We all have influence

As I reflect on the activities of the recent World Pork Expo (WPX), one item continually hits home with me – what an outstanding opportunity for everyone involved in our industry to be exposed to a great set of young people. With that said, it also can be a wake-up call for all in attendance to realize what a huge responsibility we have to cultivate and develop these young people into the best they can be.

We all learn from many different sources. We model parents and friends, siblings and peers. Some of us even model star athletes, actors and actresses. That’s why it’s always important to see yourself as a role model. Right or wrong, somebody is always watching you. How we react to a judge’s placing or where our pens are located is noted by many in the barn, and these reactions are how people form their opinions of each one of us.

I’m not sure we always see being a role model as part of our job description, whether we are parents, exhibitors or industry-related personnel. We don’t see the need to be intentional about it, or maybe we have become a little gun shy about it due to mistakes and shortcomings in our own life. Perhaps, the consensus of society pressures us to not stand up for what is right.

I previously spoke about the integrity of the pedigree and how our purebred industry is dependent on the integrity of the individual submitting information for registration. More important is the integrity we display to our young people. The youth portion of our industry has grown by leaps and bounds, and more people want to be involved in this youth program. What a great opportunity we have to influence more young people as this program continues to grow.

We all need to take every opportunity to interact with our young people. Whether it is in the barn, the truck while traveling, the show ring or on the way back to the pen following the placing of the class, take time to be a role model. Remember, you stand where no one else does. You may never know the impact you can have on someone who is looking up to you because of your character, your life’s passion or maybe just because of your friendship.

We all have the opportunity to be ‘givers’ or ‘takers.’ Takers receive value from the lives of others around them. We all do that and should – to some extent. But, we can’t just take. We must also give and add value to the lives of those around us. Make part of your ‘giving’ to be a role model. You have the unique platform to impact lives in ways no one else can.

“Don’t worry that children never listen to you; worry that they are always watching you.”

There are many things it takes to run an National Junior Swine Association (NJSA) show – time, hard work and organization – and there is a lot of behind-the-scenes work at the office that needs to happen for these shows to exist. But, what really matters is everything we have been working toward is easily put into practice. When I am getting ready for an event, it doesn't matter how much time or work I have put into the event, if I’m not able to trust the people around me to help put everything into place. I have an amazing staff that backs me and helps me more than people realize, but on top of that, I also have the support of 11 amazing kids. The NJSA Junior Board of Directors is a very large part of our shows and a large reason why our shows run as well as they do. This is the first time I will have been with the retiring members throughout their entire journey on the junior board. I would like to recognize them individually because they deserve it for the time and effort they have put into the NJSA.

Let’s start with the current junior board president and comedian, Tana Simmons. Tana is the spunkiest, funniest and ornery little blonde I have ever met. I love to laugh, and Tana sure does know how to crack a joke. I can’t count the number of times Tana and I have laughed until we cried. I’m trying to stay strong and not cry writing this, but Tana is one of my best friends in this crazy industry we all love so much. It’s been 14 years since our friendship began at the National Junior Summer Spectacular (NJSS), and although I know it won’t end there, it sure will be different without her on the junior board. For as long as we have been friends, Tana knows when I need her to calm me down or make me laugh, but luckily I have a great set of junior board members to fill that void.

The vice president and closet nerd of the junior board is Dan Ammann. Dan is a huge nerd, which is why we get along so well. About the time anyone mentions a Marvel superhero movie or Game of Thrones, they might as well prepare to get an earful of every single fan fiction theory or potential outcome that exists. Dan loves to act like he doesn’t like me, but I know he’s always looking forward to the next time we will see each other. Yes, we will always butt heads and argue, but I think that’s why our relationship is so great. Although we haven’t been friends near as long, I know we will be for a long time (or at least until the last Marvel movie is made or the last episode of Game of Thrones airs, which will never happen).

The secretary and music buff of the junior board is Walter Colvin. Walt is a hard person to describe. As I sat down to write about these four retiring members, Walter was the last person I wrote about because he’s so many things. He’s hilarious, caring, ornery, a workhorse, movie/music buff and so passionate about this industry. I love having Walter on the junior board because he is always paying attention and is always asking me what he needs to do next. When we aren’t working, we can talk about anything. I’m not sure if Walter and I have ever run out of things to talk about. That may have to do with how long we have been friends, but it’s also the type of person Walter is. He can make you feel comfortable in uncomfortable situations, he can make you laugh when you need it most, and he can take charge at any given time.

The story teller of the junior board is Joseph Parker. Joseph is one of the most driven people I have ever had the chance to work with. Although at times we argue, I know Joseph would do almost anything I ask him to. He is one of the few kids on the junior board who didn’t grow up showing in the NJSA. It shouldn’t have been as easy for him to join the junior board and this industry, but it was. It was such an easy transition because Joseph can talk to anyone. It really blows my mind how easy it is for him to communicate with strangers, and I envy that. I’m very proud of Joseph and the type of person he is. Joseph has a huge heart and passion for showing pigs, so I know he will always be part of this industry.

I can’t say it enough, this junior board is absolutely amazing.
Perhaps, there is no better place for kids to grow up than in a barn. Here are some snapshots of youth who love this industry. If you have a fun photo to share, email it to katie@nationalswine.com for a chance to be featured in ‘Raised in a Barn.’

Write On

Just write, rather than just right

Few things are as humiliating to a “professional” writer as sitting at their desk, fingers poised over the keys and—nothing. You just sit there looking at the blank screen and watch the cursor blink pointedly, reminding you over and over again that you have nothing.

Perhaps you type a few words before jamming the backspace button with disgust. It sounds terrible, you think, frustrated. Maybe if you just skim your notes again it will come to you. You gather up the papers sprawled around your keyboard and take up a highlighter to zealously mark a few quotes of interest. But then, you’re sitting there staring at a blank screen again with your shoulders just a little more hunched than before out of defeat.

Writer Red Smith was once asked if turning out a daily column was a chore. To which he said, “Why, no. You simply sit down at the typewriter, open your veins, and bleed.”

Although some days writer’s block can seem nearly physically painful, the act of writing isn’t that hard. It’s just stringing simple words into sentences to make paragraphs which form pages of a story. It’s merely talking through typography. Our own fears and insecurities hold us back.

Truth be told, writing wouldn’t be hard at all if you simply wrote the first thing that came to mind. But as soon as you start typing, you start to doubt yourself. What if they don’t like it? What if this sounds dumb? What if I make a mistake? There’s something about knowing your work will go into print and be bound into a book hidden away in archives that, one day, generations from now will pull out and read which makes you a little nervous.

So, you wait to start typing until you have everything just right. You’re too scared to start it in the chance it would be wrong, so you stare at the glare coming off your computer screen paralyzed by the what-ifs. But, what if, instead of waiting until it was just right, you just write?

Think about what could happen, how much more efficient, and dare I say enjoyable, life would be if you didn’t worry about falling before you took a leap. I know this little blurb has been about writer’s block, but if you stuck with me this long, I hope you’re beginning to realize this also applies to life.

How many times have you wanted to try something, but you were too scared? Maybe it was a new business venture you passed on rather than risking the investment. Perhaps it was your high school crush you were never brave enough to ask for a dance, or it could even be a show you never entered because you felt out of your league.

We’re most bound by our own fears—fears of failing, of falling short of others’ expectations, of being rejected. What we really need to be afraid of is waking up years from now wondering what could be different if you wouldn’t have waited, if you would have chased the crazy dream of yours or if you would have just given it a try.

I’m just as guilty as the next one. There have been plenty of opportunities I’ve passed over because I was too scared—because it wasn’t the right time—but I’d be lying if I said I hadn’t thought of a couple from time to time. So don’t wait until it’s right to write your life—just write.

In the words of the late American lawyer, businessman, and politician Win Borden, “If you wait to do everything until you’re sure it’s right, you’ll probably never do much of anything.”

“But, what if, instead of waiting until it was just right, you just write?”

Understanding female hormones – is it really possible?

There are few things as confusing as the interactions of female reproductive hormones. However, this is an extremely important aspect of swine production to understand, when breeding and farrowing sows. Many different hormone analogs are used in swine production, and understanding how to use them properly can greatly improve your herd’s reproductive efficiency.

First, we need to examine what hormones are present and what they do in the female pig. Gonadotropin releasing hormone (GnRH) is a hormone produced by the hypothalamus, a little organ by the brain. GnRH goes to the pituitary (another little organ by the base of the brain) and stimulates the release of luteinizing hormone (LH) and follicle-stimulating hormone (FSH). FSH works on the ovary to stimulate the growth and development of follicles. You can think of ovarian follicles like tiny, fluid-filled sacks that contain eggs. LH is present at low levels during most of the cycle, but near the end of the 21-day cycle, LH spikes and causes the large follicles to burst, releasing their eggs. This is called ovulation. After the eggs ovulate, it leaves scarred areas on the ovaries that are known as corpora lutea (CL).

Another important hormone to understand is progesterone, which is secreted by the CL on the ovaries and also the placenta. Progesterone works to prepare the uterus for pregnancy and is the hormone that maintains the pregnancy, if she conceives. Prostaglandin F2 alpha (PGF2α) is the hormone secreted by the uterus, when the animal realizes she did not conceive this cycle, and it lyses, or destroys, the CL. When the CL are lysed, they no longer can produce progesterone, and the animal returns to standing heat. PGF2α works the same way if an animal is pregnant – progesterone production is stopped and the pregnancy is ended, either by normal farrowing or abortion.

After developing a brief understanding of the normal hormonal interactions in gilts and sows, we can determine how different hormone analogs available work to mimic the naturally-occurring hormones.

