If there was anything that rivaled my passion for livestock, as a kid, it was basketball. March Madness was a special time of year, in our home. At 8-years-old, I’d tirelessly work on knocking down the game-winning shot on the goal in the barn, only to be awarded my dad’s 1971 Reserve Grand Champion Steer trophy as NCAA Champs. I often fell asleep at night holding a basketball after doing layup drills in the living room during TV timeouts. To this day, I can recite every line from the movie Hoosiers. I could easily identify with Ollie, the vertically-challenged, perineal bench-warmer that sent the Hickory Huskers to the state finals after hitting two clutch free throws underhanded. So, when I had the opportunity to meet one of the most legendary figures in all of sports during my sophomore year of college, I jumped at the chance.

The day was Friday, Nov. 28, 2003, and I had been invited by my future wife, Molly, to attend a reception for the John Wooden Tradition Basketball Tournament in Indianapolis. John Wooden, the “Wizard of Westwood,” and the winningest coach in the history of college basketball was coming back to Indiana to be part of the weekend festivities. The late Wooden is considered one of the greatest coaches in all of sports, winning an unprecedented 10 National Championships in a span of 12 years at UCLA, seven of which were won consecutively. His legacy goes far beyond the court due to the lessons he’s left behind for all of us to learn from.

I walked into a banquet room at Banker’s Life Fieldhouse, that evening, to find countless movers and shakers in the world of basketball, including Rick Pitino, Steve Alford, Jim Nantz, Billy Huggins, Gene Keady and many others. But, when coach Wooden walked to the podium, at age 92, you could have heard a pin drop. It was as if Wooden was delivering a pre-game talk to his Bruin in the locker room. What happened next was even more memorable for me.

Molly had always claimed their family knew “Coach.” Until this night, I was a skeptic. Like everyone else, we waited in line at the conclusion of the banquet in hopes of getting a quick handshake and autograph from Wooden. We were the next people to approach the signing table, when Coach recognized Molly. He stood up, hugged her, shook my hand and then asked Molly to sit on his knee. The shock really set in when Coach’s first words to Molly were, “So, how are the Durocs?” The same man that molded Bill Walton and Lew Alcindor into All-Americans was asking my future wife how her pig crop looked at home. It was then, I realized behind all the accolades was a genuine man, raised on a farm in Centerton, Indiana, who never forgot his roots and was most concerned with making people feel valued.

It would have been much easier for the then 92-year-old Wooden to walk out of that room following his last words on the microphone to avoid all the chaos. Instead, he used this opportunity to look each person in the eye, shake their hand and spend a few seconds just listening to them with a genuine interest. Coach Wooden graciously gave each person a moment of his time, something we could all learn from.

We talk a lot among our NSR staff about the importance of youth development and making our younger breeders and exhibitors feel welcome. Just as so many looked up to Coach Wooden for all his successes, youth in the swine industry look up to accomplished hog breeders and industry leaders with the same admiration. What made Wooden special was the fact that, above all, he was a teacher most concerned with instilling values in his players rather than wins or losses. Reading the accounts of his former players, you will find Wooden simply used the game of basketball to prepare his players for the game of life.

Highly-competitive pigs at very affordable prices (all pre-priced $250 to $500).
If two or more people want the same pig, a bid-off at 10 a.m. will determine new owner.
Showing pigs has always been a family affair. My parents and I would work in the barn. My grandparents would adjust their chairs by the ring to get the perfect view at the fair. My cousins, from the city, would watch and think I was absolutely insane. When I was 11, my family dynamic took a shift; I was no longer the only child. Some kids may have been jealous they were no longer the baby; however, I was ecstatic. My parents told me I would always have to be a positive role model, and my brother, Brogan, may want to tag along at times when I did not want a sidekick. Each of my parent’s admonitions came true, but little did I know how much Brogan would actually teach me.

Brogan loves being outdoors. I would be in the barn working with pigs; he would be chasing kittens or riding the goats in the pasture. The kid knows every fact about dinosaurs and could spend hours in the pool. But, he never seemed to get excited about showing pigs. We would try to give him advice on showing, but he never seemed to listen. Thinking Brogan may learn better from someone who was not family, we had close family friends help. When I completed my tenth year in 4-H, it was time for me to go to Purdue University, and I felt my chances to influence Brogan in the barn were over.

When I moved to West Lafayette, Indiana, I did not come home every weekend. The time came for me to find a summer internship, and I took one that allowed me to live at home for Brogan’s first year in 4-H. Over the course of the summer, I watched him gain confidence in himself and improve each time he entered the ring. With me being gone at school and busy with my internship, I cannot take the credit for his improvements. My parents and close family friends put in hours with him and found ways to get him excited. I knew he always valued having me stand ringside and give him a high-five, when he came out of the ring.

This past year, Brogan showed his Hampshire gilt at the National Junior Summer Spectacular (NJSS). We did not think she would be winning the show, but we thought she was a respectable entry with a decent shot at top five in the class. When the judge directed Brogan to ninth, we were disappointed. Those that know me have labeled me a worrier, and I was worried how Brogan would feel. He had been feeling confident and excited, and I did not want this show to halt his momentum. After the show, he saw the disappointed looks on our faces and smiled ear to ear.

“What’s wrong?” he asked. “I wasn’t last. I’ve got ten more years. Don’t worry. It’ll be fine.”

We looked at each other and immediately smiled. Learning how to maneuver around the ring and answer questions are not the only factors that make up a good showman. Attitude is a key component. I watched Brogan have a positive attitude and bring smiles to those around him all summer. He has exemplified everything my parents told us about our behavior inside and outside of the ring. For those participating in senior showmanship, remember, a budding novice is sitting on the front row learning from you. Never miss the opportunity to learn from those younger than you; when we get upset or overwhelmed, an innocent yet positive attitude can make a difference. Don’t worry. It’ll be fine.

Fifty-eight career profiles in seven different agricultural pathways can be found at: www.agcareers.com/career-profiles/
For a process supposed to unite our country, I’d argue democracy has created some pretty great divisions lately. From shouting on the stage of debates to shouting over the Internet, Americans all seem to have their opinion. The most unsettling part is, it seems everyone believes their opinion is the only one.

Anyone who doesn’t agree with our stance on an issue is most certainly wrong, and we don’t mind telling them just how wrong they are. Facebook is filled with political rants, name calling and even misguided claims which are hardly supported by facts. While I appreciate the passion and concern for the democratic process, I’m counting down days to this election just to avoid the constant steam of negativity. There may have been a day when “politics” was a revered word, but these days it seems to leave a bad taste in everyone’s mouth.

The same can be said in the show ring. I don’t know how many times I heard individuals coming out of the ring a little disgruntled about a placing mutter about politics. Like the commentary on the presidential campaign, to showmen and women it seems oftentimes there can only be one opinion. If you will sacrifice a little look to drive a power hog, you simply can’t grasp being beaten by a barrow with a killer profile but less base. The answer is always politics. The judge knew who raised the champion. They always use hogs out of a certain boar, or perhaps they’re just not that intelligent. Obviously, judges should agree with your own criteria for the perfect show barrow, right?

While it would be nice, if every judge would agree with your vision, it isn’t realistic. The livestock industry will always be diverse. Every producer has slightly different priorities because they work in their production environment. After all, you won’t see many eared cattle in Minnesota, will you? The beauty of the livestock industry is it’s made up of great stockmen and women around the country – and even the world. Each one has a unique perspective through their own life experiences. They know what works best for them, and they have tricks from their trade to share with their peers.

Stock shows, like the democratic process, started as a way for producers to gather and bring their best animals and ideas. They would then hash it out together, talk about their experiences, the future of the industry and what they consider the ideal breeding or market animal of the time. Perhaps we’ve gotten so busy chasing banners, we’ve forgotten about the value of having an evaluator look through a set of animals and give their thoughts. Will you always agree? Of course not, but you can still learn.

Now, I’m not saying your opinion and values aren’t important. Everyone has a set of principles they have created through their experiences. Whether you’re in the polling booth or show ring, you should stand by those principles, and do your part to contribute to the future of our industry and our country. But at the end of the day, the Biblical adage, “Be quick to listen and slow to speak,” will earn you a lot of respect. Plus, you never know what you may learn from another perspective.

“Whether you’re in the polling booth or show ring, you should stand by those principles, and do your part to contribute to the future of our industry and our country.”

The final countdown to antibiotic changes

PRODUCERS URGED TO TAKE ACTION NOW

By Mike King :: Science Communications Director, National Pork Board

Have you somehow missed the news that the Food and Drug Administration (FDA)’s new antibiotic regulations go into effect on Jan. 1, 2017? If you have, don’t despair. You still have just under nine months to prepare for what’s sure to be some of the biggest changes to affect livestock farmers, including showpig breeders and exhibitors, than ever before.

“If producers have not already done so, they should sit down with their veterinarians and determine what they need to do to comply with the new veterinary feed directive (VFD) and prescription requirement for water-based medications,” said Jennifer Koeman, DVM, Pork Checkoff’s director of producer and public health.

SIX STEPS TO SUCCESS
To help keep it simple and straightforward, the Pork Checkoff has created six steps known by the acronym, USCARE, as a way to remember what steps you should take in 2016 to ensure successful compliance with the new FDA regulations.

“If producers and exhibitors follow these steps, they’ll be well on their way to being prepared for the upcoming changes,” Koeman said. “It’s an easy way to ensure that you’ve checked off the things you need to do toward meeting the new regulations.”

 ✓ Understand the new feed (VFD) and water (Rx) rules.
 ✓ Strengthen your vet-client-patient relationship (VCPR).
 ✓ Communicate with your feed mill.
 ✓ Assess your herd-health and welfare strategies.
 ✓ Renew your commitment to responsible antibiotic use.
 ✓ Ensure your record-keeping compliance.

