserve Champion Gilt was from Brooks Royal of Fitzgerald, Ga. This was a very attractive gilt with excellent muscle shape and soundness. This was a daughter of JLM9 TCG Augusta 18-1. She sold to Nahunta Farms of Pikesville, N.C., for $1,100.

From the champion drive in the junior show came Maddie Fugate of Mahomet, Ill., with her Reserve Champion Gilt. A daughter of DMF Hardware 13-2, this was a wide-chested, level-made gilt that had both balance and style. She sold for $550 to Jeffery Howard of Shellman, Ga.

Sydney Cain was in the ring next. Here was a heavy-boned, wide-based, level-made gilt that moved free and easy. She was sired by MVLS0 Oh My 3-1 and looked like she could generate on. Best of luck to Ronnie Sands of Tunkhannock, Pa., on the top-selling gilt of the day for $2,500.

The Class 2 winner belonged to Jason Sanchez of Hilliard, Fla. This was a lean gilt that had plenty of shape and design. Hogs won’t get fat from mothers like this one. She sold to Clyatt Showpigs of Lake Butler, Fla., for $600.

We can always sell good Hampshires at any type conference. You just have to get to work and breed them to get them to the show. Make your plans for next year early.

Sold for $700 to Brian Liming, Ohio
Great weather, great facilities and a good set of Yorkshire boars and gilts kicked off the first event for the National Swine Registry in 2012. The Winter Type Conference took place in conjunction with NJSA Southeast Regional at the Georgia National Fairgrounds and Agricenter in Perry, Ga.

Randal Buck from Eufaula, Okla., worked through the classes in a professional manner. Before the sale started Saturday evening, NSR Fieldman Ralph Doak announced the Premier Sire and Reserve Premier Sire Awards. The Premier Sire was awarded to WGW9 The Grizz 38-8, owned by Shipley Swine Genetics of Newark, Ohio, and Nelson Bros Durocs of Wakonda, S.D. The Reserve Premier Sire went to OKR9 Quick Draw 18-14 owned by Josh Robinson of El Reno, Okla. There was an impressive set of hogs out of these boars. Congratulations to both firms.

The Grand Champion Yorkshire Boar was the entry that won the second class of the day. This son of TBRO0 W.O.W. 53-4 is phenomenal from a design stand point; he’s extended ahead of his blade, tall fronted, level topped and has a great hip. He is big footed and heavy boned, sound is his movement and genuine at the ground. Plus, he has plenty of real muscle shape. Congratulations to RAR Genetics of Aplington, Iowa, on their winning entry. Brandon Stickler (l) accepts the award from NSR Fieldman Brian Anderson.

The second top-selling Yorkshire boar placed second in Class 2, he was shown by Bar M Showpigs of Eastman, Ga., and was sired by ARK0 Onslaught 35-3. If you like hogs that are a little bigger in their kind and great designed, then this one is for you. He is extended everywhere – but, he still has muscle, width and bone. Southern Select Show Pigs of Omega, Ga., loaded this interesting breeding piece for the price of $1,900.

The gilt show ran deep with quality and was fun to watch this year. The gilt that found her way to the ring first beat them all in the junior show and is from a family that is no stranger to the winner’s circle. Landry Lorenzen of Chrisman, Ill., exhibited the Supreme Champion Junior Breeding Gilt at the 2012 NJSA Southeastern Regional and chose to consign her to the sale. She is sired by LFC0 Gatemaster 64-3. Folks, this kind is hard to make and even harder to let go. She looks like a Yorkshire brood sow should – she is stout headed, big and even in her toes, square built underneath and has a big, soft rib cage. She is sound and functional on her feet and legs and has a great underline. Landry and Tracy, congratulations and thank you for taking the time to make a great female like this. She will make her way home with Robin Ridge Farm, Clay City, Ind., and Mike Watson, Mooresville, Ind., for the price of $12,000.