Hormone | Where is it produced? | What does it do? | Man-made analogs
---|---|---|---
Progesterone | Corpora Lutea (CL) on the ovaries and also the placenta | Prepare the uterus for potential pregnancy and maintain pregnancy | Matrix • Regumate
Prostaglandin F2 alpha (PGF2α) | Uterus | Cause lysis of the CL, stopping progesterone production | Lutalyse • Estrumate
Gonadotropin releasing hormone (GnRH) | Hypothalamus | Stimulates release of LH & FSH | Ovugel • Cystorelin • Factrel
Luteinizing hormone (LH) | Pituitary gland | Causes ovulation | PG 600
Follicle stimulating hormone (FSH) | Pituitary gland | Stimulates growth and development of follicle on the ovaries | PG 600

If these hormonal products are used incorrectly, it is very possible to cause harm to the animal and their future reproductive performance. Although there are many similarities to the reproductive cycle among all mammals, we must remember there are some very distinct differences. This means products that work for a certain condition in one species may not work the same way in another – for example, Lutalyse can be used to shorten a cow’s estrous cycle, but will not work that way in a sow. Please use hormonal products respectfully according to the label or with guidance from your veterinarian.

Ernie Barnes WPX Award

Ernie Barnes was honored with the Lifetime Achievement Award from the National Association of Swine Records at the 2015 World Pork Expo.

The National Association of Swine Records (NASR) presented a Lifetime Achievement Award to Ernie Barnes, Iowa, in recognition of his contributions to the swine industry. While Barnes’ passion for the industry has been evidenced through years of service, his greatest contribution was the development of the World Pork Expo (WPX). The WPX has become the premier swine event for youth exhibitors, seedstock breeders and commercial swine producers.

NSR Honors Chinese ABG Partners

America’s Best Genetics (ABG), the complete genetic program offered to customers of the American purebred swine industry, primarily comprising of the commercially-oriented members of the National Swine Registry (NSR), honored its two newest Chinese partners at the China Animal Husbandry Expo in Chongqing, China. Representatives of TangRenShen (TRS) Group Hebei-Whiteshire, partner of Whiteshire-Hamroc, Albion, Indiana, and Shanghai Sunsing Livestock Poultry Co., LTD, partner of Cedar Ridge Genetics, Red Bud, Illinois, and Shaffer Genetics, Albany, Indiana, were awarded plaques commemorating their first ABG International Certificate of Registry. To date, TRS and Sunsing have recorded 1,978 and 3,285 purebred Yorkshire, Landrace and Duroc litters, respectively. Shaffer Genetics also signed a joint-venture production management service agreement with Guangdong DeXing, a large producer in the southern region of China. This agreement marks the first ABG member joint-venture arrangement in Guangdong Province, one of the largest swine producing provinces in China and, historically, one of the leading importers of U.S. purebred genetics.

Correction

Frank Feener Hampshire Award

Frank Feener was honored with the Hampshire Meritorious Service Award at the 2015 World Pork Expo. Feener’s passion for Hampshire hogs began at 9-years-old when his grandfather purchased a bred gilt. When he took over the family farm as a senior in high school, he continued to grow his Hampshire sow herd to sell as breeding stock to herds that were wiped out with hog cholera in the 1960s. He also exported hogs overseas and won many carcass contests. Feener boars topped numerous test stations across the country, and one was chosen as a Hog College® Boar in the 1990s.

Feener has always believed the strength of an operation’s genetics lies in a strong, productive sow base, something he advises young breeders to focus on. At the height of production, Feener’s operation had 200 sows farrow to finish and sold swine for research, show, market and seedstock. Recently, FEF Revival, raised by Feener and purchased by Sharett Farms and Wendt Livestock, sired the Reserve Grand Champion Gilt at the NJSA Southeast Regional and the Champion Hampshire Boar and Gilt at the NSR Southwest Type Conference in 2015.

Feener served many years as a 4-H leader and hosted judging clinics and practices for 4-H, FFA and collegiate judging teams. He has enjoyed officiating countless contests over the years, including the national contest in Louisville, Kentucky. He has served on the Ohio Pork Producer board, National Pork Producer committees and was chosen as a National Pork Producer All American.

Vickie Lynn Finley

Vickie Lynn Finley, 67, passed away May 25, with family by her side at the Kobacker House in Columbus, Ohio.

She was born to Robert and Dorothy (Kern) Lewis on June 13, 1947, in Wauseon, Ohio. She was the youngest sister to Barbara (Richard) Smigelski and Richard (Lynette) Lewis, who still survive her. She was a loving wife to her first husband, Guy Denny, and surviving husband, Jon Finley. She is also survived by her three children and seven grandchildren: Lisa (Steven) Ratterman and children, Lauren, Drew, Ryann and Matthew; David (Susan) Denny and son, Reed; and Megan (Kevin) Wendt and children, Riley and Ethan.

Finley grew up in Whitehouse, Ohio, and graduated from Anthony Wayne High School. She went on to receive training as an administrative assistant, and throughout her working career she was a much-loved, vibrant and caring coworker and friend to all with whom she came in contact. She worked for 19 years as the administrative assistant to the superintendent of Tiffin City Schools and loved the opportunity to serve the community in that capacity.

Finley brought encouraging words and a servant’s heart to every endeavor. She lived her faith by dedicating her life to serving as the hands and feet of Jesus, not only with her family and work, but by being an active member of the Marysville Kairos Prison Ministry, the Findlay area Emmaus Community and the Old Fort United Methodist Church.

She lived her life with tremendous courage, a quick smile, razor-sharp wit, a generous spirit, a heart for others, an awe of nature and a mother’s heart. Her family has been blessed beyond measure as she taught and loved them so well. Friends and family will always remember Finley, as her life exemplified the spirit of her favorite quote by Dr. Martin Luther King, “Everybody can be great…because anybody can serve. You don’t have to have a college degree to serve. You don’t have to make your subject and verb agree to serve. You only need a heart full of grace. A soul generated by love.”

A memorial service was held May 30, at St. Mark’s United Methodist Church. Visitation was from 10-11 a.m. with the memorial service following. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to Kobacker House Hospice Care or the Urban and Shelley Meyer Fund for Cancer Research.

WHEN THE SHOW MATTERS
THE FEED MATTERS.

Just ask the winners...
Ricker Yorkshires have been known to produce good females generation after generation. Perhaps, that’s why their herd sires generate so well. Pictured above is the newest of a set of sires put together by Kevin Ricker – Crowd Control, 2015 WPX Reserve Champion Yorkshire Boar.
Kevin Ricker of Fort Jennings, Ohio, sat down with the extended pedigree of his latest champion. As he traced the lineage of his World Pork Expo Reserve Champion Yorkshire Boar, Crowd Control, he followed the bottom side back over nine sows which were key to his operation. He could see each of these females in his mind, as he recalled what they had contributed to the RIY herdmark. While Ricker Yorkshires may have brought their fair share of winning boars into the show ring in recent years, their sow herd has been their foundation for decades.

Ricker’s roots have always been in the agricultural industry. Growing up on the Ricker farm, the family helped raise vegetables and Hampshire hogs. One of eight siblings, Ricker followed in the footsteps of his older brother, Dale.

Dale Ricker went to The Ohio State University, majored in animal sciences and was hired on to manage the legendary Twin Pine Farms Yorkshire operation, owned by Bill Funderburg. About the time Dale was returning to the family farm to start his own Yorkshire operation, Ricker was setting out to follow in his big brother’s footsteps – The Ohio State University, Twin Pine Farms and developing a passion for the Mother Breed.

After graduating college in ’87, Ricker spent about two and half years working with Funderburg at Twin Pine Farms, before Dale called him home to work on the Ricker Yorkshire herd. Funderburg and Ricker still talk often, and Ricker considers both his brother, Dale, and Funderburg to be among his greatest mentors. Creating a Yorkshire herd as influential as Twin Pine Farms taught Funderburg the value of a good pedigree – both in his Yorkshires and his help. To him, the Ricker brothers had the very best.

“Kevin had a foot up,” Funderburg says. “He had good roots and good experience from his own family. When they already have that, you don’t need to teach them everything … You just throw them in the lake and see if they can swim or not.”

The value of his own pedigree isn’t lost on Ricker. “I’m really proud of all of my brothers and sisters. We’re all still married – I think happily. There’s never been a divorce in our family. Take my brother, Jack, he would give you the shirt off his back. He lives his life by example,” Ricker says, in a rare moment of boastfulness from one of the most humble men this industry has known. “My mom and dad, they didn’t give us a whole lot, but they brought us up right. All of this has been a tradition brought down from them.”

Ricker provides for his own family – wife, Brenda, and two boys, Seth and Troy – with his Yorkshire herd, which is why, just behind his own family, his Yorkshire sow families are one of his most prized possessions.

The Ricker Yorkshire herd has been a closed herd since 1987. That’s different than a lot of guys today. If their genetic base isn’t good enough, they can just reach out and bring another female in, but health is really important, to me. Still to this day, I have to be careful and plan out my matings … There are plenty of wild-looking boars out there that can provide change, but you have to have a firm foundation that can handle it.”
Like many who’ve been in the purebred swine business for decades, Ricker Yorkshires’ bread and butter was once raising seedstock for commercial swine producers. This meant operating under the high-health standards commercial producers expect.

Ricker sold large groups of gilts, which had to be sound, productive and, above all, uniform and consistent. These commercial standards were echoed in his own herd. Females stamped with the RIY herdmark are known for their soundness, basic build and ability to generate – consistently.

In 2006-2007, the commercial market Ricker once leaned on was drying up. Producers who had previously purchased genetics from the family were exiting the business or consolidating into larger firms with their own multipliers, genetic contracts and programs. With the export market being unpredictable and often hit or miss, Ricker looked toward the show ring.

While it would be a challenge for most to take a commercially-oriented sow herd and switch to producing show pigs, this wasn’t any sow herd. This was Ricker’s, and he’d spent years making the perfect female.

There was also a stroke of luck involved. After chasing the leaner, trimmer, harder trend, purebred swine were in a dire place. They were too shallow, too straight and not nearly productive enough to survive in the real world.