HAVE A VALID VCPR?
If you already work with a veterinarian on a regular basis for your pigs’ health, then you’re likely in a better position than those who don’t have a valid veterinary-client-patient relationship (VCPR).

How do you know if you have a valid VCPR? Well, in part it depends on whether your state’s definition takes precedence over the federal definition (see sidebar). This can be found at pork.org/antibiotics and clicking under FDA resources. At the very least, a valid VCPR requires you to have a working relationship with a veterinarian who has first-hand knowledge of your pigs’ health status and has worked with you on an overall herd health plan.

A critical component of the VCPR, aside from the actual writing of a VFD or a prescription for a water-based medicine, is the role the veterinarian plays in record-keeping.

“More veterinarians will be offering assistance with record-keeping and specialized services for this increasingly important part of raising pigs,” Koeman said. “We know the new regulations will require all parties to keep VFD records for two years, so it’s worth seeing what your veterinarian may offer in terms of this obligation.”

What is a VCPR?
A valid veterinarian-client-patient relationship is one in which:

(1) A veterinarian has assumed the responsibility for making medical judgments regarding the health of (an) animal(s) and the need for medical treatment, and the client (the owner of the animal or animals or other caretaker) has agreed to follow the instructions of the veterinarian;

(2) There is sufficient knowledge of the animal(s) by the veterinarian to initiate at least a general or preliminary diagnosis of the medical condition of the animal(s); and

(3) The practicing veterinarian is readily available for follow-up in case of adverse reactions or failure of the regimen of therapy.

For more information about the VFD and all antibiotic changes, go to the Pork Checkoff Antibiotic Resource Center at www.pork.org/antibiotics.

Beeler appointed Director of Ag Policy

Kentucky Governor Matt Bevin appointed Warren Beeler as executive director of the Governor’s Office of Agriculture Policy. Beeler has worked for the Kentucky Department of Agriculture for the past 16 years, most recently as director of agriculture policy. In addition to his role as director of agriculture policy, Beeler has served in other capacities during his tenure, including director of livestock marketing, director of the Shows and Fairs Division and livestock marketing specialist. Before joining the Kentucky Department of Agriculture, Beeler served as an agriculture Extension specialist at the University of Kentucky, where he helped develop the first on-farm testing program for swine in Kentucky. Beeler has also been a strong supporter of the National Junior Swine Association (NJSA) and a respected judge in the purebred livestock industry.

Huinker honored by IPPA

Wayne and Roxanne Huinker, Decorah, Iowa, were honored at the 44th annual Iowa Pork Congress Banquet for being named winners of the 2015 Master Seedstock Award by the Iowa Purebred Swine Council and the Iowa Pork Producers Association. The Huinkers have demonstrated a strong commitment to the purebred seedstock industry through more than 38 years of production experience. They started with 30 sows, in 1977, focused on commercial boar sales and central test stations. The farm raises primarily purebred Yorkshire and crossbred genetics and now sells boars and gilts as seedstock, feeder pigs, showpigs and market hogs to the commercial market through Tyson. They also raise 150 acres of corn to feed their pigs.

March 2016
Kevin Wendt remembers the moment he officially made it as a livestock auctioneer. In June of 1992, he was on the block as Gary Wall drove the Champion Hampshire Gilt into the ring at the World Pork Expo. Nervous yet confident, as the gavel fell, Wendt realized he was on his path to fulfilling a childhood dream.

The Wendt family keeps busy. Whether they’re in the farrowing barn, working a sale or traveling to one of the many shows and auctions they attend across the nation, the Wendts work as a team.
When Wendt was 9 years old, he sat next to his father at Charlie Andrews’ sale called by legendary livestock auctioneer, Colonel Merlin Woodruff. During the auction, Wendt leaned in and told his dad he wanted to be an auctioneer just like Woodruff.

“Well, son, then you’d better be a damn good one,” his father replied.

His interest in auctioneering wasn’t the only seed planted by Wendt’s family in Northern Ohio. On their 230-acre diversified farm, Wendt learned many valuable life lessons caring for livestock and crops, as well as through his involvement in 4-H and FFA. He used FFA banquet charity auctions as an opportunity to call bids, and as part of his FFA project he purchased his first bred gilt. Like youth projects tend to do, that bred gilt turned into the foundation of a life-long passion for the purebred swine industry.

“It just seems like I could never get pigs out of my system,” Wendt explains.

His love for the livestock industry took Wendt to The Ohio State University’s College of Agriculture, and his goal to be a premier purebred auctioneer led him to the Reppert School of Auctioneering in ’86, as a sophomore in college.

After graduation, Wendt had a brief stint as a fieldman for his beloved Belted Breed, before turning his attention to auctioneering full time. It was during this period he was introduced to his future wife, Megan, by a farming friend. While Megan was raised in the country, she had a real keen eye for it, when Wendt was 9 years old, he sat next to his father at Charlie Andrews’ sale called by legendary livestock auctioneer, Colonel Merlin Woodruff. During the auction, Wendt leaned in and told his dad he wanted to be an auctioneer just like Woodruff.

“We’d have one every night, two on Saturday and often two on Sunday,” Wendt says.

Married in 2000, the couple knew they wanted their children to grow up in the livestock industry. So, when their kids came along, they lived in a little house in town, but rented a barn outside of town to keep pigs and other 4-H projects. While passionate about auctioneering business, Wendt will tell you all the miles he traveled on the road were hard as a family man.

“I’m very fortunate to have Megan as a wife, because I put on a lot of miles doing live auctions all over,” Wendt says.

As things have an odd way of doing though, circumstances seemed to align to give the Wendt family a new way of marketing livestock, which would drastically change the face of the industry.

In 2004, Wendt received a phone call from Corey Nelson of 3N Farms in Nebraska. Nelson had purchased part of the Mapes Hampshire herd during their dispersal sale and was looking for a way to market some breeding-age gilts and a couple of boars.

“He called me up and said, ‘Hey I’m thinking about having an online auction, and you’re the guy to do it,’” Wendt recalls.

Wendt had already been thinking about the opportunity to market genetics online after buying livestock memorabilia on eBay, and now he had an opportunity to test his theory. Around this same time, friends Larry and Judy Baker approached Wendt about pursuing a website called Showpig.com.

“The Wendts reached out to their trusted mentor and friend, past NSR fieldman Ralph Doak about the idea.

“Kevin, Megan and I were going to a sale someplace. They asked what I thought, if Showpig.com had any possibilities,” Doak recalls. “I told them I didn’t think you could even give that to me in any way shape or form.”

Wendt still saw the possibilities in the website in part due to changing times in the industry. Fuel prices during this time escalated quickly, challenging the traditional way breeders marketed their show prospects. The days of loading your trailer with 30 prospects to consign to three different sales that weekend only to return home and do it again the next week, were starting to be a challenge when you put the pen to paper with higher fuel costs. At the same time, families looking for youth projects seemed to be looking for a simple way to acquire their next project. So, Wendt leaned on his reputation he’d built through more than a decade of live auctions and launched Showpig.com.

“People knew me, and they knew they could trust me,” he says. “This helped it get some legs under it and really take off. Some well-known, reputable breeders embraced the technology and it really worked for them.”

Today, Showpig.com is one of the most referenced sites in the industry.

“He’s taken Showpig.com and put a new outlook on it to make it very successful,” Doak says.

One of the biggest successes to the Wendt family is simply the ability to spend more time together.

“No, I can spend more time with my family,” Wendt says. “We live in a spot where we can get the kids off the bus and head to a live sale.”

Much of that extra family time is spent in the barn. Just as Wendt’s youth swine project morphed into... something much, much bigger, so has their children, Riley and Ethan’s. The project, once housed in a rented barn outside of town, now is considered to be a force within the Belted Breed. Their KMRE herdmark is making its way into pedigrees across the country, and they’ve raised some boars which were sold into studs, including the notable Haymaker and Golden Glove.

Like the KMRE herdmark eludes to, Wendt Livestock is truly a family affair. Any gilt purchase is discussed with the entire family, and all mating decisions are made only after both Riley and Ethan have spent hours online studying boars. Depending on their school schedules, the kids even have the opportunity to learn how some of the best in the business conduct their business, touring firms like McCoys, Cobbs and Moyer.

One of the family’s favorite days is “Selection Sunday.” Each week, the family will go through their show pen and replacement pen together. Wendt will admit he can get a little “barn blind” to a good pedigree, but Megan’s keen eye will keep their operation in check.

Both Riley and Ethan’s favorite spot on the farm is in the farrowing house. They each have their own role in processing litters – Riley does the shots, while Ethan is the teeth and tail man.

Wendt’s role in the operation is lining up the genetics, and he finds it to be a welcome challenge.

“It’s easy to raise crossbreds. It’s much more challenging to raise purebreds. However, it comes with a great reward,” he says. “When I go back to 20-30 years ago, there were farms you could go to that had a plan and a program, and they stuck with it. Now, everyone is breeding for the same thing. They’re all trying to create champion barrows, an Indiana State Fair $100,000 boar or a champion at a Type Conference. Our directions and our options are limited.”

Wendt will say most of his success comes from industry greats such as Doak, Dick Nash and Rick Maloney who took time to show him the ropes. Perhaps, this is why Wendt is so passionate about helping youth.

“Over the years, I think one thing that has made Kevin so very successful is he has helped 4-H and FFA people and their parents in about every way possible,” Doak says. “With any type of help he could be, he tried to help them. So many people worry about what can this young person do for me instead of what can I do for them. I think that’s what really helped him get started in this business.”

The Wendt family’s passion for helping young people reaches outside the showpig industry, and arguably started in a small church in Old Fort, Ohio. Shortly after he and Megan were married, they volunteered to take over the youth group. Their first meeting had seven young people. Within a few months, the couple had attracted nearly ten times that many junior high students to participate in their youth ministry.