The Grand Champion Gilt in the open show was an entry from Chloe Studebaker of Eaton, Ohio. This daughter of JRSP0 TCG Committed 44-1 was also named Champion Bred-and-Owned gilt in the junior show. She is powerfully

by Michael Lackey, NSR Field Representative

The winning entry from the youngest class was next in the ring, exhibited by Cutting Edge Show Pigs of North Manchester, Ind. This son of TPS0 GRUS Platt Attack 26-1 is captivating from a design stand point. He’s elevated at the top of his shoulder, level designed and long fronted. He’s wide chested and square at the base of his chest floor and has a big, expressive top. He sold to Ron King of Taft, Tenn., for $675.

constructed at the ground, has a big, soft rib and is great in terms of balance and design. This sound-moving, wide-hipped brood sow prospect will make her way to Indiana, Pa., with Jacob Scott for the price of $1,500.

The Reserve Grand Champion Gilt was driven by Range & Theobald of Waterloo, Ill. Bill’s gilt is sired by MCLE9 Benchmark 16-1. This lady is powerful in terms of muscle, bone and rib shape. She is big toed, square and wide at her knee and has a big hip. Brian Liming of Jamestown, Ohio, paid $700 to take her home.

Pfautz Show Pigs of Ephrata, Pa., hit the ring next with their Class 3 winning entry. This daughter of ASLS0 GRUS Security 2-6 looks like a potential brood sow. She is stout headed, big footed and has great shape to her rib. She is sound on her feet and legs and has a great underline. She sold to K&H Show Pigs of Ocilla, Ga., for the price of $625.

Skylar Knapp of Greenwood, Ind., drove the winning entry from Class 2 to the sale ring next. This daughter of WGW9 The Grizz 38-3 is wide made, soft middled and very functional in her design. She sold to Prestige Worldwide Genetics of Gainesville, Fla., for $850.

The gilt that won the youngest class of the day was exhibited by Doug Koonz & Family of Shippensburg, Pa. This stout-made, feminine-designed gilt was sired by JRSP0 TCG Committed 44-1, and sold to Stanley Holmes of Comer, Ga., for $675.

Thank you Kevin Wendt for a job well-done on the block. This event is not an easy task to pull off it takes a lot of help from a lot of people. Special thanks to the young people from Columbia City Indiana FFA Chapter as they assisted in penning hogs during the show and running gates for the sale. Thanks to all of you!

I wish you all the best of luck with your spring farrowing. See you at Belton.

MOONSHINE X LIFT OFF
Sold for $1,500 to Brandon Smith, Ga.
It was the last show of the day and the last sale of the day when it was finally crossbred time at the 2012 Winter Type Conference. Randal Buck of Eufaula, Okla., judged the crossbreds this year.

The Champion Boar was shown by Earl L. Cain and Family of Chariton, Iowa. This big-legged fellow certainly looked like a herd boar. He had a wide chest, big top and a big, square hip. He will make show hogs – that’s for sure. Nathan Stoughton of Russell, Kan., purchased the champion for $9,500.

George and Mike Watson of Mooresville, Ind., had the Reserve Champion Boar. He was a Snap Shot son that really had shape, top and rump galore with a great look. Alton Andrews of Cairo, Ga., will have some great blue-butt out of this guy.

A heavy-boned son of Paparazzi from Goff Select Swine Genetics was next up. This boar was stout with big feet and a bold rib. This guy was bold enough and stout enough to make the trip from Marion, Ind., and still be in great shape. Steve Vaughn of Cartersville, Ga., got a nice boar here.

Cutting Edge Showpigs of North Manchester, Ind., were in with their turn. A great-muscled hog that was balanced and correct. He combined a unique pedigree – Full Tilt and Toxic. Oliver Farms of Reidsville, Ga., paid $1,500 to take this guy back home.

The Grand Champion Crossbred Gilt was from Thorpe Connolly of Urbana, Ohio. This blue gilt was lean and square made. I loved her color, her showiness and the way she acted in the ring. This champion sold for $3,500.

The Reserve Grand Champion Crossbred Gilt was shown by Taylor and Trevor Kirkpatrick of Washington Court House, Ohio. She was a big-ribbed gilt with big bones, great foot size and an excellent center body with lots of capacity. Brandon Smith of Bainbridge, Ga., bought her at $1,500.

George and Mike Watson had the third gilt in the ring. She had a big, square top and a great hip and rump. Prestige Worldwide Genetics of Gainesville, Fla., took this one home for $450.