By breeding his females to boars who were in vogue at the time, Ricker struck up the perfect balance of productivity and phenotypic appeal. His females garnered a lot of interest, and the RIY herdmark found its way into several influential Yorkshire herds around the country and served as the base for several others just getting started.

Ricker will admit, he has to be careful when planning the matings since he has a closed herd. Females chosen carefully and always humble.

“He’s reserved and well spoken,” Funderburg says of Ricker. “He chooses his words with great care, and he has a great deal of integrity.”

Ricker is not known for being a promoter or a marketer. He sits back and lets his pigs do the talking. And lately, they’ve stirred up plenty of talk with champion after champion.

“I’ve always enjoyed raising Yorkshire pigs, but also getting those pigs into the hands of good families and watching them feed them, show them and have success. That brings me more pleasure than selling a high-dollar boar,” Ricker says. “Honestly, those families’ successes have made my business. They’re the ones that have made me. I’m a poor marketer, so it’s really just the success of those pigs.”

Travis Platt of Upperhand Genetics and Platt Showpigs places many Ricker-bred hogs into the hands of young showmen throughout the country each year. He’ll tell you each one only gets better with time.

“Feet and legs are as good as any,” he says. “They’re hogs with a future. Their best days aren’t at 40 pounds – they keep getting better. That’s the way Kevin Ricker bred them.”

Platt will also point out, no one is harder on Ricker-bred prospects than Ricker himself.

“He’s very humble and set in his ways. He marches to the beat of his own drum,” Platt explains. “He’s very critical of his own hogs; probably too critical, as I tell him sometimes.”

Mike Fischer of Fischer Showpigs purchased his first Ricker gilt in 2011 after she was named Third Overall at the World Pork Expo Junior National before grabbing top honors in the open ring. The female would be the start of Fischer’s son, Max’s, Yorkshire operation. Each year, they call Ricker to get more females. Like Platt, Fischer believes Ricker is much harder on his own stock than any other breeder would dare to be. So much so, Fischer now calls Ricker to send stock his way rather than selecting them himself.

“They hold their pigs to a higher standard than anyone else,” he says. “They’re not boastful in any way, they just raise hogs in a way that you don’t have to talk about them.”

Mentor Funderburg believes this is one of Ricker’s best characteristics and a huge factor in his success.

“He’s just a common man. He doesn’t even like his own hogs most of the time,” he says. “I think that’s Kevin’s best trait. I didn’t like any of mine either. It keeps you from getting barn blind.”

Funderburg also notes Ricker does more than talk about the integrity behind pedigrees – he lives it. A pig farrowed at 12:01 a.m. on Wednesday will be marked down for Wednesday, but if they’re born at 11:59 p.m. Tuesday they’ll be marked for Tuesday. Fischer admires the integrity behind the RIY brand.

“I’ve been fortunate, from the time that I worked with NSR until now, to get to know a lot of really great breeders out there, but there are very few I’ve met that are as conscious about making every customer happy, as Kevin Ricker,” he says. “He wants everything to work, and he doesn’t accept anything less than a happy customer. It’s easy to cash the check and then forget about it, but that’s not his style. I know from experience not every pig will turn out, but he expects his to.”

Ricker, in his normal fashion, wants to humbly thank those around him in this industry that have supported him through the years and lent a helping hand – from putting faith in his genetics to helping him deliver pigs.

His mentor, Funderburg, wanted to close this way: “The best thing I can say, in closing, is I’d hire him again. I’ve had a lot of great people at Twin Pine, but few were of his caliber. It was my good fortune that I was smart enough to hire him.”
One pig at a TIME
By Jessica Harsh
Jon Halbur found himself in an agriculture education class his sophomore year. He lived in town, and the closest exposure to agriculture this Coon Rapids, Iowa, native had was visiting his grandparents. Having no direct ties to agriculture before Jim Heithoff’s class, his agriculture education teacher, he soon developed a love for the industry. Halbur was introduced to the swine industry, when Heithoff offered him a position on a Custom Pig Vaccination team. Now, he has a successful career raising crops and livestock on his grandparent’s farm.

This is just one of many success stories Heithoff has been able to credit to the Custom Pig Vaccination program within the Coon Rapids-Bayard FFA chapter.

Heithoff grew up on a 250-sow farm. After earning his degree, he began teaching agriculture education in north-central Iowa as his first job. As life normally goes, things tend to change. His wife had the opportunity to begin a new career closer to their hometown. Heithoff also found himself in a new position with Murphy Family Farms as a fieldman. But, one of his true passions in life is teaching youth about the agriculture industry. After six to eight months as a fieldman, the opening to teach again came his way. He accepted another agriculture education teaching job where he holds his current position at Coon Rapids-Bayard school district.

Heithoff’s dad had gotten busy one spring during the planting season and called to ask if Heithoff could help vaccinate pigs. After that conversation, he began working with some of his students to train them for what needed to be done. The Custom Pig Vaccination program was fabricated in 1997.

More than 200 students have been part of the Custom Pig Vaccination program, since its inception. Typically, only 10 percent of students are from a swine background, and the majority of students are from town. They work with around 100 Iowa hog producers. Coon Rapids-Bayard has been fortunate, due to their high-quality work ethic and staying true to their chapter motto: “FFA- Faith, Family, Agriculture,” to rely solely on word-of-mouth referrals for their next client. The teams do a lot of traveling. Their territory covers close to the Minnesota boarder, over by the Omaha and Council Bluffs area, down to Ottumwa and Oskaloosa, traveling nearly two-thirds of the state of Iowa and even includes some growers in Missouri.

Given such a large territory to cover, students visit various growers about three days a week and occasionally on weekends. Until two years ago, Heithoff would try to go with the students to every single visit. Now, he goes on the first few and allows the students to go on their own with the team leader, who normally is an upperclassman, as the supervisor for the visit.

To be eligible to participate in the program, students must be an active member of the FFA chapter and remain in good academic standing throughout the duration they are involved with the program.

The farms they work with are independent contractors, and the students are compensated for their work. Each producer, on average, has about 3,000 hogs on their farm. Some of the major companies they are contracted with are Cargill, The Maschhoffs, Murphy Brown, AMVC and a few privately-owned facilities.

Each team, consisting of three to five students, is paired with a producer for a period of time so they have the opportunity to build a strong customer relationship.

Randy and JoAnn Berry, Winterset, Iowa, are contract growers for Cargill Pork who utilize the Custom Pig Vaccination program for their operation. They have been able to get to know Heithoff as well as many of the students he teaches. They value the work provided and the relationship they have built with the chapter for the past ten years.

“Every team of students that has come to our farm, with Jim, have been well educated, friendly, respectful and hardworking,” JoAnn Berry says.

Due to their reputation across Iowa, they have been able to exceed their high expectations “to vaccinate every pig in the state of Iowa.” At the time Heithoff began the program, he said if they were able to vaccinate 18 million pigs, the amount of hogs in Iowa at the time, they would deem the program a success. And, it certainly has been. The teams collectively administer around 750,000 to 1 million vaccines, each year, not including boosters and antibiotics needed outside of the normal protocol.

The vaccines given are used to prevent pneumonia, erysipelas and respiratory disease. When administering vaccines, it is imperative to follow veterinarian prescriptions for each farm.

When porcine epidemic diarrhea virus (PEDv) broke out, the students had to switch gears a little bit by administering antibiotics in addition to the normal vaccines. Heithoff says they respond to whatever is happening in the swine industry, at the time, to ensure their growers’ pigs perform as well as possible.

Jon Wiskus, a senior at Coon Rapids-Bayard and a Custom Pig Vaccination team leader, says you learn to follow directions very well. In order to keep a strong customer relationship and to have healthy pigs, they must strictly follow the prescription and double check before they begin the process of vaccinating. Ensuring the team is giving the correct amounts of each vaccine, depending upon the prescription, is a lot of work, not to mention the manual labor involved in the process.

Heithoff notes students use the money they earn to count toward their FFA degrees. They can use this program to assist them in earning their Iowa FFA State Degree and even a few go on to earn their American FFA Degree.

Most students find it beneficial to have a well-paying job at a relatively young age, but working through the Custom Pig Vaccination program gives them more than just a pay check.

“You know, it’s not a fun job, but it pays pretty decent,” Heithoff says.

“That’s why kids want to come back, because they can make good money at it, and they build relationships with the growers. They learn teamwork, too.”

Wiskus says a lot of team bonding goes on in order to have a successful day vaccinating pigs. He explains everyone has their own position in the process they are best at, and once they determine as a team who goes where, they are much more efficient.

“We go often enough we know each other,” Wiskus says. “You kind of have to learn everybody’s skill and what they’re good at so you can have a good team because, otherwise, you will just be working as individuals and you are never going to get anything done.”

Teamwork is exactly one of the skills Heithoff wants the students to take away from working in this program. Among teamwork and learning how to build strong customer relationships, there are other goals of the program.

The students recognize they are working in the production animal industry and must give special attention to biosecurity concerns. Heithoff says the growers they work with typically have wash stations or showers as you enter and exit the barns. Most times the growers also provide their own clothing, shoes and/or coveralls and boot covers.

Along with taking heed of animal health issues, they also learn animal... husbandry. This is a great opportunity for those not directly involved with agriculture to gain first-hand experience as to how animals are treated. They also learn how to handle livestock properly. Having knowledge of these two topics and doing the little things right enables them to have the tools to run a successful business.

Heithoff says working on a Custom Pig Vaccination team gives the students the opportunity to build their entrepreneurial skills as well as how to manage their own schedule. This job allows for flexible hours, and it is up to the students to coordinate their schedules with the growers’ schedules to get tasks completed in a timely manner.

The Berrys have noticed what a great opportunity the program is for the students, both as a learning experience and business.