“We’ve always had a service heart to pay it forward and help,” Wendt says. “But, Megan is the main driving force behind a lot of that. She’s as passionate about that as I am auctioneering the Champion Boar at a Type Conference.”

Today, the Wendt family still is actively involved in helping youth learn to serve others from their Showpig.com All Star Team to their Jamaica-based mission project, the Hopewell Project.

With everything they’re involved in, Wendt says he wants his family to only be remembered for one thing — integrity.

This would come as no surprise to one of his mentors, Dick Nash.

“He has a great family and a super wife. He has a great reputation and has kept his nose clean in both entities – auctioneering and raising hogs,” Nash says.

Nash was always amazed at Wendt’s ability to be so successfully involved both in his auction business, which now has grown from live auctions and Showpig.com to encompass some elite cattle sales and websites, real estate and farm equipment, and the purebred swine business. Nash likens this to being a CEO of two different successful companies simultaneously.

“He deserves what he’s got,” Nash says. “He’s worked hard at it. He’s not afraid to try new things and do new things. He’s been a real blessing to the swine industry, I can tell you that.”

Wendt just feels blessed for his family to be involved in the business.

“I would say we feel very fortunate as a family to have the opportunities we do to work in the industry, to be a leader in the industry, to go to shows in the industry and participate in everything. We just feel very, very blessed,” Wendt says.

It takes a special type of person to spend hours breaking ice so the cattle can have a drink, stay up to help a sow farrow while the rest of the world sleeps and bale hay in the heat of summer so the does will have something to eat when the snow falls. Herbert Mumford had a deep understanding and appreciation for these people we call stockmen. During his time in academia at the University of Illinois, he embodied what it meant to be a stockman in his poem “A Tribute to the Stockman.” The virtues Mumford used to describe the true stockman, in 1913, can still be found today.
Kevin Mock jokingly admits he started raising livestock because his dad forced him to.

“My parents – Dad was a custom home builder, and Mom was a registered nurse – strongly believed in keeping us busy and raising us around agriculture,” he says.

In order to do that, the Mock patriarch convinced his son to start raising competitive livestock when he was 8-years-old. They raised showpigs and goats on their small farm in Kyle, Texas, for themselves and neighboring families to exhibit at local county fairs. Competitive by nature, it didn’t take long for Mock to turn his family’s hobby of raising livestock into a business. The family sold their sows when Mock started college, but continued raising goats. Mock stayed connected to the showpig world by working for 10 years at Duelm’s Prevailing Genetics, where he learned irreplaceable lessons regarding life and livestock.

During his time at Duelm’s, Mock and his wife, Megan, decided to get serious about raising show goat wethers. Their first purchase was the Champion Junior Doe at the Texas Wether Buck and Doe Sale, and the Mocks began making a name for themselves among the elite goat breeders. In 2014, Mock rebuilt a sow herd and currently owns 15 sows, as well as a few boars and partnership sows around the country.

Today, Mock Livestock is earning its customers banners in showpig and goat arenas across the U.S. Mock’s secret to success in both species is female selection. Mock has learned, from other breeders and by his own experience, there truly is power in the blood.

“Genetics will prevail over how they look at weaning or sale time more times than not,” he says. “Although the sire gets most of the marketing credit, I will rarely keep a replacement female, make a breeding decision or purchase a female without knowing the maternal genetics and history behind her.”

Once Mock determines the genetics pass the test, replacement females have to have functional running gear, a three-dimensional body cavity and eye appeal to stay in Hico, Texas, regardless of species. Mock says, good livestock is good livestock, and look, build and balance will usually keep you at the top of the class.

As much as Mock enjoys breeding livestock, he will be the first to tell you his business is based on family. He finds, one of the most satisfying aspects of owning Mock Livestock is working with families and providing livestock to make their dreams come true. Megan and Mock’s dream is to raise their boys, Blaze and Braxon, around agriculture, just as Mock was raised. He credits two people in his life for helping make his dreams become reality.

“I thank Jesus Christ for allowing me to do what I do. I also thank Megan, who anchors our family and our business, and our crew at home for keeping it all together,” he says.

March 2016

Kevin Mock and his wife, Megan, are living out their dreams raising their boys, Blaze and Braxon, around agriculture. No matter how many banners the goats and showpigs earn that come out of Hico, Texas, the foundation of Mock Livestock is faith and family.

“Whose devotion to his animals is second only to his love of God and family.”
Breeding livestock isn’t just a job for Chuck Olsen – it’s an art. “Changing genetics rapidly fits my creative juices,” he says, “I enjoy the challenge of creating something new and different from what is currently available.”

Olsen has been practicing his artwork since 1953, when his family began raising Yorkshires in Irene, South Dakota. They added cattle to their operation to fuel Olsen’s fire for combining new and different genetics. The Olsen family was among some of the first cattle breeders to incorporate Simmental semen into their cow herd via AI, in the early-70s. It didn’t take long for Olsen to catch on to breeding cattle, thanks to his experience raising hogs.

“Genetic selection for clubby cows and showpig mamas is very similar. Heritability of traits is very similar. Selection for feet and legs is nearly identical. You need a good eye, experience and attention to detail,” he says.

Whether Olsen is choosing replacement females for the cow herd or sow herd he runs with his son, Ben, he uses the same criteria for his selection. He considers foot size, pastern flex and length, hock set, cleanliness of joints, squareness to the ground, shoulder and hip angles and length of stride in his evaluation. Soundness and balance are at the top of Olsen’s must-have list, but he knows that may not be the case for everyone.

“Everyone has a different answer, based on their situation,” he says. “If you want to talk about body build or makeup, you need to identify the width of the skeleton, the depth, length, flesh and muscle. In order to do that accurately, one must also recognize the indicators of those traits and make sure they match.”

Olsen’s breeding philosophies have remained constant throughout his years of raising livestock, despite the trends he has seen come and go in the cattle and hog show rings. Because of the shorter generation intervals in hogs, Olsen observes they have led the show ring trend changes. “That’s why the show cattle industry has 15-year-old bulls and cows that are very relevant in today’s market. Those cattle have fixed genetics. I don’t know of many 15-year-old boars or sows that could be in the first generation of a show hog winner, today,” Olsen says.

Olsen’s creative outlet doesn’t come from a canvas and brushes or a sheet of music and ivory keys. Instead, he finds inspiration in planning matings that will improve his breeding stock and continue to make the next generation better.

Raising livestock is the only livelihood Tom Farrer has ever known. Farrer’s grandparents and parents raised purebred Shorthorn cattle and Spotted hogs, so it was only natural for him to return to the farm in Royal Center, Indiana, after graduating from Purdue University.

Farrer kept the Shorthorns, but ran mostly crossbred cows devoted to raising club calves. They held their first club calf auction in 1974, and it is now the nation’s longest-running club calf sale. The Spots also had a place in Farrer’s operation, and over the years he added Yorkshire, Duroc, Hampshire and crossbred sows. From the 1960s to 1990s, hogs produced 80 percent of the income for the Farrers. After 2000, the roles reversed and cattle are now the leading revenue source for the family. Farrer attributes the shift to labor demand and market changes.

Farrer Stock Farms today runs 300 cows and 50 sows. Farrer and his sons, Payton and Taylor, work each day to raise animals that will... succeed in the show industry. With that goal in mind, females who don’t produce don’t stay in Royal Center.

“As we get better animals, we don’t make excuses for females,” Farrer says. “When you realize some really high-quality animals can be good mothers, you aren’t as forgiving on animals that don’t perform well in those areas.”

Farrer wants the animals at Farrer Stock Farms to be complete. In his experience, the fault-free animals will be the ones that pay the bills.

“The animals that are extreme in one area or another, we keep a few of them, but we know sometimes they’ll hit it, or they’ll cause you a lot of pain and suffering. Whenever you get one on the outer edges, they are a little more difficult to raise,” he says.

One of the biggest similarities Farrer sees in raising the two species is the hard-working, intelligent people involved in both the cattle and swine industries. He sees a lot of livestock merchandised through videos, pictures and online descriptions, but in his opinion, nothing supersedes a good friend’s advice on livestock they’ve seen in person. The way to develop those friends is by getting involved in breed associations, attending shows and visiting farms.

Farrer views stock shows as a good thing, be it cattle or hogs, because they bring a lot of people together. But, for him, not much can replace a farm visit, because it allows you to question and assimilate breeding and farm philosophies. After the visit, you can consider their genetics, facilities and feed rations and decide what might work for you.

With all his years of experience raising cattle and hogs, Farrer has plenty of breeding philosophies himself to share. But, the most important lesson he hopes people learn when exhibiting livestock is to keep winning in perspective.

“I think people put so much emphasis on being first and being number one, but knowing you did the best you can is more important,” he says. “There’s always somebody that has something better. Just accept it, and don’t take a shortcut to get where you want to be.”

Mumford concludes with this thought,

“Herdman, shepherd, groom — yes, and more. Broad-minded, big-hearted, and whole-souled: whose life and character linger long after the cordial greeting is stilled and the hearty handshake is but a memory; whose silent influence forever lives. May his kind multiply and replenish the earth.”
Each and every day, we make choices. What will we have for lunch today? Who should we breed our best sow to? What is the right thing to do in a situation? Each and every choice we make, no matter how small it may seem at the time, will have a consequence – good or bad. Today, in our industry, exhibitors and breeders alike are faced with many choices. Some of these seemingly small, innocent choices can have large repercussions which can echo through the industry or stain a person’s reputation for years to come. Here are some examples of everyday choices – some big, some small – and thoughts from some of our industry’s leaders about consequences.
March 2016

Joe Shmoe was ringside when he watched the class-winning lightweight Yorkshire barrow walk out of the ring at the Indiana State Fair. What a waste, he thought. He knew the family driving the barrow was done for the summer. As far as he was concerned, though, that barrow was not. This pig was so fresh and youthful, he had yet to hit his prime. In Joe’s eyes, the barrow was sitting at 10:30, and he had an inkling of how good he’d be at 12 o’clock. Unlike many other families at the state fair, Joe had plans to attend the Southwest Regional in Woodward the end of August. Unfortunately, his own barrow would be hard pressed to make it there. His chine was already reading a tick stale. Thinking to himself again, Joe wondered what would happen if he bought that class winner for the show. He’d probably only have to offer the family market price, and they’d be relieved they wouldn’t have to make arrangements at the packer. When was that ownership deadline? A quick look at his phone said, July 11. What would a few weeks hurt? Would anyone know if he backdated the date of sale on the pedigree transfer?