Reggie Gibbs and Family of Ocilla, Ga., placed second in Class 2. This gilt was thick and muscular. She should make some really nice barrows that will really compete. She sold to K&H Showpigs of Oscilla, Ga.

Kilmer Swine Farms of Monitcello, Ind., were not planning to place third when they loaded this lady in the trailer. She was an IHop on a Silver Bullet sow that had shape, design, muscle and soundness all rolled together. She sold to Bo and Karen Salis of Hilliard, Fla. My, what a buy here.

A huge thank you to Col. Kevin Wendt of Irwin, Ohio, for a great job of selling hogs for the NSR members. We do appreciate your hard work.

The top boar sold for $9,500 and the top gilt sold for $3,500 – that will work at any show.

2011 NJSA Outstanding Novice Member Scholarship
Riley Wendt, 10 • Hometown: Irwin, Ohio
NJSA Member: 6 years

Riley participated in the National Junior Summer Spectacular, World Pork Expo Junior National and Southeast Regional – competing in showmanship, skillathon, judging, photography, poster and sweepstakes contests. Riley also competed in the NJSA All-Around Sweepstakes Circuit for three years, and finished in second place in 2011.

Riley says, “Participating, learning and developing my skills through the shows and activities at NJSA events has made me a better person. I have learned responsibility, honesty and hard work pay off beyond the show ring.”

Some things Riley enjoys most about the swine industry are the quality time her family spends together at NJSA events studying for the skillathon, washing pigs, meetings new friends, practicing showmanship, and working at home with her dad processing baby pigs.

Outside of NJSA, Riley enjoys ballet, Irish dancing, singing, gymnastics, cheerleading and playing basketball.

As the 2011 NJSA Outstanding Novice Member, Riley will receive a $200 scholarship. Congratulations, Riley!

2011 NJSA Outstanding Junior Member Scholarship
NJSA Member: 7 years

Payton attended several NJSA shows, including the National Junior Summer Spectacular, World Pork Expo Junior National, Eastern Regional and North American International Livestock Exposition, participating in showmanship, judging, skillathon, poster, photography, and speech contests. She also attended two NJSA Boot Camps and has been a protégé in the MVP (Mentoring Values People) Program since it began.

Attending fourteen swine shows in the past year, Payton really likes trying other livestock projects at her county fair, including ducks, market goats, starter calves and market lambs. When she’s not showing, Payton enjoys playing soccer and basketball.

She is also involved in student council, yearbook, Youth in Government and the Michigan Swine Youth Challenge.

One of Payton’s goals in the swine industry is to continue to work as a breeder to improve the “belted” breed, her personal favorite, starting with selectively breeding her best Hampshire sow, Moolah.

Payton will receive a $300 scholarship as the 2011 NJSA Outstanding Junior Member. Congratulations, Payton!

2011 NJSA Outstanding Intermediate Member Scholarship
Kane Austin, 17 • Hometown: Mount Vernon, Ill.
NJSA Member: 9 years

Kane participated in National Junior Summer Spectacular, World Pork Expo Junior National, Southwest Regional, Eastern Regional and Southeast Regional. Additionally, Kane has attended three NJSA Regional Leadership Conferences, one National Youth Leadership Conference and is a mentor in the MVP (Mentoring Values People) Program.

A few of Kane’s greatest accomplishments within NJSA include being featured in the June 2006 Seedstock EDGE magazine, receiving the NJSA Outstanding Junior Member Scholarship and winning the showmanship competition for the past two years.
at the National Junior Summer Spectacular.

A nine-year member of 4-H, Kane has exhibited swine, beef cattle, sheep and meat goat projects. He has been a member of FFA for four years, where he is involved in TASK (Teaching Agriculture Safety to Kids) and teaches agriculture safety in kindergarten-8th grade classrooms in his community once each month. Currently serving as the Illinois FFA Section 21 Vice President, Kane was the state winner in Swine Production Entrepreneurship and went on to receive a gold award at the national level.

Outside of NJSA, Kane is actively involved in the Illinois Club Pig Association and Mt. Vernon FFA Chapter, as well as BETA Club, scholars bowl, Team Quest, and he runs cross country.

In the future, Kane would like to continue to be an advocate for the purebred livestock industry and work for the National Swine Registry.