“These students are not only gaining the valuable academic knowledge they learned in the classroom, but the valuable interpersonal skills Jim has instilled in them such as professionalism, accountability, responsibility and self-confidence, all while building teamwork skills – skills that last a lifetime,” Berry says.

As for the future of the Custom Pig Vaccination program, it looks very bright. Heithoff commented, the chapter is saturated in terms of the number of growers they work with. He would like to see the students take the program and run with it even further. It takes a lot of organization and scheduling, but he believes it is a great opportunity for the students to fully take over.

The program has been such a success, students from neighboring school districts have begun to join the teams.

The skills and knowledge they gain through this program are ones that will put them over the edge as they get older, but the program also has one other goal Heithoff takes pride in. This program gives the agriculture industry one more voice every time a student joins a team. And, to Heithoff, creating advocates for the industry is very important.

He has seen many students, in his years of teaching, who have been part of the program and graduated high school, come back to the agriculture industry in their professional career. It is encouraging to him that his students want to come back into agriculture or want to start their own farm, even when they were not raised on one. With a program like Custom Pig Vaccination, Heithoff is undoubtedly conquering his goal of creating the next generation of “ag-vocates.”

One of the most time-consuming and challenging decisions a swine producer has to make is what boar to breed the best sow in the herd to. But, even after the mating has been selected and the sow is confirmed pregnant, the producer is only one-third of the way done – the sow still has to deliver the pigs and raise them until weaning. Here are some tips and tricks for producers to keep in mind when it comes time to deliver the next generation and move the operation forward.

Tip #1: Monitor feed intake
Body condition score (BCS) has a great impact on a sow’s ability to farrow normally, and her BCS is largely correlated to how much she is fed. Dr. Mike Tripp, veterinarian in Ringling, Oklahoma, recommends cutting gilts, especially show gilts, down on feed during the last month of gestation. Most of the babies' growth is done during the last trimester, so it is critical not to over-feed the mother during that time. According to Brett Beyers, Sibley, Illinois, a sow should be eating five to six pounds of feed per day during gestation. When her farrowing date is four to five days away, decrease her feed to three to four pounds per day. The decrease in feed will ensure the piglets will not be excessive in size and difficult to deliver. The decreased amount of feed will also prevent the sow herself from getting too fat. Over-conditioned females tend to be lazy when it comes to pushing out piglets, which leads to a higher likelihood of stillborns.

“Some of the most common mistakes people make prior to farrowing is over-feeding and over-conditioning sows or gilts,” Beyers says. “Keeping sows in the right condition will allow the farrowing process to go smoother. She will eat better during the lactation process, and she will milk better, as well.”

Tripp does not feed his sows for 12 hours after farrowing. Then, he starts the sow at half a pound per day and gradually works up her consumption. His rule of thumb is the mother should eat one pound for every pig she has, plus six pounds for herself. If she is fed too much too early she will produce more milk than the piglets can eat, which can lead to mastitis in her mammary glands. Tripp says, this is something people farrowing in the summer need to pay extra attention to.

Tip #2: Provide the right environment
Beyers says, the most important thing to keep in mind when farrowing sows is to provide a warm, dry, draft-free environment. Room temperature should be around 75°F. The females should be moved to the farrowing location three to five days before the expected farrowing date. After farrowing, the piglets should be dried off and have access to a heating pad or heat lamp with a 125 watt bulb. “The worst thing you can do is chill the piglets. Keeping them warm and dry will make them more aggressive, when it comes to nursing,” Beyers says.

Whichever heating element you choose for the piglets, make sure it is where the sow can’t get to it and lay on her pigs.

Tip #3: Set out your supplies
The most common equipment and medication needed is a syringe, 20-gauge needle, OB sleeves, OB lube and Oxytocin. Beyers suggests also having Acepromazine on hand, should the mother snap at her piglets. A snare or pig puller can be used to assist pulling pigs, but only after proper training from a veterinarian. If used improperly, these tools can cause major injury to the piglets or the sow.

After farrowing, the female sometimes needs to be treated with antibiotics to avoid mastitis or other infection. “Postpartum care should include a daily shot of antibiotic and Banamine for two to three days after farrowing. This helps fight any infection that might flare up internally and reduce any inflammation inside of the sow or her underline, until the piglets get stronger,” Beyers says. Beyers also finds it beneficial to give the mother 1 cc of Oxytocin when she finishes farrowing to help her push out any more pigs or afterbirth and let her milk down.

Beyers also finds it beneficial to give the mother 1 cc of Oxytocin when she finishes farrowing to help her push out any more pigs or afterbirth and let her milk down.
Tip #4: Know what is normal

When a sow starts farrowing, she will be restless and act like she is nesting. She will also have a mucus discharge from her vulva, and her teats will be full of milk. With close observation, you should be able to tell when her contractions become more frequent and intense. Most pigs will be born about 30 minutes apart, and the total delivery time for a sow is usually around two and a half hours. Delivery time for gilts may be slightly longer. Beyers says, the sow should be laying on her side during deliver, and you should be able to tell when she is about done because her side and flank will sink in.

“Be patient and observant with the sow,” he says. “Typically her behavior will let you know if she is experiencing any problems.”

At Crone Farms, in Monrovia, Indiana, the secret is knowing the genetic lines and keeping good records of each litter a sow delivers so they know what is normal for each sow.

“We have found some genetic lines farrow their pigs with ease within a few hours, while others tend to take longer between each pig being born,” they say.

Tip #5: Recognize signs of difficulty

The normal gestation period is 114 days. A gestation period longer than 116 days is an indication that something may be wrong with the farrowing process. Other signs that a sow may be having a difficult time farrowing include her straining without delivering any pigs, reddening of her eyes, rapid breathing, inability to rise and prolonged time between the birth of each piglet.

Sometimes it may seem like the sow is having a hard time farrowing, when really she just doesn’t want an audience. If this happens to be the case, leave her alone and check on her occasionally. Lack of patience is one of the most common mistakes the Crones see people make.

One of the most common problems Tripp sees during farrowing is the piglets trying to come out incorrectly, whether it is breech, upside down or two trying to come at once. The producer can assist the sow in this instance by putting a clean OB sleeve with OB lube on it over your arm, entering the sow through the vulva and using your hand to help move the pig or pull it out. It is crucial the OB sleeves be clean to avoid bringing bacteria into the sow.

Another common problem is the sow getting up and down a lot during farrowing, which increases her chance of accidentally laying on one of her newly-born piglets. If you have a sow that does this, Beyers suggests giving her 1 cc of Oxytocin in the side of the vulva with a syringe and clean, 20-gauge needle. This will make her contractions more intense and keep her lying down. In his experience, once she has a few pigs and they start nursing, the sow will calm down.

The piglets can be too large for the sow to deliver, either from genetics or an over-fed sow, as mentioned earlier. Large piglets can cause the sow to wear out quickly during delivery or not be able to deliver them at all.

If a sow is having difficulty farrowing and you don’t have a lot of experience farrowing sows, it is best to call a veterinarian. They can either talk you through the problem or come out to your farm and teach you what to do for the next time. Tripp tells anyone who asks, if a sow has been in labor for two hours without delivering any piglets it is time to call the vet.

“If you call early enough, Dr. Tripp can get you live pigs. If you wait too long, I can’t guarantee live pigs. It costs you the same money either way,” he says.

Sometimes the sow can’t have her pigs or they have to be taken out by a C-section. In Beyers’ opinion that sow should be culled, even if she is an “elite female.”

“If you are trying to base your herd around females that have these problems, you are setting yourself up to have even more problems and headaches down the road,” he says. “A good sow should work for you. You should not work for her.”

World Pork Expo (WPX) 2015 will go down as a record breaker, in terms of participation and attendance, no doubt. It will also be remembered as the first National Swine Registry (NSR) portion of the WPX to be webcast and presented to the general public, thanks to Walton Webcasting and the large number of advertisers that participated in this opportunity. I will also remember it for being one of the very best junior and open shows we have seen in a long time. Durocs have been on the rise, the last few years, and continue to increase in popularity as the quality increases.

I first want to thank all involved for a tremendous week. Judge Bill Range and Harold Hodson offered their input and did a tremendous job of sorting the open hogs as well as setting a sale order that was easy to work through. Col. Kevin Wendt, once again, moved through them with the confidence, ease and professionalism we have come to expect each and every time he takes the block. The crew from Lake Land College helped in the ring, and members of the NJSA junior board stepped in and volunteered their time in an already busy week. Thanks to all of you for your assistance and help!

This year’s Premier Sire was ODH3 King Of Outlaws 3-1 who was owned by Top Cut Genetics and Laucher Durocs, and the Reserve Premier Sire was MAFF4 Lifetime 4-10, owned by Crossroads Genetics. Congratulations to these outstanding firms.

We started the show with the ladies, like we always do, and what a tremendous set of Duroc females to sort through. I will try to highlight each of the class winners and any other gilts that sold very well on sale day and hope I don’t get to wordy. Class 1 started the morning with an awesome set of young gilts to work through. Braden Olson led off the class with a daughter of Cyclone. This daughter of last year’s NBS’ champion was productive, correct and very sound. She had many friends and will get a chance to continue her show career with the Landry girls of Louisiana, who purchased her. Two other gilts of intrigue were shown by Ted and Pat Herber. They were daughters of Full Throttle, the boar Ted sold a year ago at Belton to Jerry McLemore. These gals were heavy boned, square and had a lot of power, but handled it very well. The second-place gilt is headed east to Mid Atlantic Semen Supply, and the fifth-place gilt is going south to Peyton Hill of Texas. I’m sure we will see and hear from these gilts again. The late January and February gilts had lots of fans at this year’s WPX. Class 2 was won by Mike Johnson and Guy Jackson of JJ Genetics with a really unique daughter of King II. This gal was huge chested and backed, and square from top to bottom and end to end. She might have been one of the most unique breeding pieces in the whole offering. She will get a fair shot with Elijah Keplinger, her new owner.