If you were Joe, what would you do? Would you walk away from the ring and think of ways to keep your barrow fresh for Oklahoma, or approach the family to buy the lightweight barrow for Woodward and backdate the date of sale on the pedigree transfer?

Fred Bloggs was clipping his Duroc barrow for the North American International Livestock Exhibition (NAILE) Market Hog Show. His FFA advisor cautioned Fred about body clipping his barrow because it is a terminal show. His mother encouraged Fred to look at the rules. A quick search revealed this in the rule book: Whole body clipping of market hogs is discouraged. ALL ANIMALS WILL GO TO MARKET. Although it was “discouraged,” Fred knew how much better his barrow would look with the proper whole-body clip and fit job. After all, the rules don’t say specifically that you couldn’t.

If you were Fred, what would you do? Clip the barrow as you normally would despite your advisor and the rule book’s warning or heed the suggestion about body clipping since it is a terminal show?

All decisions in life have consequences. Life is all about timing. Regardless if it’s good timing or bad timing, it still all revolves around timing. While most of our lives can be effectively lived in the gray, this is one of those times where the answer is black or white. So, having been brought up knowing right from wrong, you make the difficult decision to pass on that extra-fresh, youthful-looking Yorkshire barrow and get to work on your barrow at home to do everything in your power, within the rules, to make him as fresh as possible. Sometimes it’s not always about the destination, but more importantly, the character that’s revealed during the journey.

People won’t remember the banners and trophies you won 15-20 years from now, but they will remember how you treated them and the legacy you created for yourself and your family. This great industry, like so many others, allows you to build your own legacy and reputation. Take time to think about the long term impact of this decision because you rarely get a second chance to establish your reputation.

This is a great opportunity for a discussion on a critical issue we are faced with currently. At first thought, one may not realize there is an ethical decision to be made in regards to clipping pigs, especially when shows only discourage clipping and may not bring it up at all. But as an employee of JBS, the largest meat protein business in the world, I see the challenges that arise from body-clipped pigs.

Packers rely on efficiency for profitability, and clipped pigs do not fit within that concept. During harvest, market hogs are dehaired, which is typically a quick process. The hair on clipped or shaved pigs does not free itself from the skin as easily, thus causing carcass inspection failure. The carcass must then be skinned, which results in additional down time, labor costs and a reduction in carcass weight.

So what does this mean to us?

There are a few implications I ask you to think about the next time you clip pigs:

1. At terminal shows, I have heard people unhappy with the value they get from their barrow when sold. Keep in mind, the packer has factored in potential down time due to issues such as tightly shaved pigs. Plain and simple, show pigs cannot hold the same value as commercial hogs because of this principle.

THOUGHTS: Craig Spray

The Code of Fair Practice is one way the National Swine Registry encourages breeders to think ethically when marketing breeding stock.
Kane Causemaker

Kane Causemaker is the owner of Causemaker Family Genetics in Illinois. Each year, he markets show pigs to youth throughout the country and is passionate about helping them succeed with their project. His two children are now starting to exhibit swine. Causemaker is employed by JBS Pork Procurement, so he has innate knowledge of the commercial side of the swine industry.

2. As a result of shaved pigs and other factors which revolve around the integrity of a show pig’s final product, many packers have chosen to no longer take on the risk of harvesting them. I hope this resonates with you. There will be more that do not accept show pigs in the very near future. What will we do and where will we be as an industry if we cannot market clipped pigs?

3. Animal Welfare – This speaks to the minority, but please do not body shave pigs and expect them to perform when living in colder climates. The hair acts as a thermal liner and will help the animal maintain body heat.

4. Hogs with hair are becoming increasingly popular. We as an industry are doing the right thing and moving towards a more uniform hair coat. By all means, clean up your pigs face and jaw, but leave the body hair.

Correcting the problem we have created is not an overnight fix. Those with high school showmen may see no results. But, here is an opportunity to improve the future for many show pig enthusiasts. Talk to a packer if you have one in your area. Let them know we have an interest in the show pig community to work closer with the packing plants in the future.

Lucy Lou bred a litter of Yorkshires specifically for the San Antonio Stock Show and Rodeo Junior Breeding Gilt Show. Thinking that more mature gilts often had a better chance of grabbing the banner in the Champion Drive, she bred her best sow to farrow as close to July 1 as possible to comply with the rules. Unfortunately, her sow decided to farrow on June 29. Lucy was very disappointed the litter she’d planned just for San Antonio was no longer eligible to show there. When filling out the pedigree application for the litter’s registration Lucy wondered to herself, who would know if I changed the farrowing date back two days? To her, 48 hours hardly seemed like enough of an advantage to be called cheating. She’d planned this litter just for this event, and if she didn’t fudge the date, Lucy wouldn’t be able to show these pigs there. Besides, everyone was aging hogs, right?

If you were Lucy, what would you do? Turn in the proper farrowing date knowing those pigs aren’t eligible for San Antonio Stock Show and Rodeo or falsify the farrowing date so you can compete at the show as planned?

Chuck Real has operated Real Hog Farms, in Texas, for more than half a century. During this time, he has served as a role model to many Texas youth and purebred swine breeders throughout the country. If Real is passionate about anything as much as putting together sound purebred genetics, it’s developing young people interested in agriculture. He’s one of the most respected 4-H livestock judging coaches in Texas and this nation.

Whenever they’re born, they’re born. That’s my feeling. I’m not anybody to judge anybody else. But, the main thing we need to keep in mind, in my opinion, is when we’re talking about attending a show, we’re almost always talking about junior exhibitors. There are always young eyes watching everything we do, and if they look up to you and they see that you fudge a day, or two, or three or whatever it is to make it work, then they assume that is correct. I think we all have a responsibility to these young people to provide the right kind of example. One day might not seem like a lot, but it is the principle behind it. Whatever it is, it is. Again, there are always young eyes watching whatever we do, and whatever example we set will help determine what they do.

Our very first litter 52 years ago, our ag teacher said whenever your gilt farrows, call me and I will come out. He came out, and the next morning at breakfast, he, my brother and I were talking about how they were born on July 31. Back then, each month showed together, like all the August hogs would be in one class. So if your sow farrowed on July 31, you were kind of on the wrong side of things. My brother made the comment, that we should call them August 1 pigs. Then, the ag teacher, who we thought was almost God, fifty-some years ago when county ag teachers were just a really big deal. He said, no, we needed to call them July 31 pigs because that’s the right thing to do, and next time we needed to breed them where they come out right. For an impressionable 4-H and FFA kid, that was just very important.

On top of that, our parents were very, very straight. They were almost too honest about everything. Dad had always told us these things, but when the ag teacher said it on top of that, it solidified it in our minds that’s just what you do.

Again, we’re working with youth, and we need to be ever so careful about what we do with them. They’re always watching, and if they look up to you they’re going to imitate your ways and things they learn from you – regardless if they’re good or bad.

March 2016
Jane Doe is participating in a terminal market hog show. One of her show pigs has not eaten feed or drank very much water for the past day. She begins to wonder if her pig is stressed from travelling to the show or has contracted an illness and getting sick.

Jane has access to medications that may help her pig’s appetite improve and help get it back on track and ready in time for the show. However, the medications she has access to will violate the drug withdrawal period requirement.

What do you think Jane will do? What would you do? There are always consequences for decisions you make.

The consequences if you decide to treat your pig and knowingly violate rules are tremendous. If you chose to treat your pig with the medications you have, knowing that you will be in violation of the labeled drug withdrawal period, several things could happen including:

- The pig is shown and places well in class, and Jane’s taking home a ribbon. However, the pig goes to the pork processor/packer and tests positive for exceeding the maximum residual limit for the medication she administered at the show. Jane is found to be in violation of USDA maximum drug residue limits (MRL).
- The packer contacts the show officials to inform them of the violation. The pig owner’s name (Jane Doe) will be placed on the USDA’s drug residue violator list, and consequences of future positive tests for drug residues will result in a ban from being able to sell livestock to packers/processors. Additionally, the packer informs the show officials that they and Jane Doe can ultimately be held liable for costs of product recall (if necessary), lost revenues to the packer and costs associated with damages caused by violating the MRL. Value of losses to the packer and the food chain can be estimated to be in the millions of dollars.
- The show officials contact Jane Doe to inform her of the drug residue violation and being placed on the USDA drug residue violator list, in addition to the additional liability the exhibitor could face with adulterated pork product. If Jane violates again, she is potentially banned from marketing livestock for slaughter in the future.
- Further impact of violating drug withdrawal period is the potential for media attention. The story could get media coverage and shake consumer confidence in food safety and increase concern over wholesome, safe pork products in their local grocery store or butcher shop. Additional focus on youth exhibitors “winning at all costs” can tarnish the image and reputation of youth livestock programs and youth exhibitors that do follow the rules.

Jane could choose to seek out alternative treatment for her barrow. To do so, Jane could contact the show official/show manager and request a veterinarian consultation. Livestock shows will have an on-site veterinarian or access to on-call veterinarian. Jane, then, has the veterinarian perform an examination and evaluate her pig’s current health status. The veterinarian will advise Jane on the course of action after an examination.