Kane says, “My involvement in the NJSA has been very rewarding. I have been able to meet so many wonderful people from all parts of the United States that share the same passion as I do, and it’s through the great shows and conferences put on by the NJSA that I am able to have these experiences that I never would have had if it weren’t for this great organization.”

As the 2011 NJSA Outstanding Intermediate Member, Kane will receive a $500 scholarship. Congratulations, Kane!

2011 NJSA Outstanding Senior Member Scholarship
Corey Blaine Carpenter, 21 • Hometown: Red Bluff, Calif.

NJSA Member: 11 years

Originally from Red Bluff, Calif., Corey is a 21 year-old junior at California State University, Chico, majoring in animal science with a minor in agriculture business. Corey has been a member of the NJSA for eleven years and is currently serving on the NJSA Junior Board of Directors as the Western Region Director. In addition, Corey has received top honors at the NJSA Western Regional in the gilt show, skillathon, showmanship and sweepstakes competitions.

Starting in 8th grade, Corey managed his own 30-head crossbred and purebred Yorkshire sow herd, producing showpigs for local youth to exhibit. While attending Modesto Junior College for two years, he served as the Swine Unit Herdsman and now continues to work as the Swine Unit Herdsman at CSU, Chico.

Corey served on the California Pork Producers Junior Board for the past three years and was selected as the 2011-2012 California Youth Pork Ambassador. Corey is also active in the CSU Chico Young Cattlemen’s Association, California Farm Bureau Federation, 4-H and FFA.

Upon graduation from CSU, Chico, Corey plans to attend graduate school at Oklahoma State University to study monogastric nutrition, and eventually earn his doctorate degree. His goal is to teach animal science at a junior college or university, while continuing to raise Hampshire hogs and commercial cattle.

Corey will receive a $1,000 scholarship as the 2011 NJSA Outstanding Senior Member. Congratulations, Corey!

2011 NJSA Outstanding Senior Member Scholarship
Tana Simmons, 18 • Hometown: Tipton, Ind.

NJSA Member: 10 years

Tana attended the National Junior Summer Spectacular, World Pork Expo Junior National, National Barrow Show Junior Classic, North American International Livestock Exposition and National Western Stock Show. In addition, she has attended one NJSA Regional Leadership Conference and currently serves as a mentor in the MVP (Mentoring Values People) Program.

Outside of the NJSA, Tana is a member of the Indiana Junior Swine Circuit, Indiana Junior Beef Cattle Association, American Junior Maine Anjou Association, American Junior Chianina Association and the American Junior Simmental Association. Furthermore, she is the National Honor Society Vice President, 2012 Class President, and editor of her school’s television show, THS Action. Tana is involved in student council, Key Club, SADD (Students Against Destructive Decisions), National Art Honor Society, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, VOICE and plays on the varsity soccer team.

A ten-year 4-H member, Tana is actively involved in the Livestock Club and Junior Leaders, where she participates in several community service activities and assisted with a mini 4-H summer camp. Tana has also been a member of FFA for four years. Tana plans to attend Purdue University to major in agricultural communications. In the future, Tana hopes to pursue a career in agricultural broadcasting or as a junior activities coordinator within the swine industry.

As the 2011 NJSA Outstanding Senior Member, Tana will receive a $1,000 scholarship. Congratulations, Tana!

You be the judge.

The fourth edition of the NSR swine judging DVD is ready for your evaluation. This DVD is ideal for agriculture departments, 4-H livestock groups, FFA chapters or personal use. Designed to educate young people in performance traits, EPDs, indexes and swine evaluation, this DVD is for the beginner, but is challenging enough for the collegiate undergraduate as well.

General Information

Entry fees for all entries must accompany the entry form and all late entries will be charged double the regular entry fees. The NSR reserves the right to close entries any time after the printed entry deadline. All entry fees are non-refundable. Entries must be postmarked by April 27, 2012.

All hogs entered at the WPX must have been owned by April 27, 2012, by the exhibitor.

CROSSED BRED BOARS: Stress status of your entry will be placed in the show and sale catalog (this is a show and sale requirement). A documented stress test must be presented at check-in.