Class 3 was won by Asia Cherney of Wisconsin. Her daughter of Load ‘Em Up was extra heavy boned and stout from end to end, but she still had great length on both ends of her skeleton. She was another junior gilt that was well received, and Tres Amigos Showpigs will put this one to very good use. Congratulations, guys, on a great purchase. Class 4 was won by, yet another, junior exhibitor. Haley Haverback of Illinois drove a really intriguing daughter of Immunity to class-winning status. This gal was loose and flexible with the look of a really intriguing breeding hog. With extra extension and flexibility, she should be an easy one to breed up for Hannah Rawlinson and family.

Class 5 started to turn up the heat. Mackenzie Spisak from Texas, another junior exhibitor, drove one of the unique-pedigreed hogs to winning status in this drive. A daughter of HP Renegade, this one was as loose, extended and pliable as they come. I mean, she could walk all day long and never take a bad step. The number of possibilities to breed this one to are endless, and the chance to make junior hogs that will be flat competitive is out of this world. POT Genetics of Oklahoma will have fun doing just that. Second in that class was a gilt shown by Austin Joostberns of Michigan. His daughter of HP Renegade, this one was as loose, extended and pliable as they come. I mean, she could walk all day long and never take a bad step. The number of possibilities to breed this one to are endless, and the chance to make junior hogs that will be flat competitive is out of this world. POT Genetics of Oklahoma will have fun doing just that. Second in that class was a gilt shown by Austin Joostberns of Michigan. His daughter of Crown Royal was as stout skulled and featured as any we have discussed so far. She still had a huge rib cage and a really good running gear also. Long’s Livestock should make some noise with this brood sow.

Class 6 had our high seller in the class-winning gilt shown by Taylor Norris of Texas. Taylor’s gilt was another with a successful track record in the junior ring and a littermate to a very...

popular boar we will discuss later. Her daughter of King of Outlaws was big outlined and stout with tremendous length of skeleton. This one had so many things required of a good brood sow. I can’t wait to see how her new owners, Tres Amigos, gets this one bred. Good luck, guys. Madi Berry drove a close second with her daughter of Lifetime. This one was really tall fronted and had a beautiful, feminine look. She was big bodied and productive. She is going to get a good chance for long-time Duroc breeder Bob Ramming of Oklahoma. I have a feeling she might make some barrows that will be heard from down South soon.

Class 7 is where this year’s Grand Champion Duroc Female came from. Junior exhibitor Jaci Horton of Texas drove her to champion status, and this one was rather hard to pick apart. We all want to buy one with a winning pedigree, and this one had it. We all want to buy one with a show ring presence, and she had it also. She was really productive looking and looked like a female, and yet she handled it really well. Shipley Swine Genetics own her now and are sure to have a number of red boars that will match up with this one. Have fun, guys!

Robby Perkins was the winner of Class 8. His granddaughter of Iconic was big and extended and had a tremendous set of feet and legs. This one has a great chance to breed on in the hands of Jodi Brooks of Oklahoma. Robby’s gilt has lots of great sows stacked behind her and will make a valuable breeding piece for her new owner. Denver Nordman of South Dakota drove another Iconic granddaughter into second place. This gal was a tank. She has a huge top laid in her, was extremely big bodied and had bone to burn. Bob Ramming came to play hard ball and bought her to go South and hang some banners. Class 9 had lots of depth and was won by Alida Jackson. Alida’s gilt is a littermate to a boar we will talk later. This gal was really big centered and had lots of mass and dimension from end to end. She handled her feet and legs really well. She was a daughter of Atomic, the popular and high-selling boar from Newcastle Genetics last summer, and Newcastle Genetics bought this female to go home and do it all over again. Thanks, guys, for believing in your breeding program. Shipley Swine Genetics was second in this drive. Notice this is one of the first open exhibitors we have discussed, so far, most have been junior exhibitors. This gal Jake drove looked like a lady. She was very good at her foundation with tremendous length of skeleton and muscle. She would have been competitive in any show she was in and got a great home in Louisiana for Barrett Courville. Kade Knapp drove a third-place Iconic daughter that was really intriguing as well. She might have been as long necked, tall fronted and good from the profile as any in the show. Big Papa’s Showpigs in Kansas will give her a fair shot. The last class of the day had our Reserve Champion Female. She was shown by Guse and Goplin and was a daughter of

This year’s boar show proved to be as equally deep. Again, we will discuss them by class, and I would encourage you to pull up the webcast and watch the show again. Class 1 was won by Butts Farms of Wisconsin. Jason drove a son of Bases Juiced to class-winning status. This guy looked like every barrow should in terms of squareness, body shape and look. His head carriage was really good, and his hip and hind leg flexed exceptionally well. Triple B Sires is the new owner, and if you want to make barrows with a really unique look and build, give them a call. Smith Brothers were second in class with a son of Slats 1-3. This rascal was unique in his looseness of skeleton and heaviness of structure. He had tremendous length on both ends and was really immature in his look. Klemmensen Family Farms of Minnesota made a wise purchase of Robbie’s boar.

Class 2 had our Champion and Reserve Champion Duroc Boars. The Champion was exhibited by Meeker Durocs of Illinois. I will be real honest, Dan’s son of King of Outlaws was a very problem-free and versatile kind of boar. If you want to make red barrows, then get in; this guy may be even more desirable in body length and frame size than his daddy. If you want to make females, then get in; this guy had the running gear and rib cage very few possess. This boar’s pedigree is no accident. Dan’s breeding program is no accident. Lots of time and effort went into this one, and it couldn’t have happened to a better guy or family. Top Cut Genetics saw the opportunity to replace his daddy, who is no more, and they may have done it bigger and better. Make some noise with this one, guys, and have fun being competitive. Doug Albright was second and also our eventual Reserve Grand Champion Duroc Boar. I have had the chance to write this Duroc report for each and every show, since my hire, and there are very few outfits that when they come to a show end up as either grand or reserve nearly every time like Albrights. You can look through pedigrees on either side, and the hogs this firm raise can be found for generations. They flat know how to make them breed on. While they may need some help getting them to the shows, the rest comes pretty easy. This son of Light ’Em Up was square and really big centered. He had really big feet and was stout featured and powerful. If you could look through the road rash he had, you saw a really good, unique breeding hog. North Iowa Boar Stud saw this one’s true value and laid him into stud. I hope his ride home from the show was not near as eventful as the one to Des Moines. Jordan Schippert’s Iconic son that was third in class was a really intriguing hog. Jordan’s hog was opened up and stout featured with a big back and hip in him. Schuler Farms will give this one a fair chance.

Mappes Durocs won Class 3 with a son of On Fire. Darryl’s boar was really square and opened up with lots of back shape and dimension. He is sure to be a popular one for making red barrows that can compete with crosses. Newcastle Genetics will put this one to good use. A good pedigree and powerful build are hard to find. The other boar I want to discuss in this drive was fourth in class. He was not real easy to look at as he did not have as much fill and body, because this one knew he was a Duroc boar. The boar was shown by Autrey Showpigs and was a littermate to the high-selling gilt we discussed earlier shown by Taylor Norris. This was one big, red hog with big-time potential. He was another son of King of Outlaws and was big footed and really square with lots of dimension from end to end. Darryl Mappes found the breeding value in this rascal and will put this one to work in Moore, Oklahoma. Stay tuned for reports of his progeny.

The Class 4 winner came from Weisinger Showpigs. No stranger to the red arena and certainly no stranger to success or banners, Nathan’s boar was a son of Break N Out and was absolutely big and stout. This dude had as much pipe and power as any in the show, and he has a power-packed pedigree. Drew and Lauren Tucker of Kansas will have fun making great ones with this guy. Shipley Swine Genetics had a great day and made their presence known in more ways than one. They drove a son of Mountain to second place. This guy was tremendous on the go, extended, flexible and had a really unique shape. A versatile breeding hog here will go to work at Shaffer’s Goldrush.

Our fifth and final class of red boars had a beast for a class winner. He was a littermate to the class-winning gilt shown by Alida Jackson we discussed earlier. This class winner, shown by Norman Brothers, was a son of Atomic. This might have been the biggest-bladed, biggest-ribbed and biggest-backed hog in the barn. He had really big feet and looked like he had an appetite second to none. Chad Hill found the value of this one and will put him to work in Texas. The fourth place boar in this class is the last we will discuss. Shown by Hope and Gracie Flaspholer, this son of Hidden Treasure was really big centered and had lots of dimension and volume. He was really tall fronted and good designed. Upperhand Genetics will put this one in stud for all to sample.

Lots of fun and lots of progress were found in Des Moines, Iowa, and I expect with this set of red hogs even more progress will be made very soon. Congratulations to all exhibitors, and thank you to all buyers and those that showed interest in this outstanding set of hogs shown at one of the premier swine shows in the country.

If you missed any of the 2015 World Pork Expo (WPX), I would have to say you missed an event for the record books. Not only did we have record numbers of junior hogs exhibited, but in terms of the Hampshire breed, the belts made a full sweep on the junior side. In addition, we had a very deep open show on Friday. On behalf of the NSR staff and the Hampshire Board, we want to say thank you to Shane Brinning, Iowa, for the professional job he did sorting the Hampshires. Shane is one that is always fun to listen to, and even though he doesn’t have a lot of Hampshires at home, he still feels a tremendous passion for the breed.

On Friday afternoon, we kicked off the Hampshire show by awarding the Hampshire Meritorious Service Award to Frank and Julie Feerer of Maryland. Congratulations to Frank and Julie for being awarded this honor for their contributions to the Hampshire breed. As Shane got started with the gilt show, he found quality right out of the gate. The winner of the first class of gilts was Sophie Varner, Oklahoma. Sophie is one of the many junior exhibitors who double entered their females and offered them up for auction. Sophie’s gilt was sired by YSF3 Sucker Punch 18-3. This gilt really demanded attention in the first class; not only was she a good-built, good-looking kind of gilt, but her maturity read like a January gilt should. I can only think she has lots of good days ahead of her. On Saturday, Sophie’s gilt got attention from many and found new ownership with Mid Atlantic Semen Supply, Maryland.