Three possible outcomes are presented below, including:

- Veterinarian may be able to administer appropriate medication that is in compliance with the withdrawal period. The pig is deemed eligible to show and proper documentation has been completed to ensure the animal is in compliance with drug withdrawal period and can be safely sent to market.
- Veterinarian advises no medication can be given because administering the appropriate medication for the pig’s condition would violate the drug withdrawal period prior to slaughter. The veterinarian advises to keep the pig cool and comfortable, offer water and feed often. The pig can still be shown, but it is the exhibitor’s choice to show or scratch the pig from its class.
- Veterinarian advises to not medicate the pig. The pig’s only symptom is poor appetite. It is not showing any other symptoms of illness, no fever, no diarrhea, no foot or leg injuries and appears to be alert to movement in the pen. The veterinarian deems the pig eligible to show and advises the exhibitor to continue to offer feed and water. The exhibitor can decide to show or scratch the pig from the class. Because it is a terminal show, if the exhibitor scratches the pig from the class, the pig is still required to be loaded on the market truck.

The decision to consult with the veterinarian is the right decision. The advisement that the pig may not be sick, but just poor appetite because of new environment or travel stress is a tough decision to make on whether or not to medicate appropriately that keeps you and your pig in compliance with USDA and FDA. Showing a pig that is not at its best because of lost appetite is a teachable moment in building character, integrity and reputation for you and others involved in the show ring. The moment when you don’t place as high in the class as you thought you could with your pig is disappointing, but facing the alternative of being held liable for adulterated pork entering the food chain, being named a violator of drug withdrawal periods and a tarnished reputation has deeper repercussions.
John Doe had been waiting on this Hampshire litter for months. Since he’d bred his best sow to the champion boar from the last Type Conference, John had anticipated this litter of belted babies. Now, looking down at the litter, it’s safe to say they weren’t what he expected. He sighed as he placed the last litter 1 Hampshire back in the crate after processing. John reached for his litter 2 crossbreds and started ear notching them. It’s a shame these couldn’t show as Hampshires. A couple could certainly pass as a member of the belted breed. Even at young age, it was obvious they’d have a better chance of hanging a banner. He picked up one of the perfect-belted crossbreds and notched it a 1. His hand was poised to add the second notch, when he thought: Who would know if I papered this hog as a Hampshire? Certainly, it would bring a lot more money than the disappointing litter one crate over, if people thought it had a pedigree. And, wouldn’t it make all of his work, money and toil worthwhile if he could hang one major Hampshire banner with his herdmark?

If you were John, what would you do? Make the second notch or place that belted pig back into the crate as a “litter 1,” so you have the opportunity to sell it as a Hampshire?

THOUGHTS: Ron Iverson

Ron Iverson owns Iverson Farms in Iowa where he raises Hampshire hogs. Iverson is a strong proponent of the Belted Breed and currently serves on the National Swine Registry Executive Committee.

Put that second notch in. That banner or check is not nearly as important as your reputation, integrity and character. Your choice to falsify a pedigree not only affects you, but it affects others who you do business with. When a boar or breeding gilt is sold as a pure, but is not pure, this can start a domino effect. Even if the pig is shown as a purebred market hog this is still a misrepresentation of the breed. The choice to mate this sow with that boar didn’t work as you had hoped it would. You will get another chance to do a different mating. The number one priority of the Hampshire Swine Registry is to maintain breed purity. We need more people breeding and raising purebreds but only if they do it the right way.

As I sit and write my last Duroc report for the National Swine Registry (NSR), I can't think of a better one to write than where I first wrote my sales report for the Durocs at the Winter Type Conference (WTC). I can't begin to tell you how much of an exciting ride it has been covering this breed. It seems each and every show we go to, there is a new boar or gilt that is popping up and adding value to what is already a tremendous breed. This year's WTC was no different. The quality of the hogs was tremendous, and the people and environment were absolutely first class. A huge thanks to Chris Danner of Chalmers, Indiana, for his professional opinion in sorting a tremendous set of Durocs. Chris, your passion and love for this breed are second to none, and it was a pleasure to watch you work them. A huge shoutout to Kevin Wendt for again, doing a professional and thorough job of selling these things. When he steps to the block, you know you are in good hands.

Congratulations to CAIN4 Slats 1-3, owned by Cain Super Sires, Iowa, for the Premier Duroc Sire, this year, and to Premium Blend Genetics and Mike and Heather Jackson, Indiana, for their Reserve Premier Sire, MJFF4 Lights Out 19-8. Congratulations, guys.

We started the day with Duroc gilts, and our Class 1 winner ended up going on and being named the Champion Duroc Gilt of the show. Congratulations to Cale Burnau for showing this outstanding female. She was a daughter of Won’t Stop raised by Sam Scher. Cale’s gilt caught the attention of many for her ability to have tremendous shape and look, while covering the green turf with comfort and ease. This gal flat floated across the surface and had a killer look. Drake and Andrew Blaydes, Indiana, are her new owners, and I am sure they are excited to watch this one mature.

Young Nathan Prezzano drove his junior gilt into class-winning status in Class 2. His daughter of Lights Out 19-8 was impressive to study. She was tall fronted and had a very elegant and classy look. She too was very fundamental, from a feet and legs standpoint, and could go all day. Durden Show Pigs of Georgia invested in this lady. They are sure to get a great return on their investment. The high-selling gilt of the show was also in this class. Eric Putnak of Pennsylvania was eighth in class with a Red Rock 24-5 daughter, raised by Thompson Brothers of Ohio. This gal may not have been the biggest or fullest on Open Show day, but her feet and legs and quality were exceptional. She got a great home in Illinois at the home of Brandon and Bryson Stickler.

The Cain Kids drove the winner of Class 3. She was a daughter of Slats and was so typical of what we have grown to see out of this great sire. She was big bodied and broody, yet flexible and functional. This one looked like a mama and will get a great chance for her new owners, Macy and Reagan Bowling of Indiana.

Grizzle Farms of Georgia drove our Class 4 winner. Another daughter of Lights Out 19-8, this one was as stout featured, big footed and big bodied as any in the show. She was an extreme breeding piece and got a new home that will truly utilize her talents. Nathan Ray purchased this one for a little “R and D." Expect to hear about her in a matter of time.

Gary Funkhouser and family won Class 5 with a daughter of Asteroid. This gal was real world. She was tall shouldered, flexible and was what you saw. She was sound, athletic and looked like she was ready to go to work as soon as she got home. Keith Holder of Florida will give her a chance.

Gabe Barrett won Class 6 with a daughter of Load ’Em Up 38-3. She went on to be named the Reserve Champion Duroc Gilt. This one, again, was very fundamental. She looked like a sow. She was elevated, extended and had plenty of volume and dimension. She will get her choice of good Duroc boars to be mated to at her new home, Crossroads Genetics in Indiana.

The Duroc boars were not huge in numbers, but had lots of breeding pieces and opportunities to move not only your herd but also the Duroc breed forward.

Class 1 had lots of good, young boars with differences that could progress any herd the right direction. Lorelei Prichard drove the class winner out of Stop Light 11-10. This dude was big backed and powerful, yet handled it really well. For a power hog, he was flexible, had a great head carriage and was as wide from top to bottom as any. Rodney Coffey of North Carolina will put this power hog to work.

March 2016
The most different and intriguing hog in the class was the Blake and Macy Wehmeier entry that was sixth in class. He was a hard one to fit into the lineup, because there was honestly nothing else like him in class. He was really wide and stout with lots of bone. For a moderate-framed boar with moderate length, he still ran up hill and stayed inside his skeleton, both front and rear. This guy can make barrows and went to the heart of barrow country. Triple B Sires is his new owner. Look to see him make some noise.

Class 2 was won by the Cain Kids with a son of Slats. This was the first Slats son they have brought out for all to see, and he certainly was no disappointment. He was eventually tied as the Reserve Champion Duroc Boar. This guy was stout featured, heavy duty and had lots of power and boldness from end to end. He was good legged and could be a potential must-use sire. Everyone will have a chance to purchase semen from his new owner, Southern Gold Sires in Indiana.

The final class of Duroc boars was where the champion came from. Shipley Swine Genetics drove the Champion Duroc Boar, a son of Bull Rush 221-2. This guy was big legged. He had great toes and flexibility and looked like a he-hog needs to look. This guy had an impeccable hip and hind leg and floated across the surface. Carroll Bullard of Georgia will give this one a real chance. Expect to hear great things.

Congratulations to all participants at the WTC and Southeast Regional. Thank you to everyone involved with making the field representative ride over the last few years a ride I will never forget. Keep making the next generation of pigs and kids better and better.

Warm weather and a good set of Hampshires is the simplest way I can describe the Winter Type Conference (WTC) Hampshire Show in Perry, Georgia. This year, Chris Tannehill, of Chalmers, Indiana, had the duty of sorting the Hampshires. As always, Chris did a great job lining them up and giving us a few life tips along the way.

The Premier Hampshire Sire award went to JM3 Bumpercar 2-5, owned by Real McCoy Genetics and Fecke Livestock. The Reserve Premier Sire was GMW4 Silencer 9-4, owned by Crossroads Genetics and George and Mike Watson, Indiana.

This year’s Grand Champion Hampshire Boar was the Austin Joostberns entry from Dorr, Michigan. Austin’s boar was out of BJKE4 Harbaugh 4-3. Harbaugh was the Engler Family’s, Iowa, entry at Georgia, last year. No Debate x Point Taken is how his pedigree would read. That Point Taken sow is the $18,000 gilt the Engler's purchased from Joostberns. The bottom side of Austin’s boar is a TSOB3 Sock Em 1-7 sow. The Joostberns boar was one of those hogs that hits a show ring and is all you can think about. Everyone talks about making them tall fronted, good looking and have a great hindleg; well, the answer just might have shown up in Perry. He is heavy boned, while still being up on his toes and clean hocked. He’s extended up front, but still has a stout, masculine skull. He’s long hipped and sets his hock and toes down square. Did I mention he came from a good litter? His littermate sisters brought home banners, too. To me, this boar represents where we are headed as an industry. On sale day, this boar accomplished two things. One, he brought $58,000 and went to Shaffer’s Goldrush and Fecke Livestock. Congratulations to all.