All entries must be ear notched using the official NSR system (Starting with litter No. 1 in January and again in July each year). All entries must be recorded by May 21, 2012. After that date, exhibitors will be charged a rush fee. All exhibitors must be active junior or senior NSR members.

No entry or substitute entry will be allowed to show or sell without a registration certificate. Entries will be divided into classes by farrowing date. All hogs must be at the fairgrounds by 8 a.m., Thursday, June 7, 2012.

No clipping is allowed in the barns.

Exhibitors & Eligibility

Exhibitors must be an active member of the NSR, or they will be required to pay the $75 NSR maintenance fee.

Entries are limited to four purebred boars (Duroc, Hampshire, Landrace, Yorkshire), four purebred open gilts (Duroc, Hampshire, Landrace, Yorkshire), two crossbred boars and two crossbred gilts per exhibitor. All entries must be farrowed on or after Nov. 1, 2011, and must have at least six teats on each side.

All entries must meet their respective breed requirements, or they will not be allowed to show or sell at the conference.

Breeding Animal Sale

A minimum of 60 percent of the number of each sex (boars and gilts) shown will be selected for the sale. These animals will be selected with no set number selling from any single class. Animals not selected for the sale can be consigned to the sale for an additional fee of $20 per head. If the animal sells, the fee will be applied toward the sale commission. If the animal does not sell, the fee is forfeited.

All animals selected and cataloged for the sale must go through the auction. Sale commission will be 15 percent for all animals. If an animal that is selected and cataloged for the sale does not go through the sale ring, the exhibitor will be banned from exhibiting at NSR events for one year and will be charged 15% of the average selling price of their respective breed sale. This amount must be paid before reinstatement will be allowed. The exception to this rule will be if the animal has become injured or ill and the animal is inspected by an NSR staff member prior to the sale.

The NSR acts only as the agent between the buyer and seller. If proper payment is made by the buyer in a timely manner, the NSR will make settlement with the seller in approximately 30 days after the sale.

If an exhibitor has an account that is past due, funds from the sale of their animals will be applied to their NSR account.

Special Breed Requirements

By entering any animal in this conference, the owner warrants that the animal meets specific breed requirements.

Such warranty is, however, solely that of the seller and not that of the American Landrace Association, American Yorkshire Club, Hampshire Swine Registry or United Duroc Swine Registry, and the ALA, AYC, HSR, and UDSR assume no responsibility or liability in connection with such warranty by the seller.

If any animal sold at this conference is found to be a carrier of the color gene after being tested through the procedures approved by the HSR, UDSR, ALA and AYC, the seller agrees that he will promptly refund the full purchase price to the buyer.

There will be no refund of NSR commission from animals that are carriers of the color gene.
Each exhibitor may enter a maximum of four purebred open gilts from each breed, four purebred boars from each breed, two crossbred boars and two crossbred gilts. Boars and gilts must be farrowed on or after Nov. 1, 2011. Ear notches, farrowing dates and entry fees for each animal must accompany the entry blank.

ENTRY DEADLINE: APRIL 27, 2012 • Junior exhibitors, please indicate if this gilt is also your WPX junior show entry.

“By my entering this conference, I agree to comply with all rules and regulations of the WPX.”

General Information

1. Entries limited to a maximum of six head per exhibitor.
2. Recommended farrowing date range for project pigs is Jan. 1 and after (any age for prospective club pigs will qualify for this sale).
3. All purebred weanling pigs that show in the purebred class must have a pedigree that accompanies each entry or they will show as a crossbred. Purebred pedigrees will be transferred to buyers by respective breed associations. All pigs must be ear notched. Pigs must be registered by April 14, 2012, or they will be charged a $25 rush fee.
4. Barrows, boars or gilts are eligible. Barrows and boars may be exhibited in separate classes, depending on the number of entries. Gilts will be shown in separate classes.
5. A minimum of 50 percent of the pigs shown per breed will be selected for the sale.
6. Weanling pigs must be entered prior to the show, and entries must be postmarked by March 23, 2012.
7. Weanling pig entry fees are $30. All late entries will be charged double the regular entry fee. The NSR reserves the right to reject any or all entries postmarked after noted entry date.
8. Entire entry fee must accompany all entry forms. No refunds.
9. Sale commission will be 15 percent.
10. Settlement will be made with the exhibitors about 30 days following the sale. In case of non-payment and/or insufficient funds by the buyer, settlement with the seller will be delayed until collection is secured. If an exhibitor has an NSR account that is past due, funds from the sale of their animals will be applied to their past-due account.
11. This event is sponsored by, and will be managed by, the NSR PACO0000127.
12. Exhibitors must be an active member (junior or senior) of the National Swine Registry or they will be charged a $75 exhibitor fee.
13. The NSR will make all penning assignments.