The second class of gilts was certainly where the heat began to build. Austin Joostberns, Michigan, drove the class winner. A daughter of OTTN3 West Point 60-3, she certainly hit Shane, and the audience, as hard as any. Austin’s gilt eventually went on to be named Reserve Champion Hampshire Gilt. Austin’s gilt is proportional from the side, incredibly good skeletoned and big pinned. I think she looks like a lady and one I’m sure will be easy for Darrick Smith, Michigan, to breed on and make an impact on his herd.

Payton Norris, Texas, drove the Class 3 winner on Friday, a daughter of BOLN3 Point Maker 90-1 out of a NEWN0 Homeboy 1-4. Payton’s gilt was one of the most extreme pieces shown on Friday. Her stout head and forearm shape were second to none. The impressive part is, she handled all the feature and muscle she had in a good package. She found a new home in Illinois with Brent Bolen.

Class 4 winner goes to Sydney Cain, Iowa. This daughter of JL3 Score 14-8 went on to be named Champion Hampshire Gilt later in the day. This gilt, in my mind, was one that not only covered all the bases of build, body and look, but she had the head carriage and height of shoulder we are all trying to make. A great female got a great home as she headed to Taylor Blythe’s place in Illinois.

We only had three classes of boars, this year, at WPX, but I think three really good classes, and it didn’t take long to find the pieces that different guys needed to find. The Class 1 winner was lot 142-2 from Korb Farms Inc, Ohio. The Korb entry came in and took the crowd by storm. He was a really athletic and good-designed boar, who took to the surface with comfort and ease. He is sired by Outlaw 27-3, a private treaty purchase from Harvey Family, Indiana, now housed at Shaffer’s Goldrush, Indiana. This guy has a true shot to not only make Hampshires better, but will work on crosses, as well. I would encourage you to order your semen early from Upperhand Genetics, Indiana; their high-selling purchase with Kilmer Swine Farms, Indiana, will be incredibly popular come breeding time.

Winning Class 2 was lot 5-3 from Earl L. Cain and Family, Iowa. Their entry, a son of CAIN3 Head Turner 111-2, hit me as one that combines muscle and shape up high, all while being a notch bigger kind of boar who is tall shouldered and good designed. His angles read correct and comfortable, and he met the surface with big feet and toes. Paul and Lance Martin, Missouri, will put this guy to work.

Cain wins Class 3, as well, with a son of BKW3 Real Tree 28-1. This particular boar later became the Reserve Champion Hampshire Boar, at this year’s WPX. Lot 5-2 is one that is really complete and blends function with added muscle and bulk. He’s got the basic square build and big forearm with all the muscle and design extras anyone could use, but when you get up on him, he still has lots of top shape, a big pin set and

While the Landrace show may not have set the world on fire in terms of numbers, quality ran deep at this year’s World Pork Expo (WPX). Ask anyone who stood ringside at this year’s show, and I am sure they would confirm this set was an exciting one. Brandon Ogle of Nokomis, Illinois, had the privilege of sorting through the Landrace. Speaking highly of the entries, Brandon moved through the set in an efficient manner. Thanks again, Brandon, on a job well done.

This year’s Premier Landrace Sire was KYIK3 PSSS Blade Runner 6-7, owned by Prairie State Semen Supply, Illinois, and the Reserve Premier Landrace Sire was KORB2 Revolution 12-2, owned by Russell Whewell, Illinois. These sires are certainly no stranger to success on the national stage. Congratulations to both firms on an outstanding WPX.

The Champion Landrace Boar, this year, was a single entry from Korb Farms, Inc., Oxford, Ohio. This one was as intriguing as any boar to hit the Landrace ring, in recent years. This son of this year’s Reserve Premier Sire was heavy structured and read with the power up high and underneath that is hard to find in this breed, yet still handled it in an attractive, athletic fashion. Congratulations to the crew at Premium Blend Genetics, Indiana, on their purchase of this unique breeding piece.

The gilt show came loaded with quality, and if you were a junior member looking to jump start your herd, there were some foundation females available for a good price. Congratulations to Eleanor Borba, California. She drove a pair of littermates to Grand and Reserve Champion Gilt honors, this year. These daughters of the Premier Sire Blade Runner 6-7, highlighted a maternal look with the added balance and basic build to make great additions to the new owner’s operation. Thanks to Cash Lehrman, South Dakota, for his $2,100 investment on the Champion, and good luck in the future. The Reserve Champion was purchased in partnership between Lexi, Macy and Makenzi Marek, Iowa. Thank you, girls, and best of luck on your new Landrace program.

Class 1 winner was exhibited by Madelyn Harrison, Ohio. She drove a daughter of the Reserve Premier Sire, Revolution 12-2. This littermate to the Champion Boar reflected a lot of similar traits as her brother, having the extra width and dimension accompanied with a functional skeleton and a show ring look. Wisconsin Syndicate, Wisconsin, picked up a really nice female with a bright future.

Wyatt Debusk, California, was second in Class 1 with his WCMP3 Shark Tank 2-2 daughter. She was another really outstanding, competitive female that holds a lot of promise for her new owner, Heidi Benner, Pennsylvania.

Now is as exciting of a time as ever for the Landrace breed. With continual improvements being made and quality on the rise, Landrace breeders certainly have a lot to be proud of. Please keep in mind, Landrace will now have the opportunity to sell at all NSR-sanctioned type conferences. Thanks to all the exhibitors, and congratulations to all the breeders on a great WPX – job well done.

CD03 BRUNO 273-8 x RWG0 NET WORTH 233-1

Shown by Daniel Newnum, Ind.

Sold to DJ Sanders, Ill., for $3,500.
Exhausting is the word that best describes the 2015 World Pork Expo (WPX). We had the largest Expo in history; there were 975 exhibitors in the junior show and 2,200 head of hogs in the NJSA shows. Many of those 975 junior exhibitors decided to double enter their hogs, show them again Friday and run them through the sale ring Saturday. My hat is off to all the exhibitors and breeders that made this show a record breaker!

Friday rolled around, and the Yorkshires ended the purebred shows for the day. Ben Bobell of Lincoln, Illinois, stepped into the ring this year to sort the stock; he was assisted by his father, Larry Bobell. This pair handled the task of sorting through the large set of Yorkshire hogs with ease. The Premier Yorkshire Sire went to last year’s world-record setting boar CDNO4 In Control 3-7, owned by Moyer’s Genetic Edge and Reynolds Family in Ohio. The Reserve Premier Yorkshire Sire was awarded to HAF3 Pants Down 18-5, owned by Upperhand Genetics in Indiana.

Chuck and Ben Olsen of Irene, South Dakota, drove the Champion Boar that started the sale. This son of CDO3 Bruno 273-8 had an awesome skeleton. The way he handled his hip and hind leg was a sight to see. This guy could flat float across the ring. Combine his show ring look with a comfortable skeleton and pedigree that is improving the Yorkshire breed, this one has a chance to move you forward. He made his way to Bloomingburg, Ohio, with Jim and Mike McCoy for the price of $3,500.

The Reserve Champion Boar was driven by Kevin Ricker of Ricker Yorkshires, Fort Jennings, Ohio. His entry was sired by CDNO4 In Control 3-7. This boar is wide and square in his chest floor, opens into a great rib cage and leaves you square and wide from behind. He is stout headed and big footed, plus he looks like a breeding hog. He is a massive, rugged-built boar that should help stouten up a sow herd. He will make his new home in Albany, Indiana, with Shaffer’s Goldrush. They paid $27,000 to take this high-selling Yorkshire boar home.

Final Drive Genetics, Shipshewana, Indiana, drove the next boar into the sale ring; his boar won the second class of the day. This son of LFC3 The Journey 34-8 is massive and stout in his build, big in his forearm, square down his top and square and true from behind. He is tall fronted and good in all the places Yorkshires can use help. He will go to work for Ed Meers of Stewardson, Illinois, for $1,700.

Causermaker Family Genetics, Atkinson, Illinois, drove the winning entry from Class 3 to the sale ring next. He is sired by CDNO4 Seize Control 3-4. This one is square built, fresh centered and heavy muscled. He has a great look from the profile and has all the muscle needed to make competitive barrows in the junior shows. He sold to Donald Roy Naves Jr. and Family of Pleasant Grove, California, for the price of $1,700.

The last boar I am going to discuss was exhibited by Malcom Family Farms of Hunteertown, Indiana. He is a son of RNSP3 The Godfather 4-6 and placed second in the youngest class of the day. Guys, this one had a lot of friends in the barn. This one is monster ribbed, deep flanked and looks like he has an appetite. He is big nosed, stout headed and has a huge root to his tail. If you need to stouten up your sow herd and still maintain a show ring look call Premium Blend Genetics of Arlington, Indiana, to book semen. He sold for $21,000.

As always, the gilt show was loaded with great Yorkshire females, and we kicked off the sale with the entry from Cole Wilcox, Bedford, Indiana. Cole brought us a special one! She is sire by HAF3 Pants Down 18-5. This female is sound. She can float around the ring. She is wide skeletoned and has a great shape to her rib and rear flank. Plus, she is ideal in her frame size, long bodied, has a great underline and is huge legged. This foundation female will make her new home with Will Hilty of Mt. Pleasant, Pennsylvania. He paid $10,000 for this lady, making her the high-selling Yorkshire female at the 2015 WPX.

Daniel Newnam of Kingman, Indiana, drove his Reserve Champion Gilt to the ring next; she won the sixth class of the day. This daughter of CDO3 Bruno 273-8 is a stout-made, tall-fronted gilt who is wide from front to rear. She has an up-headed attitude and a killer look on the profile. DJ Sanders of Martinsville, Illinois, decided to add this lady to his herd at the price of $3,500.