The second was, he proved it doesn’t matter what season it is, the better off we will all be. Make them "prime season," then they aren’t worth a dime – false! As soon as we all start worrying about making them better instead of what season it is, the better off we will all be. Make them good, bring them to shows, and they will be appreciated.

The Reserve Grand Champion Hampshire Boar, this year, comes from another name that is no stranger to Hampshire circles. Ashleigh Funkhouser of Wingate, Indiana, brought home the banner with a JLM3 Carry On 21-1 back on a JLM9 TCG Augusta 18-1 sow. The Funkhouser boar had a lot of cool parts and pieces. He was tall fronted and had lots of muscle shape and power. I call him good bodied with good joints, toe quality and bone size.

There was another boar down the line that brought some cash – lot 4439-13 from Byron Bradbury, Columbia City, Indiana. Their son of GMW4 Game Face 12-2 is one I label moderate and a practical-bodied kind of boar, who works a solid framework underneath. Check him out at Lean Value Sires, Ohio.

As I mentioned above, the Joostberns crew brought three Hampshire swine: the boar and a pair of littermate gilts who were named Champion and Reserve Champion in the Southeast Regional Junior Show. They elected not to show them on open show day, so they moved right to the top of the sale order. Now, I’m not sure if the boar helped the gilts’ value or the other way around. Let’s just say, they are peas in a pod. The gilts brought $14,000 to Chad Day and JP Parrish, Indiana, and $9,000 to George and Mike Watson, Indiana. Good luck with those purchases.

The Champion Hampshire Gilt in the open show, this year, was exhibited by Jacob Abbas of Aplington, Iowa, with his daughter of MCDO3 Kickstart 14-5 and out of a JKK2 Gusto 11-5 female. She was the kind of gilt that could do a lot of things for a lot of different operations. Sound, structured, good looking and practical, she had it all. Clayton Lyons got a good buy on a great female for only $1,800. Congratulations to all. The Reserve Champion was from the Hines family of Quincy, Michigan. She was a daughter of YSF4 Cold Shoulder 14-2. This was one of those show gilts that looks like she will make a great sow. She is big footed, heavy boned and has a killer look. Kyle Pitman of Georgia will put her to work.

The Mead gilt of Indiana won the third class, and she was a power house of a gilt. Bold bodied, big topped and cool looking, mark her a buy for Southern Select Show Pigs, Georgia.

Thanks as always to Kevin Wendt, Ohio, for his professional job of selling the breeding stock. A special thanks to Chris Danner, Indiana, for sorting the Hampshires, and good luck to all the new buyers.

Winter Type Conference (WTC) Landrace hogs were on top of their game in Perry, Georgia, this year. Though boars were few, the female offering was absolutely incredible and, again, offered potential for lots of progress in the proper direction. A huge thank you to Nathan Ray for his input and perspective on a great set of hogs. Your insight and direction were much appreciated, Nathan. Keep up the good work.

Congratulations to Premium Blend Genetics and Vickrey Showpigs, Indiana, on the Premier Landrace Sire award for DOVS2 Bad Cat 9-8, and Top Cut Genetics, Indiana, for their Reserve Premier Sire, KORB3 Look Out 14-5.

The Landrace Gilt Show was top notch, and our Class 1 winner went on to be named the Champion Landrace Gilt of the show. She also won the Southeast Regional Junior Show the day before. Congratulations to Cade and Noah Sponcil for hanging banners with this awesome Landrace female raised by Korb Farms and sired by Badcat 9-8. She had a tremendous build and was as stout as any. She was square built from top to bottom and had great shape and dimension. This really good female will get a fair shot at her new home in Indiana. Thank you, Kent Brattain and family, for your support.

Cale Burnau was second in class, and she went on to be named the Reserve Champion Landrace Female of the show. This daughter of Sea World 6-3 was really extended and flexible. She was tall shouldered, offered extra extension up front and looked like a lady. She was square from behind and offered a really unique and impressive set to her hip and hind leg. She looked like a winner and was made like a female. Congratulations to Cale, and thank you to Mark and Sandy Ottenwalter and crew for buying this unique piece. Russell Korb Farms and sired by Badcat 9-8. She had a tremendous build and was as stout as any. She was square built from top to bottom and had great shape and dimension. This really good female will get a fair shot at her new home in Indiana. Thank you, Kent Brattain and family, for your support.

Diesen Showpigs won Class 2 with another daughter of Bad Cat 9-8. This one had lots of power and stoutness, yet handled it really well. She was tall shouldered and a little bigger than most, which can absolutely be a good thing. Clevie Selph of Florida will put her to work.

Trey and Chad Mauck were second in class with a Lookout 14-5 daughter. This one looked like a barrow maker with her extra power and stoutness, and she handled it well. In a really tough Landrace female show, this one deserved all the attention she received and got a great new home. Robert Wehmer family will put this one to work and look to make the next generation better.

The third-place gilt and co-top seller was a really interesting breeding hog. She was a littermate to the eventual champion boar and was one of the biggest-bodied, broodiest-appearing females in the whole offering of any breed. She will also be making a trip to California for her new home. Thanks again to Mark and Sandy Ottenwalter for a great purchase.

The Landrace boars only had two head compete, but these two would have probably ended up in the same slots, even if we had 30 boars. Congratulations to both exhibitors on a great pair of boars. Congratulations to Lance and Mitchell Westcamp on exhibiting the Champion Landrace Boar. He was sired by Bad Cat 9-8 and was a real meat hog that was big and extended in his kind. He had a great attitude and was really comfortable and good on his feet and legs. He will go to work for Ray Dean Heard of Georgia.

The Reserve Champion Boar was shown by the Whybrew family of Indiana. He was also sired by Bad Cat 9-8 and was another one that had lots of good. He was square built, big legged and had a tremendous running gear. Brad Hordupp of Florida will put him to work and will be sure to see future success with this good boar buy.

Thanks again to all that helped to put on a tremendous event in Perry, Georgia. This event continues to grow and get better each and every year. Thanks for letting me be a part of it for a short time. I can tell you, I always enjoyed the people, pigs and facilities each and every time I went to Georgia.

The Georgia National Fairgrounds and Agricenter located in Perry, Georgia, is home to the National Swine Registry (NSR)’s Winter Type Conference (WTC) and National Junior Swine Association (NJSA) Southeast Regional Show. This year, we hosted the largest regional show in our history. More than 340 exhibitors from 17 different states showed 831 head of junior entries, 517 head of gilts and 314 head of barrows.

Nathan Ray of Cabery, Illinois, was asked to judge the Yorkshire show. We had a quality set of breeding gilts to sort and a solid set of boars to work with. Nathan did a great job of looking at each entry, while still moving at a fast pace. Thank you, Nathan, for a job well done.

The Premier Yorkshire Sire went to TBRO4 GRUS Master Piece 63-3, owned by Shaffer’s Goldrush and Ralph and Jim Bowling of Indiana. The Reserve Premier Yorkshire Sire was awarded to NBRP3 Not Even Close 41-2, owned by Shipley Swine Genetics of Newark, Ohio.

Congratulations to Grayson and Peyton Carter of Hazelhurst, Georgia. They drove a pair of littermate boars that were named champion and reserve in this year’s show. These guys are sired by TMF3 High Powered 70-9. They are big-ribbed, soft-centered hogs that have a show ring look from the side. They are extended ahead of their blade, tall shouldered and have a big, square top with plenty of muscle from behind. The champion sold to Jacob Williams of Hazelhurst, Georgia, for $1,950. The reserve champion sold to Cleve Selph of Jennings, Florida, for $1,000.

The third boar in the ring was the winning entry from Class 1, exhibited by Aimee and Lynsee Shaffer of Albany, Indiana. This boar is rugged in his skeleton, big footed and had a great look from the side. He is sired by TBRO4 GRUS Master Piece 63-3. His guy will head home with Johnson Coy Genetics of Greensburg, Indiana, for $1,000.

Next to hit the ring was the entry from Isla Grande Farms of Marion, Ohio. Rick’s boar was sired by NBS3 Wheelhouse 42-1. He is complete in his makeup. He is tall fronted, wide chested, comes out of his blade square and shapely, and square and wide in his hip. He will go to work for Carroll Bullard of Adel, Georgia, for $450.

There was a really good set of Yorkshire gilts to pick from at the 2016 WTC, and we had a very special one to start the gilt sale with. Evan Rice of Huntington, Indiana, brought the Champion Yorkshire Gilt into the sale ring with his entry from Class 7. This female is sired by CDO3 Bruno 273-8 and raised by Chuck and Ben Olsen of Irene, South Dakota. This gilt has the look of a Yorkshire brood sow. She is open and square in her chest floor and big in terms of her forerib and center body. She has a huge, square top, long, loose hip and looks like a lady. Plus, she is sound as a cat. This champion female will go to work for JP Enterprises of Indiana, for the price of $11,000.

The Reserve Champion Yorkshire Gilt is an entry out of Class 3. She was exhibited by Tessa Stahl of Somerest, Pennsylvania. Tessa’s gilt is sired by CDNO4 In Control 3-7. This lady is stout skulled, big centered and square as she tracks away. She looks like a show hog from the profile. Nathan Ray of Cabery, Illinois, will make a great addition to his program for the price of $1,800.

Next in the ring was the entry from Isla Grande Farms of Marion, Ohio. Rick’s boar was sired by NBS3 Wheelhouse 42-1. He is complete in his makeup. He is tall fronted, wide chested, comes out of his blade square and shapely, and square and wide in his hip. He will go to work for Carroll Bullard of Adel, Georgia, for $450.