Health Regulations

An interstate health certificate of veterinary inspection from state of origin, issued by a licensed accredited veterinarian, must accompany each animal. All animals may be listed on one health certificate.

The original health certificate must accompany shipment, and two copies of the original certificate must be supplied for each animal. Each certificate must show: Name and address of consignor, address of consignee, and the NSR number. All pigs must be vaccinated for circovirus. This is a sale requirement. All pigs must be vaccinated for mycoplasma and swine influenza. Two injections given at least two weeks apart is preferred. These products are available commercially from several vaccine companies. This is not a sale requirement. According to the NSR, it is required that these numbers and the last test dates appear on the health certificate. Since all states are Stage 5 of the Pseudorabies (PRV) eradication program, no testing is required for this show. If the animals come from a Pseudorabies qualified herd and from a Brucellosis validated herd, it is required that these numbers and the last test dates appear on the health certificate. All health certificates must carry the statement: No raw garbage fed, and herd is not under quarantine for any disease condition and uses no Pseudorabies vaccine.

We will be selling a select few from...

- ALL THERE: Semen from this Cobb boar isn't being sold. We have his offspring, and they are good!
- PAPARAZZI: His offspring have what it takes to win, and we bred him to an All There female!
- BIG BUCK: Heaviest-boned, heaviest-muscled red boar Shaffer has seen with the biggest chest, foot, rib and hip!

A few interesting facts about Clark and Dale Farms!

- Purchased the Yorkshire gilt that broke the $100,000 mark for a record sale at the 1973 Winter Type Conference
- Over 60 years of experience in the purebred industry with exports to China and Mexico
- First Yorkshire ever to win the Golden Pork Chop award

March 2012
We would like to thank everyone who had faith in our program last year and congratulate them on their success. We look forward to working with you again in 2012.

We will have a large selection of November-March Purebred Durocs, Yorkshires, Hampshires and crossbred show pigs available at the farm.

Thanks to Doug Stewart for his private treaty purchase of a Go Get’m son out of the dam of Jet Fuel, G2 and Jacare.

Thanks to Rory Duelm for purchasing a Yorkshire boar and gilt from us.

This guy is perfect for us to use on our Daytripper and Rondo daughters. His mother is a 129 litter sow and we kept three of those and each one is going to make contributions to our breeding program. Their dam is the 64-3 sow (she is a littermate to the dam of Mighty Mack at Olsens) and their grand dam is the 127-4 sow (littermate to Lumberjack). She is the mother of Daddy Mack and Right Choice. Bootlegger is very correct and square front and rear.

RWG0 Net Worth 233-1
VBF9 Virgle 1-4 x JGR7 Anchor 34-9
Net Worth has massive rib, with a thick top and a square rump along with big feet and square even toes. He puts his legs down square and has the ideal set to his pasterns that so many Yorkshires need today.

JGR1 KG 30-11
TBRO9 Rondo 64-4 x JGR6 Tank 9-5
KG’s dam is one of our best Tank sows and is the mother of Mighty Mack. He is a littermate to the first two gilts in our sale this spring that sold for $11,000 and $5,500. KG excels in center body width with great muscle expression. He has a strong top that is needed in many Yorkshires today. This guy puts many good traits together, he has everything in balance.

Watch for our upcoming bred gilt sale this summer on www.nsr-buyerschoiceauction.com

Description: This barrow is BIG TIME!! If you like them stout, square, and with awesome look then 70-3 is your kind! He and his littermate are barrows that we feel can win down the road and ones that could be heard from again one day after a major show this fall!! We will never get it 100% right, but our gut feeling on this pair of 70’s is, THEY CAN WIN!!