SHOWS

DJ Bauer of Huntington, Indiana, exhibited the gilt that placed second behind the champion in Class 7. His 62-5 gilt is a littermate to Cole’s champion. If you were looking for show ring presence, this was the gilt for you. She is tall fronted, feminine featured and has great length and extension to her front end. This brood sow prospect will make her way to El Centro, California, with Desert Showpigs. They paid $7,000 to own this female.

Next in the ring was the consignment from Kinley Meadors of Rockdale, Texas, with a daughter of HAF3 Pants Down 18-5. If you like your gilts stout featured and correct in their build, this one is for you. She sold to Team Burkett Showpigs of Punxsutawney, Pennsylvania, for $3,250.

Charly Rivers, Amite, Louisiana, drove the Class 4 winning gilt to the ring next. Charly’s gilt is sired by ABD3 Dress to Kill 1-3. This lady looks like a barrow marker — tall at the point of her shoulder, level down her top line and wide underneath with tons of power. She will go home with Matt Conant of Rio Oso, California, for the price of $3,000.

Brock Sheetz of Fort Madison, Iowa, drove the Class 5 winning entry to the ring next. His gilt is sired by CDNO4 In Control 3-7. This brood sow prospect was not the prettiest headed, but from her shoulders back, she was good! She was big centered and had an awesome running gear and skeleton. This female will go to work for James Thompson, Frankfort, Indiana, for the price of $900.

Up next was the entry from Kale Boysen with a daughter of LMML2 Shooting Star that won the youngest class. This tall-fronted, level-designed gilt is really correct in her build. I think this little lady has a bright future. She will head to Jeanerette, Louisiana, with Jared Landry for $1,500.

Next to the ring was an entry from Kastin Wilde from Big Lake, Texas, with a daughter of RIY3 Ricochet 32-4 that won Class 3. This lady was massive and stout in her build. She goes to R&K Showpigs of Lakefield, Minnesota, for the price $3,500.

Next in the ring was the winning entry from Class 2, owned by Randy Wirt and Family of Parker, South Dakota. They drove a heavy-duty, stout-featured daughter of SSFS3 Untouchable 6-1. She sold to Fresno State University Swine Herd of Fresno, California, for $1,750.

Braden Steidley of Claremore, Texas, drove the popular entry from the youngest class of the day to the ring next. She is sired by RIY3 Ricochet 32-4, this January 12 gilt was great on her feet and legs, looked like a show gilt and still had some gas left in her tank. She should get nothing except better for Jason Oliver of Velma, Oklahoma, who paid $7,250 to load her on his trailer.

The next gilt in was one I should have had higher in the sale order. She won the oldest class of the day and was consigned by Reynolds Farms of Wayne, Ohio. This was a heavy-duty, big-forearmed gilt that had great range of motion. Dan Burzlaff did not miss this daughter of CDNO4 In Control 3-7. He paid $1,600 to take her back to Delmar, Iowa.

This was a good Yorkshire show. There were a ton of people that helped pull this event together, so please make sure and thank them the next time you see them. Joe Grinstead and John Paul, thank you guys for your assistance all week. Your help was hugely appreciated. Thanks to the Lake Land crew for helping in the ring. Special thanks to Dan Baker of West Lafayette, Indiana, for serving as the auctioneer of the Yorkshire sale. I would also like to so say a special thank you to the crew from Walton Webcasting; it was great working with you guys! Thanks to Don Frailey for helping take bids – it is always a pleasure to work with an experienced and talented crew. Thanks to everyone who helped to make this record setting WPX run so smoothly. I will see you all in Louisville!

The Crossbred Show at the World Pork Expo (WPX) has turned into a must-attend event, if you are serious about improving your crossbred program. Huge is the only word I can use to describe this year’s show. 263 head of boars were shown in the open show, and 68 head of boars made their way through the ring Friday evening. Jason Lackey of Haskell, Texas, stepped into the ring to evaluate this year’s show. He asked veteran Yorkshire breeder Kevin Ricker of Fort Jennings, Ohio, to assist him. These two gentlemen did an outstanding job of working through this large show and getting a sale ordered lined up for Saturday. Jason and Kevin, thank you for a job well done.

On Saturday afternoon it was time for the Crossbred Sale to begin. Col. Ron Kreis, Ohio, had the duty of selling this offering. As always, he was professional and efficient, as we worked through the sale. Thank you, Ron, for a world-class job.

W-D Swine Farms, Turlock, California, drove the Champion Crossbred Boar entry 25-2. He is a son of Sky’s the Limit and out of a Drop Shot sow. Ryan’s boar is tall at the point of his shoulder, good looking from the side, heavy structured and big footed. He is adequate in terms of width, muscle and rib shape. If you need a boar that is athletic and great looking, call Jim and Mike McCoy of Bloomingburg, Ohio. They paid $22,000 to take this guy to Real McCoy Genetics.

Kirkpatrick Farms of Fox, Oklahoma, was in the ring next with their Reserve Champion Boar, also sired by Sky’s the Limit, out of a Rename sow. Willie’s boar is more of a power hog: he is bold in his blade shape, big centered and tracked away wide from behind. His top is square and wide from the top of his blade to his pin set. If you need a shot of mass and power and like blue belts, call Genetic Edge of Wauseon, Ohio. They paid $21,000 to take this one home with them.

The winning entry from Class 6 was driven by Austin Kindschi of Orlando, Oklahoma. Austin’s boar is sired by Judgement and out of a Man Among Boys sow. The best way to describe this guy is to call him complete. He is bigger than what some people call moderate, but he is not a giant-framed boar. He is square at his knee and chest, has a great head carriage and show ring look from the side and is packed full of muscle. He sold to Wooden Swine Farm of Cassopolis, Michigan, for $4,200.

Small Town Genetics of Denair, California, drove the winner from Class 4. James’ boar is sired by No Regrets out of a Relentless sow. This guy had as much shape coming right out of his blade as any hog in the show. He is tall fronted and level down his top, yet still sound and mobile in the ring. Genetic Edge added him to their lineup of sires for the price of $7,000.

Peters Show Pigs of Maxwell, Iowa, had the winning entry from Class 1. Their boar is sired by Ruthless and has a Bone Collector mother. This one has the design and build to make hogs that will compete in the show ring, if used on the right kind of sows. He is what some people call a totals hog: I call him complete and correctly balanced with no major problems. He sold to Swine Genetics International of Cambridge, Iowa, for $28,000.

The next few boars I am going to discuss need mentioning, but placed a little lower in the sale order. Seth and Derek Warren of Glenwood, Iowa, drove a popular entry that placed second in Class 1. Their boar is sired by Above the Rest and out of a No Fare sow. If your goal is to make barrows stout enough to get a pen, yet correct enough to survive a long drive in the show ring, then this one needs to be on your radar. He is not a freak in any area, he’s just an honest, good hog – this fieldman was a fan of this one. Call Crossroads Genetics in Indiana to book semen on this year’s high-selling boar. He brought $40,000.

Erica Keen of Purcell, Oklahoma, drove a blue-marked boar that placed fourth in Class 3. He is sired by Bright Lights and out of a Refresh sow. This guy was one of the stoutest-featured and heaviest-structured boar in the show. He had a wide, stout skull, clean jaw line, big even toes and big legs. If he sounds like one you can use, call Jerry Robinson of El Reno, Oklahoma. He paid $25,000 to take him home.

Last but not least to discuss is the entry from Midwest Genetics of Glenwood, Iowa. Steve’s boar is sired by Trigger and out of Suzanne (Monumental’s mother). If you are looking to use a carrier that is big footed, heavy boned and stout, then look in. This one is square and wide in the lower third of his skeleton, big centered and heavy muscled. He is fresh and youthful in his appearance. He sold to Purple Power Boar Stud of Chalmers, Indiana, for $26,000.

After a record-setting crossbred sale last year, the crew at NSR knew we would have a huge, high-quality gilt show in 2015. The Junior Show had 456 crossbred gilts entered, and 263 head were shown in the Open Show Friday evening. With 15 classes of these ladies, I will not talk about every class winner, but here are the highlights.

The Champion Crossbred Gilt at the 2015 WPX was exhibited by Shelby Weinrich of Willows, California. This daughter of Sentimental x Super Lucky won Class 11. She is one that kept catching my attention during the champion drive. Not only did her angles read right, but she was heavy structured and had an easy-doing, practical type of rib and body shape that never goes out of style. When the hammer fell, it took $8,000 for the crew from R&K Showpigs of Lakefield, Minneosta, to load her on their trailer.

There is one other perk, other than prizes and awards for being named champion of any breed in the NJSA show; it’s a ticket to the front of the sale order, if the exhibitor wants to sell their gilt. This year, Hannah Hilton of Texas chose to punch her ticket with her Grand Champion Crossbred Gilt under Judge...
Seth Swenson of Illinois. Hannah's gilt is sired by Fortune and out of a Magic Mike sow; she beat 455 other gilts in a highly-competitive Junior Show. Congratulations to the Hilton family on their success. This lady was a favorite of many ringside, and it doesn't take a judging team book to describe her. This gilt is simply good livestock! She is square and correct from her toes to the top of her blade, wide in her pin set and square and correct in her hock. She has all the basic covered that a brood sow should have, but also has those special extras in terms of muscle, bone and look to be a truly special show gilt. Duane Taulman and Family of Remington, Indiana, loaded a foundation female on their trailer for $20,000 when they had the winning bid Friday afternoon.

Next up was the Reserve Champion from the Open Show exhibited by Alida and Hallie Jackson of Danville, Indiana. Their Iconic x Colt 45 daughter was tall fronted and good looking; she caught your eye as soon as she hit the ring. She's not out there in any area, just a correct, balanced gilt that checks off all the basics and won't get you in trouble. She sold to Mullins Taulman and Family of Remington, Indiana, loaded a foundation female on their trailer for $20,000 when they had the winning bid Friday afternoon.