There was a really good set of Yorkshire gilts to pick from at the 2016 WTC, and we had a very special one to start the gilt sale with. Not Even Close 41-2. This gilt is robust in her design, wide in her chest floor and can really reach out of her front end. She will go to work for Nick Winsor of Bradenton, Florida, for the price of $700.

Ralph Bowling and Family of Greencastle, Indiana, drove their Class 2 winning gilt into the ring next. She is out of TBR04 GRUS Master Piece 63-3. This lady was the unique breeding piece of the show. She is really stout in her bone work and feature. Plus, she looked like a show hog. She is big and bold about her rib cage, wide down her top and maintains this width throughout her hip. She will go home with Clyatt Showpigs of Luke Butler, Florida, for $500.

Hunter and River Havens of Washington Court House, Ohio, were next on the carpet with their winning entry from the youngest class. This wide-chested, powerfully-designed gilt is packed full of muscle, yet sound and mobile on her feet and legs. She is sired by CDO3 Bruno 273-8 and will make her way to Jeffersonville, Ohio, with Coe Farms for $450.

The next gilt in the ring was the winning entry in Class 5, exhibited by Lindsey Robinson of Wellsville, Missouri. She is sired by OBC4 Bones 14-1. Here is a feminine-designed, well-balanced gilt that can reach and go out of her front end. She is on her way to Luke Butler, Florida, to work for Clyatt Showpigs who bid $450.

Thank you, Kevin Wendt of Ohio, for an excellent job serving as auctioneer. Thanks to everyone who helps with putting on the WTC and Southeast Regional.

Rain and cloudy weather greeted us when we arrived in Perry, Georgia, for the 2016 Winter Type Conference (WTC). Storms in central Georgia soon cleared and made for a beautiful, sunny week.

Cole Rushing of Iowa stepped in to judge the Crossbred Show at the 2016 WTC. We had more numbers of high-quality hogs show up in the Crossbred Show than in years past. Cole did a great job sorting through this large and deep set of hogs. Thank you, Cole, for a job well done!

Earl Cain and Family of Chariton, Iowa, drove this year’s Champion Crossbred Boar. Their boar was sired by Above The Rest. If you were in need of a great-designed, tall-fronted, level boar that has a good hip and big rear leg, this guy would have been your kind. Plus, he has a big square top and all kinds of muscle from behind. He will make his way home with Shipley Swine Genetics of Newark, Ohio, for the price of $1,700.

The Reserve Champion Crossbred Boar won the heaviest class of the day. He is sired by Turn Me Loose and was exhibited by Mitchell Farms of Martin, Georgia. This lady is stout made, big bodied, soft centered, heavy muscled, sound and looks like a show gilt. Crossroads Genetics of Clayton, Indiana, did a great job of buying and getting this one on their trailer for $2,400.

The WTC Champion Crossbred Gilt was an entry out of Class 3 exhibited by Peyton Hill of Nevada, Texas, and sired by Money Talks. This 279-pound female was a monster in terms of bone and look. This lady looks like a show gilt, has great big feet and legs and can go all day. If you like them heavy structured and pretty, she was for you. She sold to Frank Morgan Jr. of Vienna, Georgia; he paid $2,000 to take this breeding piece home.

The Reserve Champion Gilt won Class 4. She was exhibited by Tessa Stahl, of Somerest, Pennsylvania, and sired by Sugar Daddy. This lady is moderate in size, but still tall fronted and level hipped. She has plenty of muscle and rib shape. She sold to Charles Keefer Jr. of Scottsdale, Pennsylvania, for $700.

Next in the ring was the winning entry from Class 5, exhibited by Mackenzie Dore of Galena, Ohio, and sired by Cash In. This moderate-framed gilt is really wide skeletoned and has tons of muscle. Lindsey and Mackenzie Dore decided to take her back home with them for $1,400.

Taylor Schuerman of Seymour, Indiana, was in the ring next with a gilt that won Class 1. She is sired by Snap Back. This gilt is robust in her design, wide in her chest floor and can really reach out of her front end. She will go to work for Spencer Malcolm of Huntentown, Indiana, at the price $500.

Mackenzie Dore of Galena, Ohio, was in the ring next with the winning entry from Class 2. Mackenzie’s gilt is sired by Cash In. This moderate-framed gilt is really wide skeletoned and has tons of muscle. Lindsey and Mackenzie Dore decided to take her back home with them for $1,400.

Thank you, Kevin Wendt, for an excellent job serving as auctioneer. Thanks to everyone who stepped in to help run boards and swing gates at this year’s event!

Transfer the PEDIGREE!

A pedigree is more than a piece of paper – it’s your word. It’s a bond that says your breeding stock is a superior product, backed by quality genetics and predictable performance. So, after a sale, ensure that you continue that bond with your customers. Transfer your pedigrees in a timely manner. Not only does it record a history of official ownership, but it guarantees customer satisfaction and just might set the tone for repeat business.

GENERAL INFORMATION

- Entry fees for all entries must accompany the respective entry form.
- All late entries will be charged double the regular entry fees. All entry fees are non-refundable.
- National Swine Registry (NSR) reserves the right to close entries because of pen space limitations any time after the printed deadline.
- All entries must be postmarked by April 14, 2016.
- All pedigrees for entries must be recorded by May 23, 2016, or an additional rush fee will be charged.
- All entries must be ear notched using the official NSR system (starting with number 1 in January and again in July of each year).
- CROSSBRED BOARS: A documented stress test must be presented at check-in. Stress status of boars will be listed in the show and sale catalog. This is a show and sale requirement.
- No purebred entry or substitute entry will be allowed to show or sell without a registration certificate. Purebred entries will be divided into classes by farrowing date.

EXHIBITORS & ELIGIBILITY

- All senior exhibitors must be active members of the NSR or must pay the $75 non-member exhibitor fee. An active senior member is age 22 and OVER, paid annual dues and recorded at least one litter in the 2016 fiscal year.
- Participants age 21 and UNDER are required to pay a $15 junior participation fee.
- Entries are limited to four purebred boars and four purebred open gilts per breed (Duroc, Hampshire, Landrace, Yorkshire) and two crossbred boars and two crossbred gilts per exhibitor. ALL purebred entries must be farrowed on or after Nov. 1, 2015. Purebred entries must have at least six functional teats on each side.
- All entries must meet their respective breed requirements. Entries that do not meet these requirements will not be allowed to show or sell at the conference.
- If an exhibitor has an NSR account that is past due, funds from the sale of their animals will be applied to their past-due account.

BREEDING ANIMAL SALE

- Purebred breeding animal classes will be divided into classes as equally as possible by farrowing date. Crossbred boars and gilts will be divided by weight.
- A minimum of approximately 60 percent of the number of each sex (boars and gilts) shown will be selected for the sale. These animals will be selected with no set number selling from any single class. Animals not selected for the sale can be consigned to the sale for an additional fee of $20 per head; this must be done by the conclusion of the breed show. If the animal sells, the fee will be applied toward the sale commission. If the animal does not sell, the fee is forfeited.
- All animals selected and cataloged for the sale MUST go through the auction. Sale commission will be 15 percent for all animals. If an animal that is selected and cataloged for sale does not go through the sale ring, the exhibitor will be banned from exhibiting at NSR events for one year and will be charged 15 percent of the average selling price of their respective breed sale. This amount must be paid before reinstatement will be allowed. The exception to this rule will be if an animal has become injured or ill and is inspected by an NSR staff member prior to the sale.
- The NSR acts only as the agent between buyer and seller. If proper payment is made by the buyer in a timely manner, the NSR will make settlement with the seller in approximately 30 days after the sale.

DNA STRESS STATEMENT

- No known stress positive or stress carrier Duroc, Hampshire, Landrace or Yorkshire animals will be allowed to be exhibited or sold at any NSR-sponsored event.
- Such warranty is solely that of the seller and not that of the American Landrace Association (ALA), American Yorkshire Club (AYC), Hampshire Swine Registry (HSR) or the United Duroc Swine Registry (UDSR). The ALA, AYC, HSR and UDSR assume no responsibility or liability in connection with such warranty by the seller.
- If any purebred animal sold at this conference is found to be a carrier of the stress gene, the purchaser has the right to receive full refund of the purchase price from the seller.
- DNA testing for the stress gene on purebreds must be done within 60 days of the sale date and all costs associated with testing for stress must be paid by the purchaser. The seller has the right to review the test results and the right to re-test the animal at a laboratory of his/her choice.
- Cost associated with re-test by the seller will be at the seller’s expense. There will be no refund of NSR commission from stress-carrier animals.

SPECIAL BREED REQUIREMENTS

- By entering any hog in this conference, the owner warrants that the hog meets specific breed requirements.
- Such warranty is, however, solely that of the seller and not that of the ALA, AYC, HSR and UDSR, and the ALA, AYC, HSR and UDSR assume no responsibility or liability in connection with such warranty by the seller.
- If any Hampshire, Landrace or Yorkshire purebred animal sold at this conference is found to be a carrier of the color gene after being tested through the procedures approved by the HSR, ALA and AYC, the seller agrees that he/she will promptly refund the full purchase price to the buyer. There will be no refund of NSR commission from animals that are carriers of the color gene.

We have been very pleased with what Smoke has done. His first crop was last fall. They are wide skulled and huge bodied with excellent appetites and great attitudes. All of these things are important to making sows that do their job. George says Smoke’s sisters are some of his best. He has sired plenty of muscle, and his daughters are the future of our sow herd.

I purchased Legacy from Jerry McLemore at the Indiana State Fair. Legacy won the youngest Hampshire boar class. He is extremely wide, square and athletic. Because of a leg injury, we have been unable to photo him. Other than that, the boar is impressive. His first pigs are powerful. He is by far the most consistent Hampshire sire I have ever used. We are up to 30+ Hampshire sows, so there is a good selection if you are looking for either Hampshire barrows or gilts.