186 • SEEDSTOCK EDGE
$30,000 Reserve Champion Crossbred Boar Fall Classic

Second Chance x Alias

Described by many as a true barrow boar! We have many litters mated the same way for this spring. Thank you to Purple Power Boar Stud for their purchase.

BLIZZARD

Sire: Blackhead
Big Earn (Space Monkey) x
Super 7 (Superman's sister)
Dam's Sire: Super Monster

This is our recent addition and boy are we excited. Leaving home for the 2011 Crossbred Classic boar show we had one thing in mind and that was to find a barrow that was designed right in his skeleton without having to sacrifice the farm to find him. Blizzard was thelevelbest topped barrow with the most reach from behind of any in the show yet he comes to you with a mass of power. This is the best built boar (skeleton wise) we have seen in some time. He will be used hard here at the farm. Stress Carrier

Over 100 December to February litters.

Sires include: Blue Blood, Black Blood, Rename, Big Star, Deep Threat, Golden, No Regrets, Blizzard, and Treeshaker.

BEST CHANCE

Sire: Second Chance
Big Shot (American Way) x
Dam's Sire: Alias

This is the guy we kept home from Duncan this year being the little mate brother to our $30,000 Reserve Champion Crossbred Boar sold to Purple Power (Taking Aim). Like his brother, he is as good on his feet and legs as any yet he is and was the power hog of the litter. A very stout skulled big boned barrow with a huge lower center coming and going. He will be used as soon as sows start coming out of the farrowing crates.

INTRODUCING...

Kade Hummel and Katey Brattain bring a wealth of experience and industry knowledge to our team. Their careers to date have allowed them to work directly with breeders and junior members alike in all corners of the country. The hiring of these two talented individuals only underscores the Lindner United commitment to offering the feed needed in today's showpig industry and also the service and support you expect from a feed company. This collaboration between Lindner Feed & Milling and JBS United is committed to carrying the success of the Lindner brand to the Midwest, while developing new products utilizing JBS United's strong history of research and innovation. We are actively pursuing dealers and individuals who want to be on the cutting edge of this venture. Contact Kade or Katey today!

Why does Sure Champ work?

SURE CHAMP Stimulates appetite and promotes a more vigorous attitude during feeding.

SURE CHAMP Maintains appetite during stress situations such as heat, travel and feed transitions.

SURE CHAMP includes Amaferm, which improves the digestibility of feed and other key nutrients, and bolsters overall health and immunity.

SURE CHAMP enhances eye-appeal by giving you added bloom and freshness for the showring.

March 2012
in the last several months, we’ve gone through some big, exciting changes at Adam Beck & Family Showpigs. We have also been fortunate enough to make our dream of starting a boar stud a reality and Crossroads Genetics couldn’t be happier with the reception we’ve received from our customers. My wife, Sarah, and I have also been blessed with another beautiful baby girl, Lily. Believe it or not, we are expecting our third child in late June. We have also changed our location to a bigger and better facility that we feel will adhere to our needs better and be even more convenient for our customers. We are ecstatic about these positive changes and can’t wait for you to come and feel the excitement in the air! Even though we’ve experienced a lot of wonderful changes since last year, our primary focus and winning attitude remain the same... geared toward our CUSTOMER SUCCESS!!!

OUR VALUES STILL HOLD.

All across the United States, pork producers are living up to their legacy of responsible farming. Although the pork industry looks different today than in the past, pork producers still hold the same values. They’re dedicated to doing what’s right and committed to responsible practices. Today, they embrace a formal set of ethical principles that clearly defines their values on areas from food safety to the environment. They make a personal commitment and a public pledge to uphold these principles because it’s the right thing to do.

March 2012
Youth have always been an important part of the purebred swine industry. Since the formation of the National Swine Registry, the March issue of Seedstock EDGE has been dedicated to helping youth find livestock projects from NSR members.

Young people, like Chloe and Makenzie O’Neal, the Indiana girls featured on last year’s cover (right), learn the art of animal husbandry and the importance and value of a hard day’s work. But raising pigs isn’t just about the blue ribbons – it’s about learning the skills needed to move the swine industry forward.

Taylor Farrer, Ind., featured on the 2007 cover (bottom right), explained to readers that by raising purebred, pedigreed pigs, he learned the importance of good genetics and proper management.