Logan Cox of Spiro, Oklahoma, was up next with the winning entry from Class 14. This Bone Yard x Analyze This gilt has a great look from the side, and she's tall shouldered and extended from her blade forward. She is square in her chest and front knee, soft middled and has just the right amount of muscle to hopefully produce winning barrows. She sold to Doug Lechner of Madison, South Dakota, for $2,000.

Blake and Katie Davis of Paragould, Arkansas, drove one of the stoutest-featured gilts in the show to the ring next. She is sired by Goose and out of a Face This sow. If you are into monster-chested, big-centered gilts that are moderate framed and heavy muscled, then this one was your kind. She sold to Final Drive Genetics of Shiphehanna, Indiana, for $7,500.

The high-selling gilt of the day hit the ring next, an entry from Hallie and Kari Landry of Jeanerette, Louisiana. This Bone N Hand x Warfare daughter won her class in both the Open and Junior Shows. This gilt caught everyone's eye when she hit the ring. She is a heads-up show gilt through and through that has great ring presence. The angles to her skeleton are correct, she's tall fronted and has all the rib and bone you could want. Rockin' G Showpigs of Sentinel, Oklahoma, has a plan for this one. Bob paid $24,000 to take her home.

There are several more gilts that can be mentioned and tons more that sold Saturday with tremendous breeding value that will impact many programs. All in all, 106 gilts sold in the auction for an average of $1,788.21. Congratulations to all the individuals who bid, bought or offered their gilts in the sale. This was the largest show I have been part of, and the future looks bright for the WPX for years to come.

Thank you to all the volunteers that help run boards in the ring and helped the NSR crew all week. We could not have pulled this show off without your assistance!

   A. Certificate must show name and address of consignor; consigned to NBS®, Mower County Fairgrounds, 700 12th Street SW, Austin, MN 55912; official identification of hog; and health status of hog, including dates and laboratory location of required tests and vaccinations.

   B. Multiple animals may be listed on the same original health certificate. Two photocopies of the original health certificate must be provided for each animal.

   C. Include your veterinarian's cell phone number on health certificates.

   D. All animals being exhibited at the National Barrow Show must be tagged with an official, permanently-numbered ear tag. For more information on official ear tags, visit www.nationalswine.com/shows/ear_tags.php.

2. All certificates must be issued on or after Aug. 17, 2015, with the following information:

   A. All breeding swine (market animals excluded) must be tested for Pseudorabies (PRV) and Brucellosis after Aug. 17, 2015, unless they come from a PRV-qualified and Brucellosis-validated herd. Swine tested for PRV and Brucellosis must show the date blood sample was drawn. The Elisa, PCFIA, ALA or S/N tests are acceptable. Differentiable Elisa test will not be accepted. If the herd of origin is PRV qualified and Brucellosis validated, individual testing will not be required. In this case, the PRV qualification and Brucellosis validation numbers must appear on the certificate and complete date must be stated.

   B. All breeding swine coming to the show MUST be vaccinated against Leptospirosis (6-way) including bratislava and erysipelats. The complete date of vaccination MUST be listed on the health certificate. Market animals should not be vaccinated.

   D. A premise ID number is required on your health papers.

3. Market animals are not required to be blood tested but must meet all items listed under 1, 2C and 2D.

GENERAL INFORMATION

Entry fees must accompany the entry form and all late entries will be charged double the regular fee. NSR reserves the right to close entries any time after the printed deadline. All entry fees are non-refundable. Entries must be postmarked by Aug. 14, 2015.

All breeding animals entered at the NBS® must have been owned by Aug. 14, 2015, by the exhibitor.

Crossbred boars: Stress status of your entry will be placed in the show and sale catalog (this is a show and sale requirement). A documented stress test must be presented at check-in.

All entries must be ear notched using the official NSR system. All entries must be recorded by Aug. 14, 2015, or they will be charged a rush fee. All exhibitors must be NSR junior or senior members.

No entry or substitute entry will be allowed to show or sell without a registration certificate. Entries will be divided into classes, as equal as possible, by farrowing date.

All hogs must arrive on the grounds between 8 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 12, and noon on Sunday, Sept. 13. All animals must meet NBS® health requirements to remain on the fairgrounds. This includes animals in transit.

If all hogs meet show requirements, NBS® entries may be unloaded and non-entries may stay in your vehicle at the south end of the fairgrounds. There is some shade, but no utilities.

If non-show animals meet Minnesota import requirements, but not NBS® requirements, show animals may be unloaded and remaining animals must be immediately removed from the fairgrounds. A parking lot is available south of the fairgrounds across the street. The welfare and care of these animals is the owner's responsibility. There is some shade, but no utilities.

If any animals in your vehicle do not meet Minnesota import requirements, all animals will be refused entry, including NBS® animals.

No clipping is allowed in the barns.

EXHIBITORS & ELIGIBILITY

Exhibitors must be an active member of NSR, or they will be required to pay the $75 NSR maintenance fee.

Entries are limited to four purebred boars and four purebred open gilts per breed (Duroc, Hampshire, Landrace and Yorkshire), and two crossbred boars per exhibitor. Breeding animals must be farrowed on Jan. 15, 2015, or after, and must have at least six teats on each side. Market animals must be farrowed on Feb. 1, 2015, or after.

All entries must meet their respective breed requirements. Entries that do not meet these requirements will not be allowed to show or sell at the conference.

BREEDING ANIMAL SALE

A minimum of 60 percent of the number of each sex (boars and gilts) shown will be selected for the sale. These animals will be selected with no set number selling from any single class. Animals not selected for the sale can be consigned to the sale for an additional fee of $20 per head. If the animal sells, the fee will be applied toward the sale commission. If the animal does not sell, the fee is forfeited.

All animals selected and cataloged for the sale must go through the auction. Sale commission will be 15 percent for all animals. If an animal that is selected and cataloged for the sale does not go through the sale ring, the exhibitor will be banned from their respective breed sale. This amount must be paid before reinstatement will be allowed. The exception... to this rule will be if the animal has become injured or ill, and the animal is inspected by a NSR staff member prior to the sale.

» The NSR acts only as the agent between the buyer and seller. If proper payment is made by the buyer in a timely manner, the NSR will make settlement with the seller in approximately 30 days after the sale.

» If an exhibitor has an account that is past due, funds from the sale of their animals will be applied to their NSR account.

» There will be no refund of NSR commission from animals that are carriers of the color gene.

DNA STRESS STATEMENT

A big thanks to Shaffer’s Goldrush, Ind., for purchasing this stout boar! When I did a pedigree search on Crowd Control, I found nine sows on the dam’s side of the pedigree that have generated, and I can still see their phenotype in my mind. This goes back quite a few years. I can’t do that with many!

Career PROFILE

By AgCareers.com

Making the most of extracurricular activities

“It’s not what you say, it’s how you say it,” is an old adage you may have heard before. In terms of your résumé, the same could be true with a slightly different spin: ‘it’s not what you’ve done, it’s how you describe what you’ve done.’ Successful sales people often have very effective résumés because they know how to package their experiences efficiently. For example, taking part in a study abroad program is often a single line on someone’s résumé. From an employer’s perspective, we appreciate knowing you’ve had such an experience, but elaborate with a few bullet points that relate your experience back to the position you’re applying for or if developing a generic resume, to give your experience more validity.

An example would be if you took a trip to New Zealand and toured a sheep farm. That could be articulated on a résumé as doing a comparative study of sheep production practices between the U.S. and New Zealand. Or a trip to Russia to experience the decline in beef production could be listed as studying the need for extension services in foreign countries to prevent such decline. Many study abroad programs require participants to prepare a report following their experience. Think about how components of that report could be relative in a business setting and turn them into bullet points on your résumé. Those key words or phrases, and the fact that you can connect those dots, are what will catch an employer’s eye when conducting a quick scan of your résumé.

Another example of maximizing an extracurricular activity on your résumé would be any volunteer experience you’ve had. Often this activity gets sub-categorized into a single line on a résumé, when in reality the experience sheds a great deal of light on the development of your employability skills. For example, you volunteered as a coach for the Special Olympics in your area. If you do not have much work experience to include on your résumé, this heading could be followed by bullet points such as: developed communication skills by coaching two disabled Olympians to help them accomplish a goal, worked with a team of trainers to establish individualized training plans for two athletes and executed various community fundraising activities to raise $400 for two area Special Olympics athletes.

Lastly, you can maximize your involvement in extracurricular activities by getting to know fellow members of your organization, especially alumni who are large contributors or who spend time connected to the organization. This is not only true while you are a current member, but when you find yourself as an alumnus. This network of professionals with similar interests will more than likely be in comparable careers at companies with whom you may be hoping to work. Having a connection such as being in the same fraternity, sorority or organization could be the ice breaker that helps you strike up a conversation that leads to an interview.

While academics are crucial and you can’t earn your diploma without paying close attention to grades, the best candidates for careers are those who have the total package. Your involvement in clubs, organizations, social societies, volunteer experiences and other extracurricular activities will help you develop the total package, giving you the competitive edge.

Supreme Champion Jr. Gilt, 2015 San Antonio
Congratulations to Jensen Mctee

Res. Champion Boar, 2015 UPX
Thanks to North Iowa Boar Semen, Iowa, for their $11,000 purchase.
Steve Nichols had the opportunity to judge the 1997 Houston Junior Market Barrow show. There, he set his eyes on what he believed was the best hog of his time. This Hampshire barrow was shown by Ashley Wellman of Brenham, Texas, and Nichols would select him as Grand Champion later in the show. Nichols says, for that time, the barrow was certainly one of the best he had ever seen and still sticks out for that period of livestock shows. The barrow was sired by The Ritz.

After judging probably over 600 shows, he is still one of the best for his day.