We also had fall pigs out of Power Up. They are wide, square and muscular with a great look that sets them apart. He is also having an influence on the future of our sow herd. These two young, York boars are the best combination we have ever had.

All spring pigs offered for sale off the farm.

Big congrats to Levi Canales on raising “Get In” his $65,000 highest selling Duroc boar of the year at the 2015 Fall Classic sired by KLKG “All In” who was bred here and purchased from us by Chad Hill, TX, at the 2014 WPX! We are very humbled to see our genetics work for breeders with success and contribute to the Duroc breed. Be watching for two more exciting elite sons of All In named “Dialed In” and “All Good” now standing at Chad Hill Durocs!

$85,000 CHAMPION CROSSBRED BOAR, 2015 NSR FALL CLASSIC

PINNACLE
Beyond x Hillbilly Bone x Super Monster
BRED BY MIDWEST GENETICS

My family and I would like to thank CROSSROADS GENETICS, STEVE COBB & FAMILY, HEIMER HAMPSHIRE and LAW SHOWPIGS for believing enough in our program to invest in Pinnacle. It is very humbling, and I know he will get used on some great sows.

Also, thanks for all the compliments from fellow breeders. They are greatly appreciated.

Thanks to these gilt buyers:
Earnhart • Hirschfeld • Ottenwalter • Smith • Harmson

“At Duncan, the chatter was that this could possibly be Steve’s best one yet! Quite frankly, we agreed with that statement and made it our mission to bring this one home to Indiana. It took $85,000 to load him on our trailer, and we are beyond thrilled to have this one in our stable. He is sired by Beyond at PBG, and out of a really good Hillbilly Bone X Super Monster sow. Steve tells us there is a trio of these sows at his place that are going to make a statement for years to come. This one has been called the best boar to show in several years, due to the mass and stoutness he possesses combined with the dimension and build that make him unique. Tall shouldered with a good, stout look will make PINNACLE a barrow sire supreme. His huge bone structure and stout skeleton grab your attention quickly. Bold rib cage and great muscle expression with a huge back and hip, stride that is athletic and fluid when set into motion, we think PINNACLE can hit a big-time homerun for us. If you’re serious about making crossbred hogs that can win the biggest shows out there, then you need to make that your PINNACLE to reach! Call that cliché if you want, but ask anyone who attended Duncan this fall, Pinnacle is the real deal!” — Adam Beck, Crossroads Genetics

UNTACTABLE YORK
HAC9T2 TCG UNTOUCHABLE 1-4 X RIY3 RICOCHET
Purchased at 2015 STC. Here’s finally the one that’s got the power, squareness and ultra-cool look, with athleticism on a strong set of pasterns. With this kind of build and the dominant genetics backing him, he will undeniably take barrows and seedstock to the next level.

MUDSLIDE HAMPSHIRE
MUDSLIDE X MCRIB BRED BY IVESN FARMS, IOWA
2015 Hog College Hampshire Boar. He blends a great design and correct skeleton with extra mass and stoutness of feature. He’s the kind that excites both purebred and crossbred breeders.

6 SPEED DUROC
AUTOMATIC X ASIA X QUESTIONABLE LOVE X HONKY TONK AMNESIA
Six Speed has a powerful look that includes true muscle, great shape and rib. He also has true, natural body, bone and is sound. Cody McLeery sold us part interest in this outstanding herdsire. He just sired the Champion Duroc at Brown and Guadalupe County as well as the Reserve Champion at Wilson County.

SHOTGUN BERKSHIRE
SHOTGUN RIDER X SUPERMAN
Outstanding pedigree in an outstanding package. Easily our pick of the deep set of Berk boars at Duncan 2015. He was the youngest boar at the show, but without a doubt, the biggest-footed, stoutest-boned and best designed. Thanks to Corner Stone Ventures for breeding a great one.

BACK TRACK looks like a real breeding piece to us! He is super tall fronted with incredible look and extension about his front end. He is incredibly stout about his forearm and skull. He is soft and pliable in his center body, but the thing that fires us up the most is the depth and quality of the litter he comes from.

Kevin retained five mouth watering gilts and a littermate boar sold to Genetic Edge. Thanks again to Kevin for allowing us to bring this stud back to PA!

PBG is proud to introduce FUTURE. FUTURE is the product of Visionary x (Colt .45 x Hillbilly Bone) with his dam being the Brinning-bred gilt shown by Samantha Gwinnup to Div. 1 Champion honors at the 2014 WPX. We teamed with Sandall Showpigs to purchase this gilt for $20,000. Visionary has been on an incredible run through his first three crops, and we believe FUTURE can play at the same level as his dad. We are extremely excited about what FUTURE can do. Time will tell, but we think he flat out puts all the extremes together in a very correct package.

Philosophies from seasoned hog breeders and evaluators describing how visual conformation impacts production.

BUILDING FROM THE GROUND UP

with KIRK SWANSON | 4K Farms

Kirk Swanson of Red Oak, Iowa, has worked with many different livestock judging teams and listened to countless sets of reasons. One of the most common phrases he hears is, “I like to build my animals from the ground up.” Swanson follows the same philosophy in his own breeding program at 4K Farms. He is very diligent about selecting for even pads, square dewclaws and uniform toes, because he has seen if even one of those traits is not correct, it will affect the pig from the ground up.

“It’s like a house. If you pour a foundation that isn’t level, the carpenter will have to cut boards to different lengths the whole time he is building. A pig will get along a lot better with a good foundation of square toes and uniform, correct dewclaws,” Swanson says. A pig gets its traction to walk on slick or uneven surfaces from the pad, which is the soft, bottom part of the hoof. If a pig has an uneven pad where one side is larger than the other, they won’t be able to keep their footing on slick surfaces.

Former Iowa State Swine Teaching Herd Manager Al Christian taught Swanson that the width and mass of a pig’s dewclaws correlate to the pig’s overall bone structure. A pig with a wider, more massive dewclaw will mature into a heavier-structured animals. Swanson offers an illustration to show how a pig’s dewclaws can also impact mobility.

“Take both of your hands and spread your fingers apart as far as you can, then stretch your arm out,” Swanson says. “Think about your thumb as being the dewclaws on a hog’s rear leg. Point your thumbs toward each other. When your thumbs are pointed toward each other, that represents correct dewclaws. With your arm still stretched, rotate your thumbs upward until you feel tension in your elbow. That tension is what a hog feels when the inside dewclaw would then be further forward than the outside, versus back and square.”

The placement of the dewclaws and strength of patterns also affects the hog’s ability to get around. Swanson says, if the dewclaws are too far down and hit the ground too much, their dewclaws may become cracked and raw, and they won’t want to walk around.

“It’s just like us when we tear a fingernail loose,” he says. “It’s very painful, and they don’t do well when that happens.”

Swanson can usually tell within 24 hours if a hog is made right. The baby pigs should be comfortable moving around on the farrowing stall floors. When a pig is made right in the front, it won’t have scabs on its knees. When the pig is correct on its rear hocks, it will brace as it nurses, almost like a show lamb. If the dewclaws and foot size are correct and even, the potential for their feet to be red and sore is minimized.

In Swanson’s opinion, placing an emphasis on correct toes, dewclaws and pads may seem like minute details, but when looking at the bigger picture of building functional, productive breeding stock, those small details can make all the difference.
Just like the times, champions have evolved through the years. As production priorities changed so has the ideal animal.

John Simpson and Sons, Missouri, sold their Grand Champion Boar at the 1969 Southeastern Duroc Congress to Potter Farms, Illinois, for $5,000.

The Champion Duroc Boar at the 1989 Indiana State Fair was raised by Todd Hopkins of Indiana. He was sired by NBS7 RB Megatron.

Range and Luechtefeld, Illinois, drove their BRJL6 Bold Move son to Grand Champion Boar honors at the 2009 NSR Winter Type Conference.

From the Field

My hope is the National Junior Swine Association (NJSA) can provide the same type of platform to teach life skills for the long-term success of our young people. The NJSA has created a demand for purebred swine that has allowed many of you to continue making a living in the hog business. There were 4,979 junior hogs exhibited at NJSA events, in 2015. Behind every pig was an exhibitor and a family that invested time and money toward those projects. The young people and their families purchasing pigs to participate in our events do so in hopes of having a positive experience. For breeders who rely on the youth showpig market, it has never been more important to uphold the same type of honesty, integrity and character, which was instilled in Coach Wooden by his father, Joshua, on their farm at a very young age. By doing things right, treating people as you would want to be treated and simply sharing your time with young people, we can continue to utilize this industry to help coach our youth for the game of life.

Congratulations to Hunter on getting it done on the big stage at Expo with this tremendous crossbred barrow!!! We described him as a pig as not being as "ready" but he without a doubt was 12:00 and READY when he hit the ring in Des Moines!!! We fully understand that his genetic potential plays a role in that, yet the effort and hard work on your end is equally, if not, more important... FOR THAT WE SAY THANK YOU HUNTER AND THANK YOU WILLIE KIRTPATRICK FOR GETTING THIS ONE FED, FIT, AND SHOWN AT MAXIMUM POTENTIAL!

As Listed in Our February Online Sale:
EN: 224-5 XB • Breed: Crossbred Barrow
Sire: Beyond • Dam's Ear Notch: 278-3
Sire of Dams Bear • Weight in lbs (as of 02.16.15): 68
Description: Three more tremendous 224 litter barrows to study!!! Again, we sold littermates in the January Sale that were just a notch more ready than these were at that point, but holy smokes have these guys ever done all the right things in their development towards the future!!! They are tremendously shapely, very stout featured, yet still offer plenty of extension up front and throughout to make winning barrows in 2015!!! We’re really excited about the possibilities these 224’s bring to the table!!! They all three can go win shows!!!
